OBREGON, newly-elected president of Mexico, will not succeed Calles. Six bullets fired into him as he sat at a banquet have sent him out of the world's activities.

Violent times are to be expected in Mexico, unfortunately.

JUST before receipt of the Associated Press "flash," telling of the assassination, the following paragraphs had been written, for publication here:

OBREGON, recently-elected president of Mexico, says his nation will not change its attitude on religion, and it seeks "the establishment of Capital's responsibilities and Labor's rights in their fundamental aspects."

If he can establish that, he will do something never done before.

The world has always taken it for granted that Labor's right is the right to a living, and "Capital's responsibilities" consist of taking and keeping anything over and above what labor requires to live.

SO far as Obregon is concerned questions affecting Capital, Labor and religion are now settled for eternity. Others must struggle with them.

Once more the question will be asked, "Does assassination ever change the course of history?"

EUROPEAN nations are coming into line, signing the Kellogg peace treaty, which many hope and some believe will put an end to war.

We didn't invite Russia to sign, but she is willing to sign anyhow.

French statesmen sign the treaty saying they are satisfied because it "binds the United States to Europe more than it binds Europe to the United States."

Time will tell to what extent this country is bound to Europe by this treaty.

There are many ways of killing a cat, many ways of disguising a league of nations.

HERBERT HOOVER HAS finished his visit to Calvin Coolidge. They fished together for three hours and the fish learned something about the power of silence.

The President will speak during the campaign, at least twice, for Hoover as "heir of the Coolidge polices."

THE last five words are important.

The President will tell the country, which elected him with 7,000,000 votes to spare, that continued prosperity demands Hoover's election.

MONEY went down yesterday, stocks went up.

The price of money will go up again, then stocks will go down. But for the long run, substantial properties in this country are selling for less than they are worth even at present prices.

If you could only recognize them, which you can't from the outside looking in, many stocks are selling far below prices they will bring some day. Others, of course, that even a fool ought to recognize at sight, are in for a bad time.

HENRY L. STIMSON, governor-general of the Philippines, wants business men in those islands to borrow money from America to build up their country.

He says there wouldn't be any "serfdom."

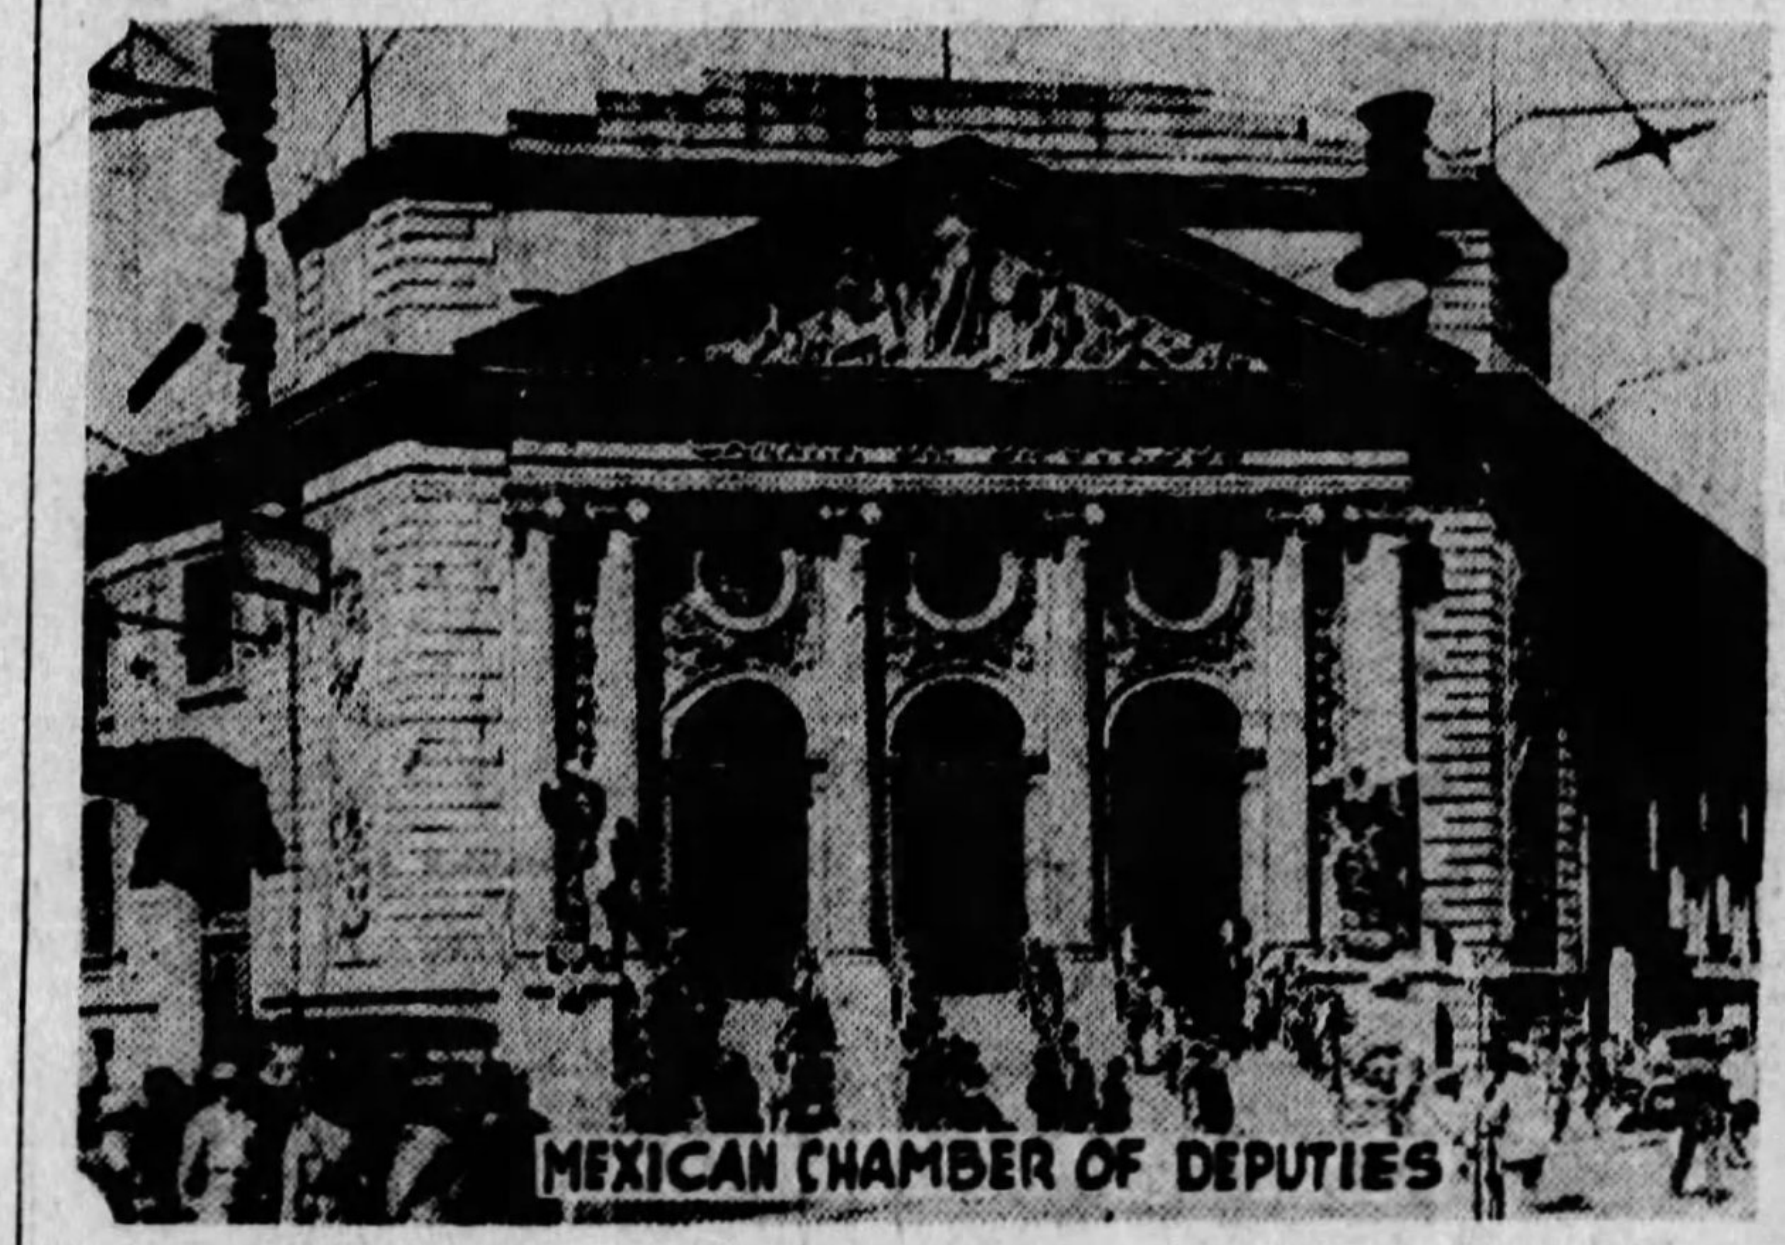
The Philippines might ask the People of Porto Rico how they feel. Our postoffice has just established an air mail service, linking Porto Rico with all the United States. Uncle Sam isn't such a bad senior partner.

HARRY K. THAW, who killed Stanford White, the architect, and was set free, then put in an insane asylum and again set free, is back from England. In his opnion "England has gone to the dogs." England refused to let him land, and he is glad to be back in a free country where you can do as you like, if you have the price.

THE Baumes law, in New York state, which sentences fourth-time offenders to prison for life, for comparatively trivial crimes, has reduced crime considerably.

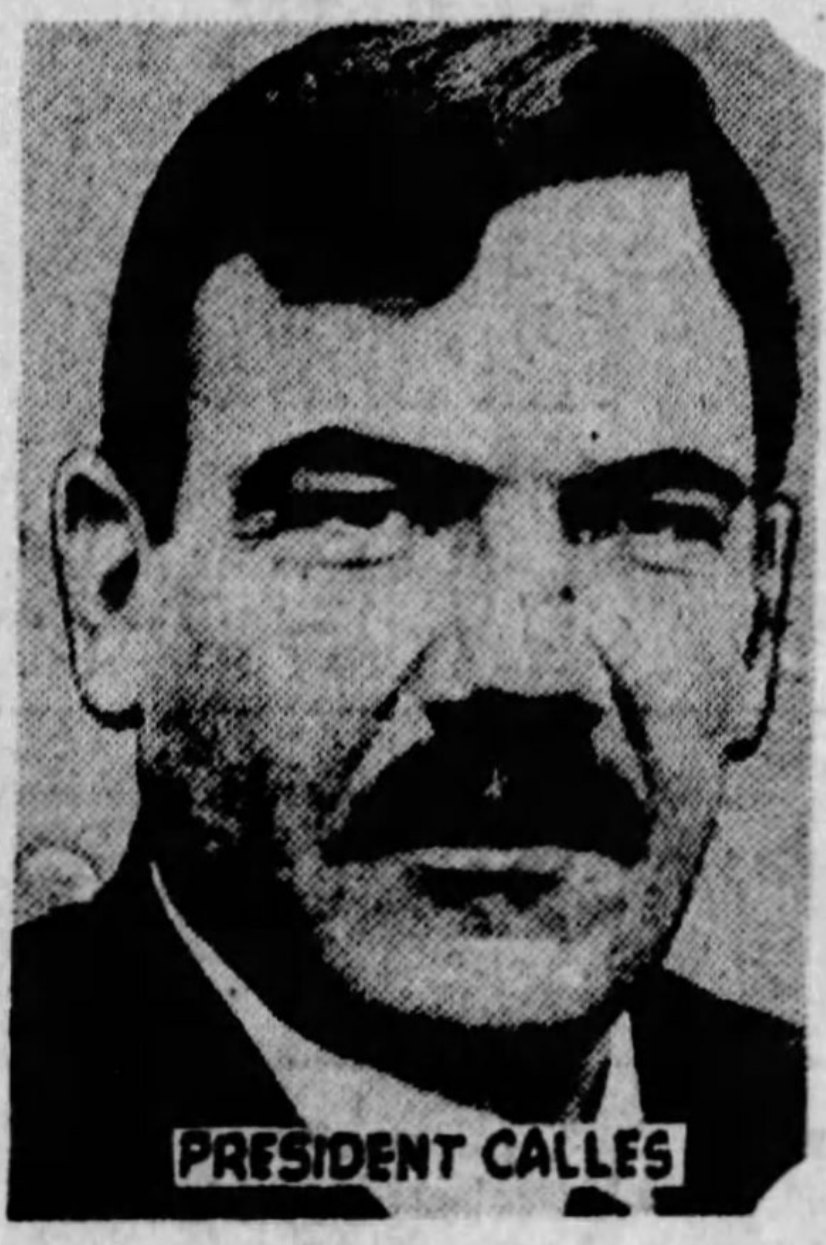
It evidently pays to frighten criminals even if you have to be brutal about it. Incidentally, you notice that it is life imprisonment not the electric chair, that frightens.

Assassination Arouses Mexico



POLITICAL

President-elect Alvaro Obregon, Mexico, has fallen before six assassins' bullets. The Chamber of Deputies, Mexico City, was the scene of much of his political life.



CHIEF

President Calles has taken firm control of politics, hoping to steady the situation.

THE PRESIDENT'S PALACE

HOME

This would have become shortly Obregon's home. He was elected president, unopposed because his two opponents were executed, July 1. He was killed at a political banquet in San Angel.

OBREGON AS A SOLDIER

MILITARY

Obregon had given years to serving Mexico, as an army general as well as in other ways.

MACHINES AID POLL

Mt. Oliver and Knoxville residents, holidaying at Kenneywood Park yesterday, showed great interest in the voting machine stationed there, both men and women registering their preference for presidential candidates and learning the rudiments of casting a ballot on a machine.

The young women in charge of the machines were kept busy explaining how voters should operate the machines, and one each of the six machines placed by The Sun-Telegraph throughout the city, enthusiasm was maintained at a high pitch as the balloting continued.

The fact that a secret vote could be expressed on the machines, and also that it required less than 30 seconds to enter the booth, vote and step out, attracted unusual interest. The simplicity, sureness and speed of the machine prove a continued source of satisfaction to voters.

To the question, asked by many, when the machines will be adopted for general elections, it is stated that in the November election this year, the public will vote on the proposition of adopting the principle of machine voting, amending the constitution of the commonwealth to permit machines in elections. In other states, New York, Connecticut, Iowa, Michigan, California and others, the machines are being used

Sun-Telegraph's Gift of Novels Wins Praise

THE Sun-Telegraph's policy of giving free a complete novel with each issue of the Sunday Sun-Telegraph continues to produce expressions of appreciation from readers. Paul Stromer, 7151 Hermitage street, writes:

Kindly allow me to congratulate you on your latest attraction for your Sunday paper. It is the best I have seen for many years, giving your readers, in addition to your great paper, a novel like Edna Ferber's "Show Boat," complete and entirely free.

I was in New York for 26 years; I have been in Pittsburgh since 1921, but I have never seen a paper that has given a treat like this to its readers and I want to thank you from the bottom of my heart.

The complete novel to be given away with next Sunday's Sun-Telegraph is Agatha Christie's "The Murder of Roger Ackroyd, best selling mystery story of the year.

INJURED IN FALL ON ICE, SUES CITY FOR $100,000

Both hips broken by a fall on the ice at Christmas time, so that he has to walk with crutches, led William Muncey to file suit against the City of Pittsburgh, for $100,000 damages, one of the largest personal injury suits ever entered here. Muncey says that last December 28, he was walking with his wife in St. Andrews street when he fell on the ice into a three-foot depression along the sidewalks. He charges the city was negligent in not having the pavement clear of ice.

SPAN FALL PROBED

Investigation was begun by county officials today into the collapse yesterday of the Cow Hollow Bridge, near Mayview, when a steam shovel and a truck dropped 75 feet into a gully, killing one man and injuring two others.

The collapse is said to have been caused by the excessive weight of the steam shovel and truck which was towing it to Braddock from Mayview, where it had been used on a city contract.

V. R. Covell, chief engineer of Allegheny county, who visited the wrecked bridge yesterday, while scores of workmen sought to save the life of John Egloff, 30, of 450 Fourth avenue, Braddock, truck driver, caught between the steam shovel and the truck after the collapse, declared the bridge had not been weakened by rains and said he was of the opinion that the crash had been caused by overloading the span. Employes of Thomas George, contractor and owner of the shovel and truck, said they had been granted a county permit to transport the shovel across the bridge.

LEGS AMPUTATED

Egloff was imprisoned under the steam shovel for more than five hours, physicians and nurses administering to the suffering man while workmen tried to release him. Heavy steel cables, ropes and chains were attached to the shovel

LEVINE CRACKS UP PLANE

NEW YORK, July 18.—(AP.)—Charles A. Levine's famous trans-Atlantic monoplane Columbia was a wreck today, and its owner had another spectacular landing to add to his flying record.

Levine crashed at Curtiss Field, Long Island, last night in his fourth attempt to make a landing after a 20-minute flight. The landing gear, the propeller, the right wing and the left wing tip were smashed, but neither Levine nor his passenger, Maj. A. L. Fleming, was injured.

The landing recalled a similar one Levine made in the same plane at Croydon, England, last fall, when on his first solo flight he flew over the English channel from Le Bourget field, near Paris. At that time after four attempts he succeeded in bringing the plane to a safe but somewhat bumpy landing.

MISSES HANGARS

Shortly after Levine had taken off last night he ran into difficulties when the right wing dipped sharply. He had just straightened out the plane when the wing dipped again. He then headed back for the hangar but flew so low he missed other hangars by inches. He circled about for another attempt, but overran the field. The third time he narrowly missed some telegraph wires.

On the fourth attempt he again misjudged his distance and fell short of his mark. The plane landed on the road, the right wing striking a low fence, turning the plane on its nose. Levine and Fleming crawled from beneath the wreckage unscathed.

"It was my piloting," said Levine apalogetically. "My takeoff was bad, but my landing was worse."

He said the plane in which he and Clarence D. Chamberlain flew to Germany would be rebuilt "As good as new.". The plane had been rebuilt once before after a crash in Italy.

Game starts at 3:30.

The Pirates this afternoon are out to get a victory that would give them an unbroken string of nine, and Burleigh Grimes, ace of the sharpshooting staff, will give the hapless Braves both barrels as he fights for his fifteenth personal triumph.

The fourth and last battle with the Tribe may bring a recurrence of the slab fight that took place in the opener last Saturday. Manager Hornsby may send Eddie Brandt, de luxe southpaw, to Fogarty Knoll. Grimes and Brandt fought it out in the first game, and each has had sufficient rest to "go" again.

The Dodgers will be here tomorrow for four games to be run off in three days. Their visit calls for a double header on Saturday. Another twin bill between the same two clubs is on the cards for Sunday at Brooklyn. The Buccos will begin their second eastern invasion at that time.

FIRE DAMAGES TROLLEY CAR IN HOMEWOOD BARN

Fire damaged a street car in the Homewood car-house shortly before noon today. Several men were removing paint from the car when the material they were using ignited and set it afire. Window frames were burned. The Pittsburgh Railways Company refused to estimate the loss until the motor had been examined.

Fight 'Fine Mill'

The Pittsburgh Motor Club today declared war on "fining squires distorting justice for their own profit at the expense of motorists."

"This is a crusade against unfair prosecution of motorists," Secretary C. H. Roth declared. "We have retained Attorney Frank J. Zappala to prosecute crooked justices and to defend every motorist who is illegally arrested." Roth said the club's directors had approved the campaign and that city, county and state authorities had promised co-operation.

Roth charged that numberless motorists have been arrested unjustly. He set forth that a 400 per cent increase in collection of fines for June, 1928, against June of 1927, was not because there have been more arrests but because state representatives are checking up on officials of various communities who have imposed fines.

"We urge all motorists who have been unjustly arrested to waive hearing to the Court of Quarter Sessions and then come to see us," Roth advised. "We want to clean up the 'fining squire' situation in Allegheny county."

Boy Yeggs Caught in Store

Ready to drill the safe in the Community Market, 319 South Lang avenue, at 1:30 o'clock this morning, police say, Gerald Shann, 18, of 577 Main street and Leo Pilinski, 16, of 121 Forty-third street, were arrested, when a pedestrian tipped off the police.

An electric drill, bits, hammer, jimmy, flashlight and gloves were found in the store in front of the safe on which the two boys were working. The drill was taped to prevent shock.

When arraigned in Morals Court today the two were held for further investigation.

OBREGON DEATH STARTS PANIC

MEXICO CITY, July 18.—(AP.)—Assassination of President-elect Alvaro Obregon caused stringent measures today to curb disorder.

Censorship was in force. Police and soldiers patrolled the streets of the capital and the roads of the surrounding countryside.

The army was prepared for an emergency, all troops being ordered to barracks and held in readiness in case of disorder.

There were innumerable rumors in the capital of uprisings and other killings, but all proved untrue. Intense excitement prevailed everywhere, but neither the newspapers nor the government had any information of trouble breaking out anywhere in the republic. The war department today issued an official communique saying the army would guarantee the public peace.

Guard President

President Calles was surrounded by a strong guard. All saloons were closed as were theaters and other places of amusement.

Many of those known to be opposed to Obregon fled from Mexico City before the fury of his friends and supporters, which was kept in bounds only by police precautions. The headquarters of Luis Morones, secretary of labor and Obregon's greatest political opponent, were surrounded by a guard at the instance of President Calles, who feared that there might be some attempts at violence.

Gen. Obregon's body rested today in state in the great salon of the National Palace, which he had expected to occupy for a second time in December. It was surrounded by a guard of honor composed of members of the cabinet and the highest officers of the army and navy.

The one-armed warrior-president-elect was slain yesterday afternoon at a banquet in his honor by a man who approached under the guise of showing Obregon some cartoons he had drawn of the dinner. He fired six bullets into the General from a gun concealed among the sketches.

The assassin was beaten by maddened friends of the slain General. He was rescued by police and rushed to jail. There he confessed the crime, although his motive was not made known.

President Calles made a futile attempt to learn the motive of the crime from the assassin.

"It is useless," the slayer said, "for you to attempt to force me to tell anything. If I was resolute enough to kill Obregon in the presence of several hundred of his supporters, knowing full well that it meant my death, I am resolute enough to say nothing."

Not Identified

Newspapers had an unconfirmed report today which attributed this statement to the assassin:

"I killed Obregon because I wanted Christ the King to reign completely and not partially."

The assassin gave only the name of Juan. In rumors that spread about the capital he was referred to as Juan Escapulario. "Escapulario," Spanish for scapula, a religious emblem, is a term of derision

WASHINGTON DISMAYED BY OBREGON'S DEATH

WASHINGTON, July 18.—(AP.)—Looking forward to constantly improving relations with Mexico under the administration of Gen. Alvaro Obregon, official Washington was deeply shocked to learn of his death at the hand of an assassin.

Dismay and sorrow attended the rapidly spreading word of the tragedy. It reached Secretary Kellogg as he was about to leave the State Department for the night and he immediately put through a telephone call to Ambassador Morrow at Mexico City and later dispatched a telegram of condolence to acting Foreign Minister Estrada.

Ambassador Tellez refused at first to believe that Obregon was dead. He, too, called the Mexican capital by telephone.

Secretary Kellogg's message to Estrada termed the tragedy a "dastardly attack," and said the United States had learned of Gen. Obregon's death "with profound sorrow."

Ambassador Tellez declared that the assassination would result in a unification of sentiment against "the forces of reaction and revolution."

PREDICTS UNIFICATION

"I believe and hope," he said, "that indignation against the assassin will unite all classes in Mexico in support of the administration so that it will be able utterly to wipe out all the forces of reaction. That is the natural result to be expected in any country."

Dr. J. M. Alvarez de Castillo, who served as foreign minister in the revolutionary cabinet of De la Huerta in 1923 and was sent to Washington as the representative of the provisional government, spoke from a different point of view, expressing the opinion that "Gen. Obregon induced his own death because of the many acts of violence done by his orders in the past few years."

He has been an exile here since the failure of the De la Huerta revolution.

A PRESIDENT IN MEXICO LIVES "ONLY FOR TODAY"

THE assassination of President-elect Obregon calls attention to the fact that in Mexico the highest officer of that Republic lives only for today; tomorrow he may be gone. Since the Republic was created in 1824 only five presidents have lived out their terms. Some have died natural deaths, a majority have been assassinated—three since 1913.

Porfirio Diaz, president for seven terms, was beginning his eighth when the Madero revolution forced him to flee. He died in Europe, exiled.

Francisco Madero's reign was short-lived. Victoriano Huerta seized the government and Madero was assassinated February 22, 1913. A year later, Huerta quit the government and took to his heels, encouraged by the Carranza revolution.

Venustiano Carranza, succeeding Huerta, died with his boots on—killed in flight when a counter revolution upset his regime.

Obregon had been president once before—and had fully served his first term! He was succeeded by Calles, whose term will expire in December.

DANES DEMAND PROBE OF NOBILE DISASTER

OSLO, July 18.—(A. P.)—Investigation of Gen. Umberto Nobile's flight to the North Pole is being urged by several Danish explorers here. Feeling against the commander of the Italia also is making itself felt in Oslo.

Several Danish explorers proposed that Dr. Fridtjof Nansen, Arctic explorer, head a court of honor to investigate Nobile's leadership. Nansen declined. He said, however, that several events in the expedition needed closer investigation.

The newspaper Aftenposten was forced to remove a picture of Nobile from a showcase when threats were made that the window would be broken and the picture destroyed.

On the anniversary of Roald Amundsen's birthday, Monday, Dagbladet, organ of the present cabinet, published without comment an article by Nobile, which had appeared in an American magazine and in which Nobile belittled Lincoln Ellsworth and Amundsen as Arctic explorers. Nobile told of the work of himself and his Italian crew in comparison with the Norwegians of the Polar expedition in the dirigible Norge in 1926.

CLUE TO AMUNDSEN

International News Service.

OSLO, Norway, July 18.—The Norwegian government was today investigating the story of two fishermen who were at Bear Island shortly after the radio station there received the last message sent out by Capt. Roald Amundsen's plane, the Latham.

The story told by the fishermen may be the key to the mystery of the disappearance of the noted explorer, who left Thomsoe, Norway, on June 18, with five companions, to search for survivors of the Italia tragedy and has been missing since.

The fishermen said they found tracks of two wheels about six feet apart on the plateau at the top of Bear Island. The tracks ran for about 80 feet and then disappeared over the edge of the precipice, indicating that Amundsen and his companions may have plunged into the sea with their plane in attempting a landing.

Searching ships which have sought Amundsen's party for weeks have found no trace of them. In view of Amundsen's noted ability to find his way in the Arctic wastes, the story of the fishermen is regarded here as the most plausible theory yet advanced for his disappearance, as it is felt he would have been heard from had he safely landed.

OBREGON'S LIFE HAS BEEN STORMY

Associated Press.

Gen. Alvaro Obregon began life as a farmer, achieved fame and power as a soldier, and ended life as a statesman.

Since his victory over Pancho Villa at Celaya in 1915—a victory which cost him his right arm—until his death yesterday, he exerted a dominating influence in Mexico.

The story of his rise from small farmer and ranchero at Huatabampo, Sonora, to president of Mexico is, as with most Mexican leaders, the story of a military career.

Becomes Soldier

His enthusiasm for the "Apostle," Francisco Madero, led him in 1910, in his thirtieth year, to leave his farm to become a soldier. The next year, with Yaqui Indians recruited from his native state of Sonora, he defeated the rebel Crozco, and in 1914 defeated the Guerilla Villa at Celaya in as intense as encounter as Mexican history has seen.

He was minister of war under President Venustiano Carranza, and as such visited President Wilson in Washington in 1916. He took the field against Carranza in 1919. In the ensuing action Carranza fled and was killed while he slept in a house in the hills of Vera Cruz, while Obregon, Adolfo De La Huerta, and Plutarco Elias Calles obtained control of the government.

Beats Huerta

De La Huerta was named provisional President until Obregon could be elected by popular vote in 1920. Obregon assumed office in December of that year, but took the field again toward the end of his term to quash a revolt by his erstwhile friend, De La Huerta, whom he had included in his cabinet.

Contrary to precedent in Mexican history, Obregon made no attempt to hold office more than his allotted four years, and in 1924 surrendered the presidency to his dutly-elected successor, Calles. He retired to his ranch in Sonora and became a Mexican country gentleman.

Plot Charged

It was upon this action, and its sequel, that political animosities arose which may have been behind his assassination yesterday. It itself won wide commendation, but when his supporters, with the approval of Calles, obtained a change in the Constitution to permit him to succeed Calles as President, there were broad charges of connivance with Calles to perpetuate their power in alternate terms.

Elected Again

In the ensuing turmoil opposing presidential candidates, Generals Francisco Serrano and Arnulfo Gomez were executed after purported revolts. Obregon, without opposition, was named at the last general election, July 1, as President, to assume office again upon the expiration of Calles' term in December.

Obregon, as President, gave Mexico four years of comparative good government based on moderately socialistic principles, especially in oil and agrarian matters. The Calles term was in the main a continuation of his regime and little change of policy was expected in the six-year term he was to have begun this year.

Popular With Army

Obregon was a man whose friends were friends, and in whose enemies he excited the most violent animosities. He was very popular with the army and he had a large political following, but others could never forgive the ruthlessness of his attack and of his treatment of enemies.

He was of Basque-Celtic descent, and often was mistaken for an Irishman. He was the youngest of 18 children, and himself, married twice, the father of eight. In appearance he was handsome, with a heavy figure, powerful frame, ruddy complexion, and an ornate turned-up mustache.

Gen. Obregon only this week reaffirmed an old position with regard to the Catholic Church in Mexico—that is, that the church and its followers must conform with the Constitution of Mexico. It was this position by Calles which resulted in the religious controversy of the past two years in Mexico.

FATAL BRIDGE FALL BEING PROBED

and strung through the trees on the side of the ravine, running back to trucks and tractors on the roadway above, in an attempt to pull the shovel over on its side, but it was feared the heavy machine might topple and crush the life out of the imprisoned man, so an operation was resorted to.

The heavy steel tractors of the shovel rested across Egloff's thighs, and physicians decided the only possible hope would be to amputate his limbs and release him. Dr. Rittenhouse, of Bridgeville, and Drs. A. B. Sigmann and G. S. Llewelyn, of Mayview, performed the operation and Egloff was rushed to Mayview where he died a short time later. All the time he was imprisoned beneath the huge shovel, Egloff was conscious, calling for cigarets constantly. He was given opiates to deaden the pain and apparently suffered little during the harrowing experience.

FLOOR BUCKLES

Four trucks and the shovel made up the convoy which started from Mayview about noon. The front truck was unhooked and driven across the bridge ahead of the others by James McGuigan, who walked back across the span to unhook two other trucks on the rear of the shovel. Egloff's truck towed the shovel and McGuigan started back across the bridge ahead of the machinery.

He had just reached the middle of the span when he said he felt the floor buckling under his feet and looked back to see the bridge going down and the engineer of the shovel leap into the air. McGuigan scrambled to safety on the remaining part of the bridge.

Otto Gass, the engineer, was cut and bruised in the crash, and his fireman, John Gust, of Braddock, suffered probable internal injuries. Gust was taken to Mayview hospital, but Gass was able to go home.

Two other drivers, Lawrence McGuigan and W. J. Musser, escaped because they unhooked their trucks before crossing the span.

FAMILY MOURNS

The Egloffs lived with Mrs. Egloff's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Stevens, in Braddock. In the same house are two sisters of Mrs. Egloff, Mrs. E. Schwaltz and Mrs. O. Estep. They were devoted to their son and brother-in-law and today it is a home of deep grief.

Mrs. Egloff is bearing up well under the tragedy. She holds her two children, Harry, 5, and Donald, 15 months, close and asks if it isn't "a bad dream."

Egloff's father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. John Egloff, Sr., and a brother, Michael, live in Masillon, O., where he also has a sister, Mrs. W. Toomey. Another sister, Mrs. Joseph Berger, survives him in Mansfield, O. The wife was not informed of the tragedy until 7:30 last evening, six hours after the accident.

10,000 IN ESCORT

International News Service.

NEW YORK, July 18.—The body of Capt. Emilio Carranza begins its journey from New York today to a hero's burial in Mexico City.

More than 10,000 soldiers, sailors and marines were to escort the flag-draped caisson carrying the bory of the Mexican flier from Campbell's funeral parlor to Pennsylvania Station.

National guardsmen from New York and New Jersey will form part of the escort, together with marines from Brooklyn Navy Yard and sailors from the U. S. S. Texas and destroyers in New York waters. The cortege was to parade in silence down Madison avenue.

Near St. Louis, home of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, the train carrying the Mexican flier's body will be met by four dirigibles, which will fly above it as it enters and leaves the city. The train is due there tomorrow.

Capt. Carranza was killed last Thursday when his plane crashed in New Jersey while he was on a non-stop flight from New York to Mexico City.

CHATSWORTH, N. J., July 18.—John Henry Carr, 26, Chatsworth woodsman, who found the body of Capt. Emilio Carranza, Mexican flier, while picking huckleberries near here, last Friday, is $500 richer today. He was presented with a check for that amount by Arturo N. Martinez, member of the Mexican consul-general's staff in New York City.

County Detective Arthur Carabine who guarded the wrecked plane in which the Mexican flier lost his life and otherwise assisted in the recovery of the plane and body, was presented by Martinez with a personal check for $250.

Portions of the wrecked plane will be sent back to Mexico City today with the dead hero's body.

GAMES

When the Magyars gather, they forget work. There were, of course, all sorts of games and the like on the day's program; there were even speakers. Here, Irene Baksay (left) and Helen Wiceley, played one strictly their own and all with only a pillar. Guess which one is "It."

Thomson Says 'No' To Dems

Federal Judge W. H. S. Thomson, who recently made application for retirement from active service, has declined to become a candidate for the United States Senate on the Democratic ticket.

In a letter to State Chairman John R. Collins and Sedgwick Kistler, national committeeman for Pennsylvania, the jurist says, after careful consideration he feels impelled to decline the honor.

"I am deeply sensible of the high honor which such a suggestion impiles, coming as it does from those highest in the party councils of the state," his letter says. "To be given so prominent a place in the great national movement now on, to restore to the people those high constitutional guaranties of liberty and equality, from which we have drifted far, is worth the ambition of any man, but personal consideration impels me to decline the honor."

STEUBENVILLE MAN KILLED BY TRAIN

STEUBENVILLE, O., July 18.—Hurled 30 feet when the auto in which he was riding was struck by a Panhandle Railroad passenger train, Victor Miller, 33, gas company employe, was killed instantly at a Scio grade crossing this morning.

BELLA HERSHKOVITZ

Bella Hershkovitz, 18, Thomas boulevard, who said she is a Pitt sophomore, appeared at the Missing Persons Bureau to explain that she had not really been missing, as her mother had reported. Confronted by loss of appetite, she said, she decided to hike for relief and hiked to Florida and back, leaving with $9 and returning with $7.

SUBURBS BLAMED IN FLOODS

Officials of Dormont, Brentwood, Overbrook and Castle Shannon boroughs and Baldwin and Mt. Lebanon townships, according to city engineers, are responsible for the flooding of Saw Mill Run sewer. The engineers claim that the boroughs are permitting their storm water to flood city sewers they are permitted to use for sanitary purposes only. City Council has declared war on the boroughs and insists that the practice be stopped immediately.

The borough and township officials deny the engineers' charges. They maintain that storm water is not being emptied into the sewers. City engineers started an investigation today.

Residents of West End and Saw Mill Run districts called Council's attention to the matter yesterday.

"If that is the case, and if I were director of public works, I would have a gang of men out early tomorrow to cut the connections, and force the boroughs to ask us to replace them," declared Councilman Robert J. Alderdice, referring specifically to the Saw Mill Run sewer.

According to Councilman John S. Herron, whose charges have been supported by the West End Board of Trade, cellars in that district have been flooded seven times this year.

This damage, which Public Works Director Edward G. Lang yesterday admitted affected about 100 residences, is blamed by Lang and I. G. Palmer, engineer in charge of sewers, principally upon the fact that storm water from the boroughs is permitted to run into the city's 48-inch sanitary sewer.

This sewer, Lang told council, when called upon to explain why the frequent complaints have not been cared for, has been found inadequate due to this storm water. At the same time he admitted the need of repairs to a siphon, for which council appropriated $20,000 four months ago. Palmer said that the specifications for this job had been delayed, but that they would be advertised July 26.

Council, not satisfied, decided to hold a special meeting Friday afternoon to approve an emergency appropriation for that amount, so that it will not be necessary to advertise for bids before beginning work.

City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt has warned the boroughs to cease permitting their storm water to flood the sewer. The borough heads, however, deny that any such overflow is entering the city mains.

Director Lang tilted with several councilmen who felt that no more reports were needed and who demanded immediate action.

Personal investigation in Becks Run, where the heavy rains resulted in considerable damage, led council yesterday to approve an emergency appropriation of $45,000 asked by Mayor Charles H. Kline and Controller John H. Henderson. Of this $23,000 will be spent by contract dredging the natural stream, reconstructing curbs and rebuilding damaged retaining walls, while the city forces will use $22,000 to resurface the roadway with asphalt. It is now built with asphalt blocks.

Pittsburgh AS OTHERS SEE US

"I cannot, personally speaking, help confessing my great debt to Pittsburgh and its people for all she and they have meant to me."

CHARLES WAKEFIELD CADMAN

CHARLES WAKEFIELD CADMAN, composer, was born in Johnstown, Pa., December 24, 1881. Studied music in Pittsburgh. Was music critic of "Pittsburgh Dispatch," organist for Pittsburgh churches and Pittsburgh Male Chorus. Became interested in Indian music and visited reservations to record the Red Men's songs. He composed numerous songs and operas, among them "Shanewis," the first American opera to last more than one season at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York. Lives in Hollywood, Calif.

While I am one of many who would long to see a permanent symphony orchestra for the community, such as Pittsburgh had during my residence there, it must not be forgotten that Pittsburgh has done and is still doing its share for music and art in America. I cannot, personally speaking, help confessing my great debt to Pittsburgh and its people for all she and they have meant to me.

Aside from the encouragement I always found when I resided there the greater part of my life, I never can forget when a crisis came into my existence, Pittsburgh and its citizens made it possible for me to regain my health.

Bomb Cry Causes Panic

Women customers and clerks were panic-stricken for several minutes in a downtown store today when a middle-aged man, a package in his hand, yelled, "I have a bomb here and I'm going to blow up this store."

City Detective William B. Cryster brought the man down with a flying tackle. The package proved to contain a suit of underclothing!

The man, arrested, said he was John Patrick McCune, 43, of 416 Chartiers avenue, a gassed World War veteran.

Annoyed Girls and Is Beaten

Accused of annoying two girls in Schenley Park last night, George Turfley, 22, Negro, of 2555 Center avenue, was attacked by a crowd of men and severely beaten, before he was arrested by police answering a riot call.

In Morals Court today he was held pending an investigation and a number of women and girls who have been molested in the park recently will be asked if they can identify him.

Father-in-Law Dies; Hoover Speeds Home

International News Service.

PLACERVILLE, Cal., July 18.—Charles D. Henry, aged father-in-law of Herbert Hoover, Presidential nominee, died here today following a stroke of paralysis. He had been seriously ill for the past two weeks. Mr. Henry was 84 years old.

EN ROUTE ON HOOVER TRAIN, near Omaha, Neb., July 18.—Herbert Hoover, Republican Presidential nominee, abandoned his reception and welcome to California scheduled for San Francisco, shortly after he learned today of the death of his father-in-law, Charles D. Henry, at Placerville, Cal.

Hoover, it was announced, plans to go direct to Palo Alto, Cal., his home, by way of Sacramento, and will make no stop at San Francisco.

HAILS HOOVER AS FARMERS' "MOSES"

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON,
International News Service.

EN ROUTE WITH HOOVER THROUGH NEBRASKA., July 18.—Herbert Hoover will "father" American agriculture.

"He will offer the most constructure plan of farm relief ever given to the American people," Gov. John Hamill, of Iowa, declared today after a conference with the Republican nominee.

Hamill indorsed Hoover and predicted he would carry Iowa by 200,000 and the whole agricultural belt by normal Republican majorities.

"Mr. Hoover will have a definite agricultural program," said Hamill. "He regards it both as a moral and a positive obligation of the party and of himself. He recognizes that there is an agricultural problem and that it must be solved and that it can be solved by proper principles. The farmers in America can have faith in Herbert Hoover and in his farm program. He will offer them a definite plan, the most constructive ever offered to American people."

SEEN AS "CHAMPION"

The Hoover plan will exclude the equalization fee principle which was the heart of the controversial McNary-Hugen bill. The fee, Hamill said, has been "abandoned."

The Iowa governor boarded the candidate's train at Missouri Valley, Iowa, this morning to obtain a specific farm relief expression from Hoover for the Republican state convention which met today in Des Moines. Hamill left the train at Omaha, declaring he was convinced that Hoover was a friend of the farmer and that he would convey this message to the Republican gathering.

Judge William R. Green, former chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, visited with Hoover during a stop in Omaha and told the nominee he would sweep the grain belt.

"Iowa will go Republican by its normal majority," said Green. "Hoover may lose a few farm votes, but he will gain many more from the other side, so Iowa just like the rest of the corn belt can be put safely in the Republican column."

The nominee's meeting with Hamill was significant because the Iowa Governor was chairman of the committee of twenty-two which called on Congress last spring to enact the McNary-Haugen bill.

He visited Hoover for the specific purpose of getting his views on farm relief. After their conference Hamill was enthusiastic in his indorsement of the Republican nominee.

"Without question Herbert Hoover will be the next President," said Hamill. "I shall tell the farmers at the Republican state convention today that they have a real champion in Hoover and when his final explanation of his platform and program is made it will challenge the admiration of all those interested in agriculture and of the whole nation as well.

"I speak with hope and with knowledge that is entirely satisfactory to me."

"Does this mean the abandonment of the equalization fee?" He was asked.

"Oh yes," replied the Governor. "The equalization fee will be abandoned."

MRS. ANNA M. WINNER

Five hundred women have joined the Hoover-Curtis Club, recently organized by Mrs. Anna M. Winner, 1168 Murrayhill avenue. The next meeting of the club will be held in Mrs. Winner's home.

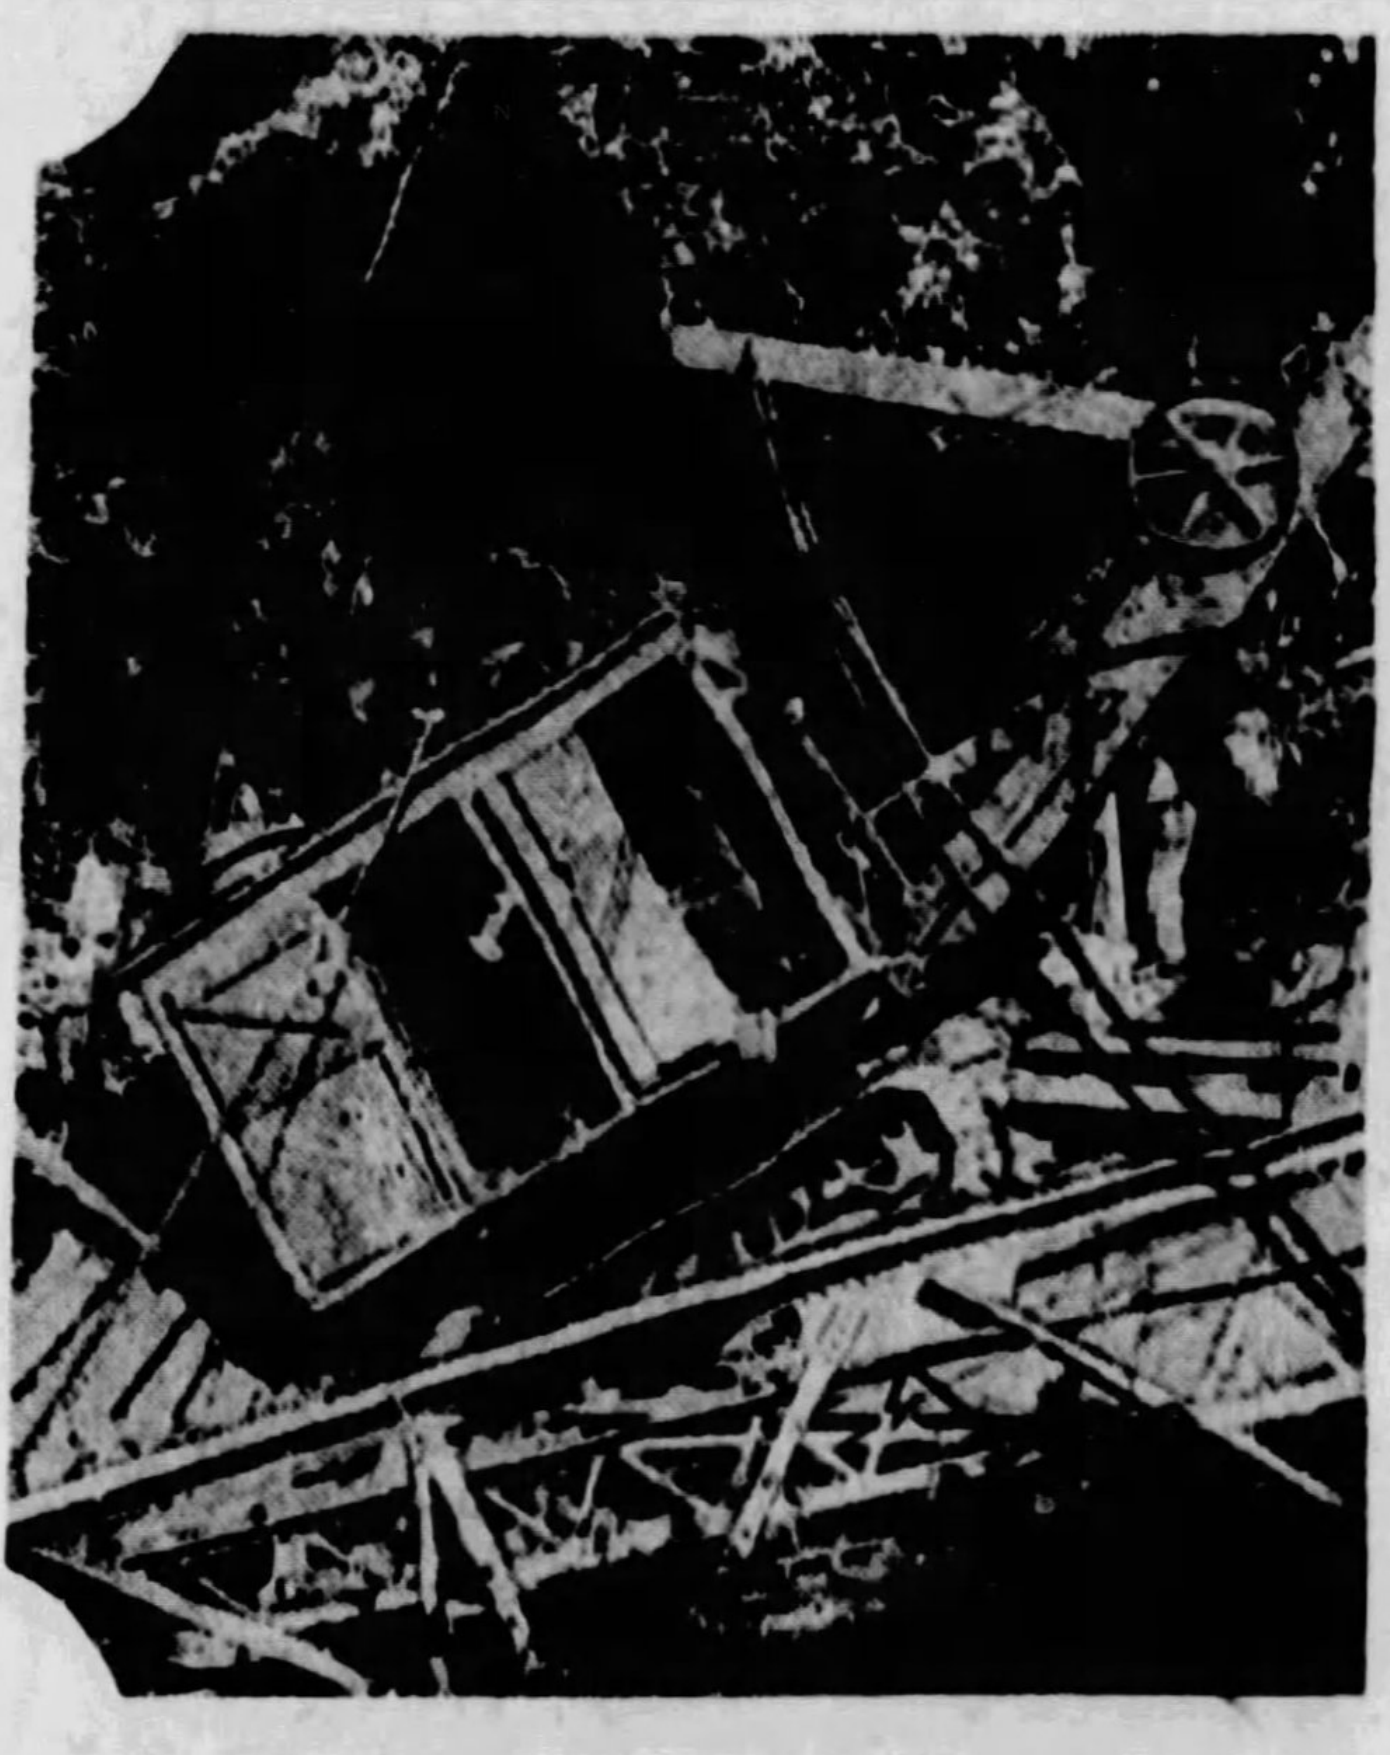
Firebugs Suspected In Blaze

Fire Marshal Thomas Pfarr and city detectives today are investigating the finding of two rubber balls filled with kerosene in the hallway of a loft building at 713 Penn avenue where firemen had extinguished a small fire.

It is believed that the fire was of incendiary origin and had the flames reached the rubber containers, they would have burst and spread the flaming oil about the hallway.

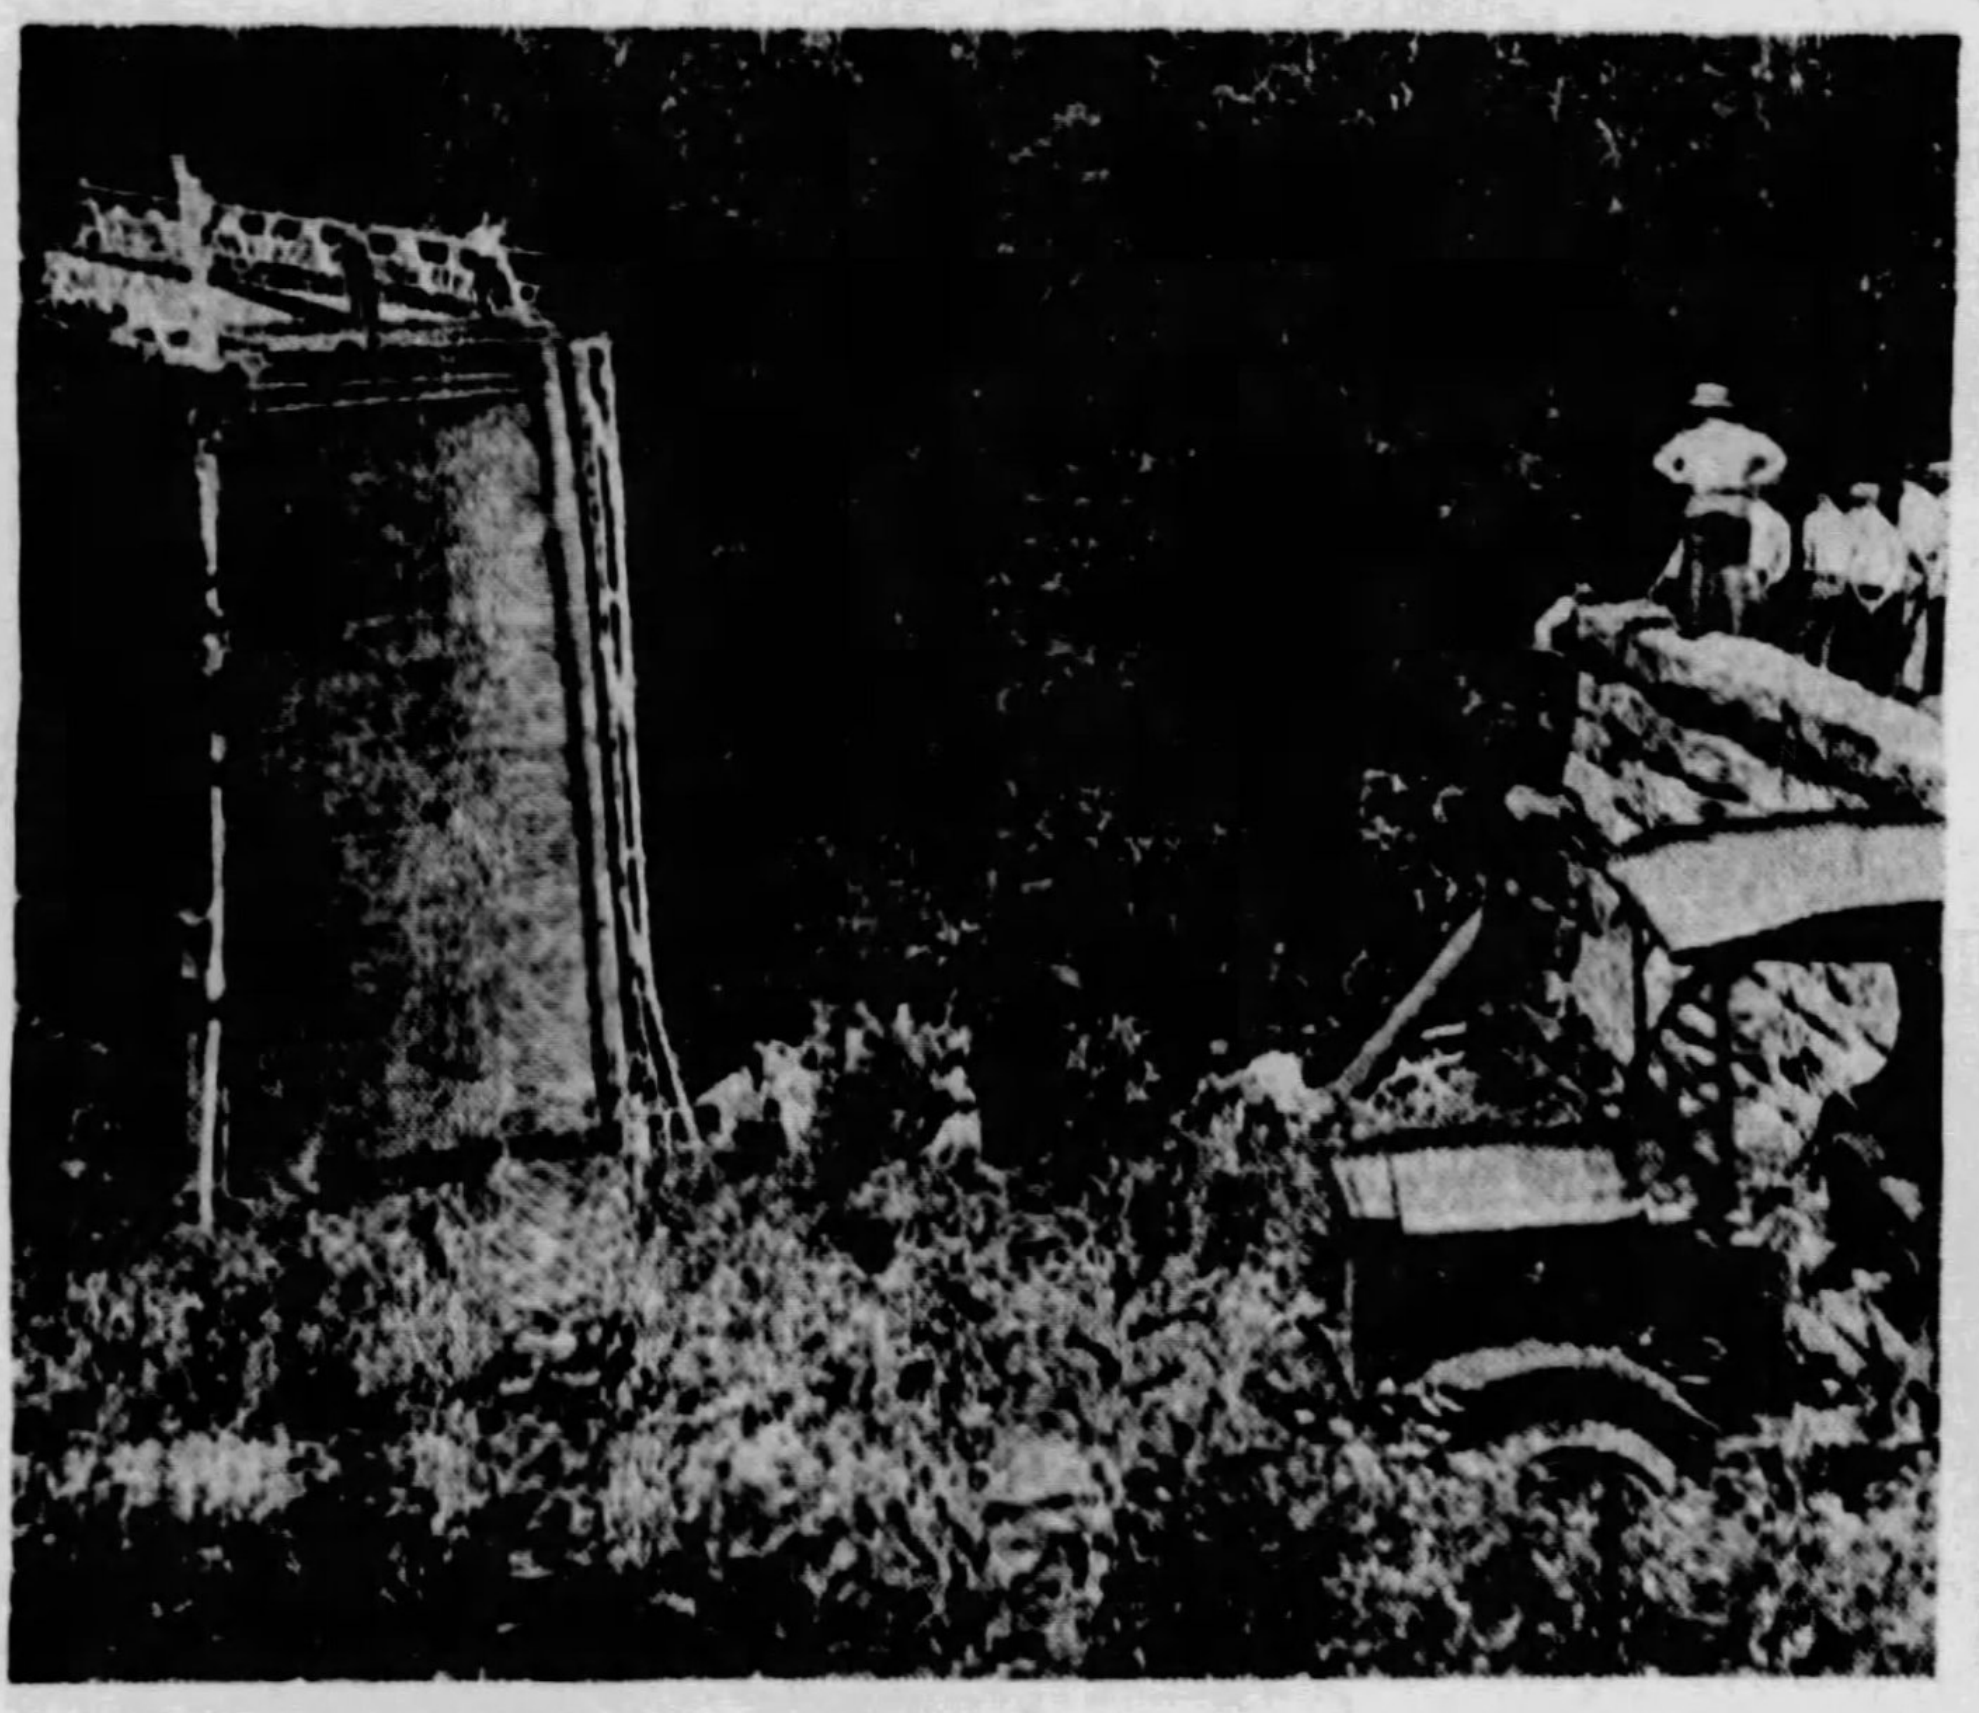
The fire was on the sixth floor of the building, in quarters occupied by Samuel Engleman proprietor of a ladies hosiery shop Engleman, who lives at 13 Forbes Terrace, is out of town, police learned. They questioned Theodore Bronk, of 833 East Ohio street, who had been left in charge of the store. Bronk, police say, stated he left the store yesterday, leaving Engleman in the place, the owner having not yet left town.

COW HOLLOW -:- Span Collapses, Kills One -:- PERILS OTHERS



ONE DEAD

Caught under this 20-ton steam shovel when Cow Hollow Bridge, near Mayview, collapsed, John Egloff, Fourth street, North Braddock, died in Mayview City Hospital after both legs were amputated.



RAINS

The bridge, a county span, collapsed (as above) under the weight of a truck and the shovel, according to County Engineer V. R. Covell's investigation. It is thought that recent rains might have loosened the foundations, but concrete and steel pillars were found to be sound.

JAMMED

Egloff was imprisoned (above) for more than five hours while nurses and physicians attended him in attempts to relieve pain. Opiates were administered, the caterpillars of the shovel having crushed him across the thighs. This photo shows rescue work.

ASSASSIN OF OBREGON GUARDED

used by anti-Catholics in Mexico.

Police said the slayer's shirt had on it the initials "J. J. G." They were investigating the theory that the assassin might be Juan Jose Gonzales, alleged to have been the driver of the automobile from which bombs were thrown last year in an attempt to kill Obregon.

Friends Go in Power

Detective Alvaro Basail, who investigated this attempt on Obregon's life, declared that the man had been among the previous plotters.

Basail, who was arrested some months ago on a charge of blackmailing Catholics, was looking out from behind the bars of his cell as the slayer was brought into the jail. He exclaimed:

"I recognize that face; I have his picture among my collection of plotters against Obregon."

President Calles issued an emergency order removing the heads of the Mexico City police department and putting in charge new officials who have been among Obregon's closest supporters. Apparently his purpose was to give the general's staunchest friends absolute control in handling developments following the assassination of their leader.

Fear Wide Plot

Gen. Roberto Cruz was supplanted as chief of police by Gen. Antonio Rios Zertuche, one of Obregon's closest friends. Arturo R. Orci, another Obregon adherent, became secertary general of the police headquarters.

Calles also issued peremptory orders that the police and army officials co-operate immediately in an investgation of the assassination in an effort to determine whether it was an irresponsible act or the result of a deep political plot.

Polise said the assassination was one of a series planned, by which a number of statesmen were to have been removed. Evidence that the crime was premeditated was found in a papr discovered in the pocket of the slayer. It was addressed "To My Family" and said:

Expects Death

"Knowing that I will die in carrying out my principle, I bid you farewell." It was signed simply "Juan."

Another slip of paper contained the names "Romeo, Popete, Robinson," and it was assumed that these names were of men also singled out for death. Thomas Robinson, young American mining engineer, recently married Ernestina Calles, daughter of President Calles. There are a number of Romeros prominent in Obregon ranks. Ricardo Topete is the leader of the Obregon forces in Congress.

Calles May Remain

The general opinion was that President Calles, whose term expires in December, would continue in the presidency. The Obregon political organization soon after the shooting proclaimed Calles its chief and the leader to whom that group looked to continue the policies of the revolutionary government.

The permanent congressional commission was called to meet today. This commission represents Congress when that body is not in session. It was thought that the commission would either continue Calles as President or pave the way for his continuance in office.

Gen. Obregon many times narrowly escaped assassination. Several times during the presidential campaign his headquarters was bombed.

Slayer's Ruse

The slaying came unexpectedly. Obregon was sitting at a banquet given him by political supporters at the little town of San Angel, near Mexico City. While he chatted with his hosts, a band played Mexican music and a cartoonist drew sketches of the notables.

Suddenly the cartoonist rose and approached Gen. Aaron Saenz, governor of Nueva Leon, who was seated on Obregon's left. He asked permission to show the cartoons to the guest of honor.

The man turned to Obregon, pretended to show him the sketches, and then, with a gun which he had concealed under the papers, fired directly into the President-elect's body.

"Let's Keep Him"

Obregon slumped back in his chair moaning. There was a dash for the slayer and guns and knives were pulled. He was in imminent danger but Gen. Cruz jumped in front of him and held off the men who thirsted for his blood.

"No, let's keep him, we want to find out who's back of this," Cruz shouted.

Obregon was in the greatest agony as he was carried to his automobile. He died before he reached it. In a few moments the body had been taken to his home, which was already surrounded by a large force of soldiers and police. Later presidential guards on horseback were added to the guard.

AUTOMOBILE NEWS

AUTO LIFE LONGER

BETTER ROADS ADD YEARS TO CARS' USE

The average life of motor vehicles in the United States has been increased 14 per cent, largely as a result of good roads, the American Road Builders' Association declares.

A total of 1,825,581 vehicles were sent to the scrap heap during 1927, the association states. This was 12:05 per cent of the total registration at the beginning of the year, indicating that, should this average maintain, the entire stock of motor cars would be replaced every eight and one-fourth years. The average life of a motor vehicle was formerly estimated at seven years.

New York led all states in the number of cars scrapped, that state discarding 149,372 vehicles. Nevada discarded only 813 vehicles, the smallest number of all states. Arkansas held the highest junkage rate, that state discarding 16.66 per cent of all vehisles registered at the beginning of the year. South Carolina discarded only 2.8 per cent of the cars registered.

All but two states registered more vehicles in 1927 than in 1926. They were Florida and Arkansas, the former decreasing by 6,828 cars and the latter by 2,851. North Carolina recorded the largest comparative increase, that state gaining 11.88 per cent over 1926. National registration was increased 5.1 per cent.

In tabulating the figures pertaining to the discard of motor vehicles, the American Road Builders' Association has considered all cars scrapped which were registered in 1926 but not re-registered during 1927. Some of these cars, however, may have been registered in other states, making the figures for each individual state slightly in error, although the national figure would be reasonably accurate.

The following columns show in turn the number of vehicles scrapped, the number of new cars registered, and the percentage of registration increase in each state during 1927:

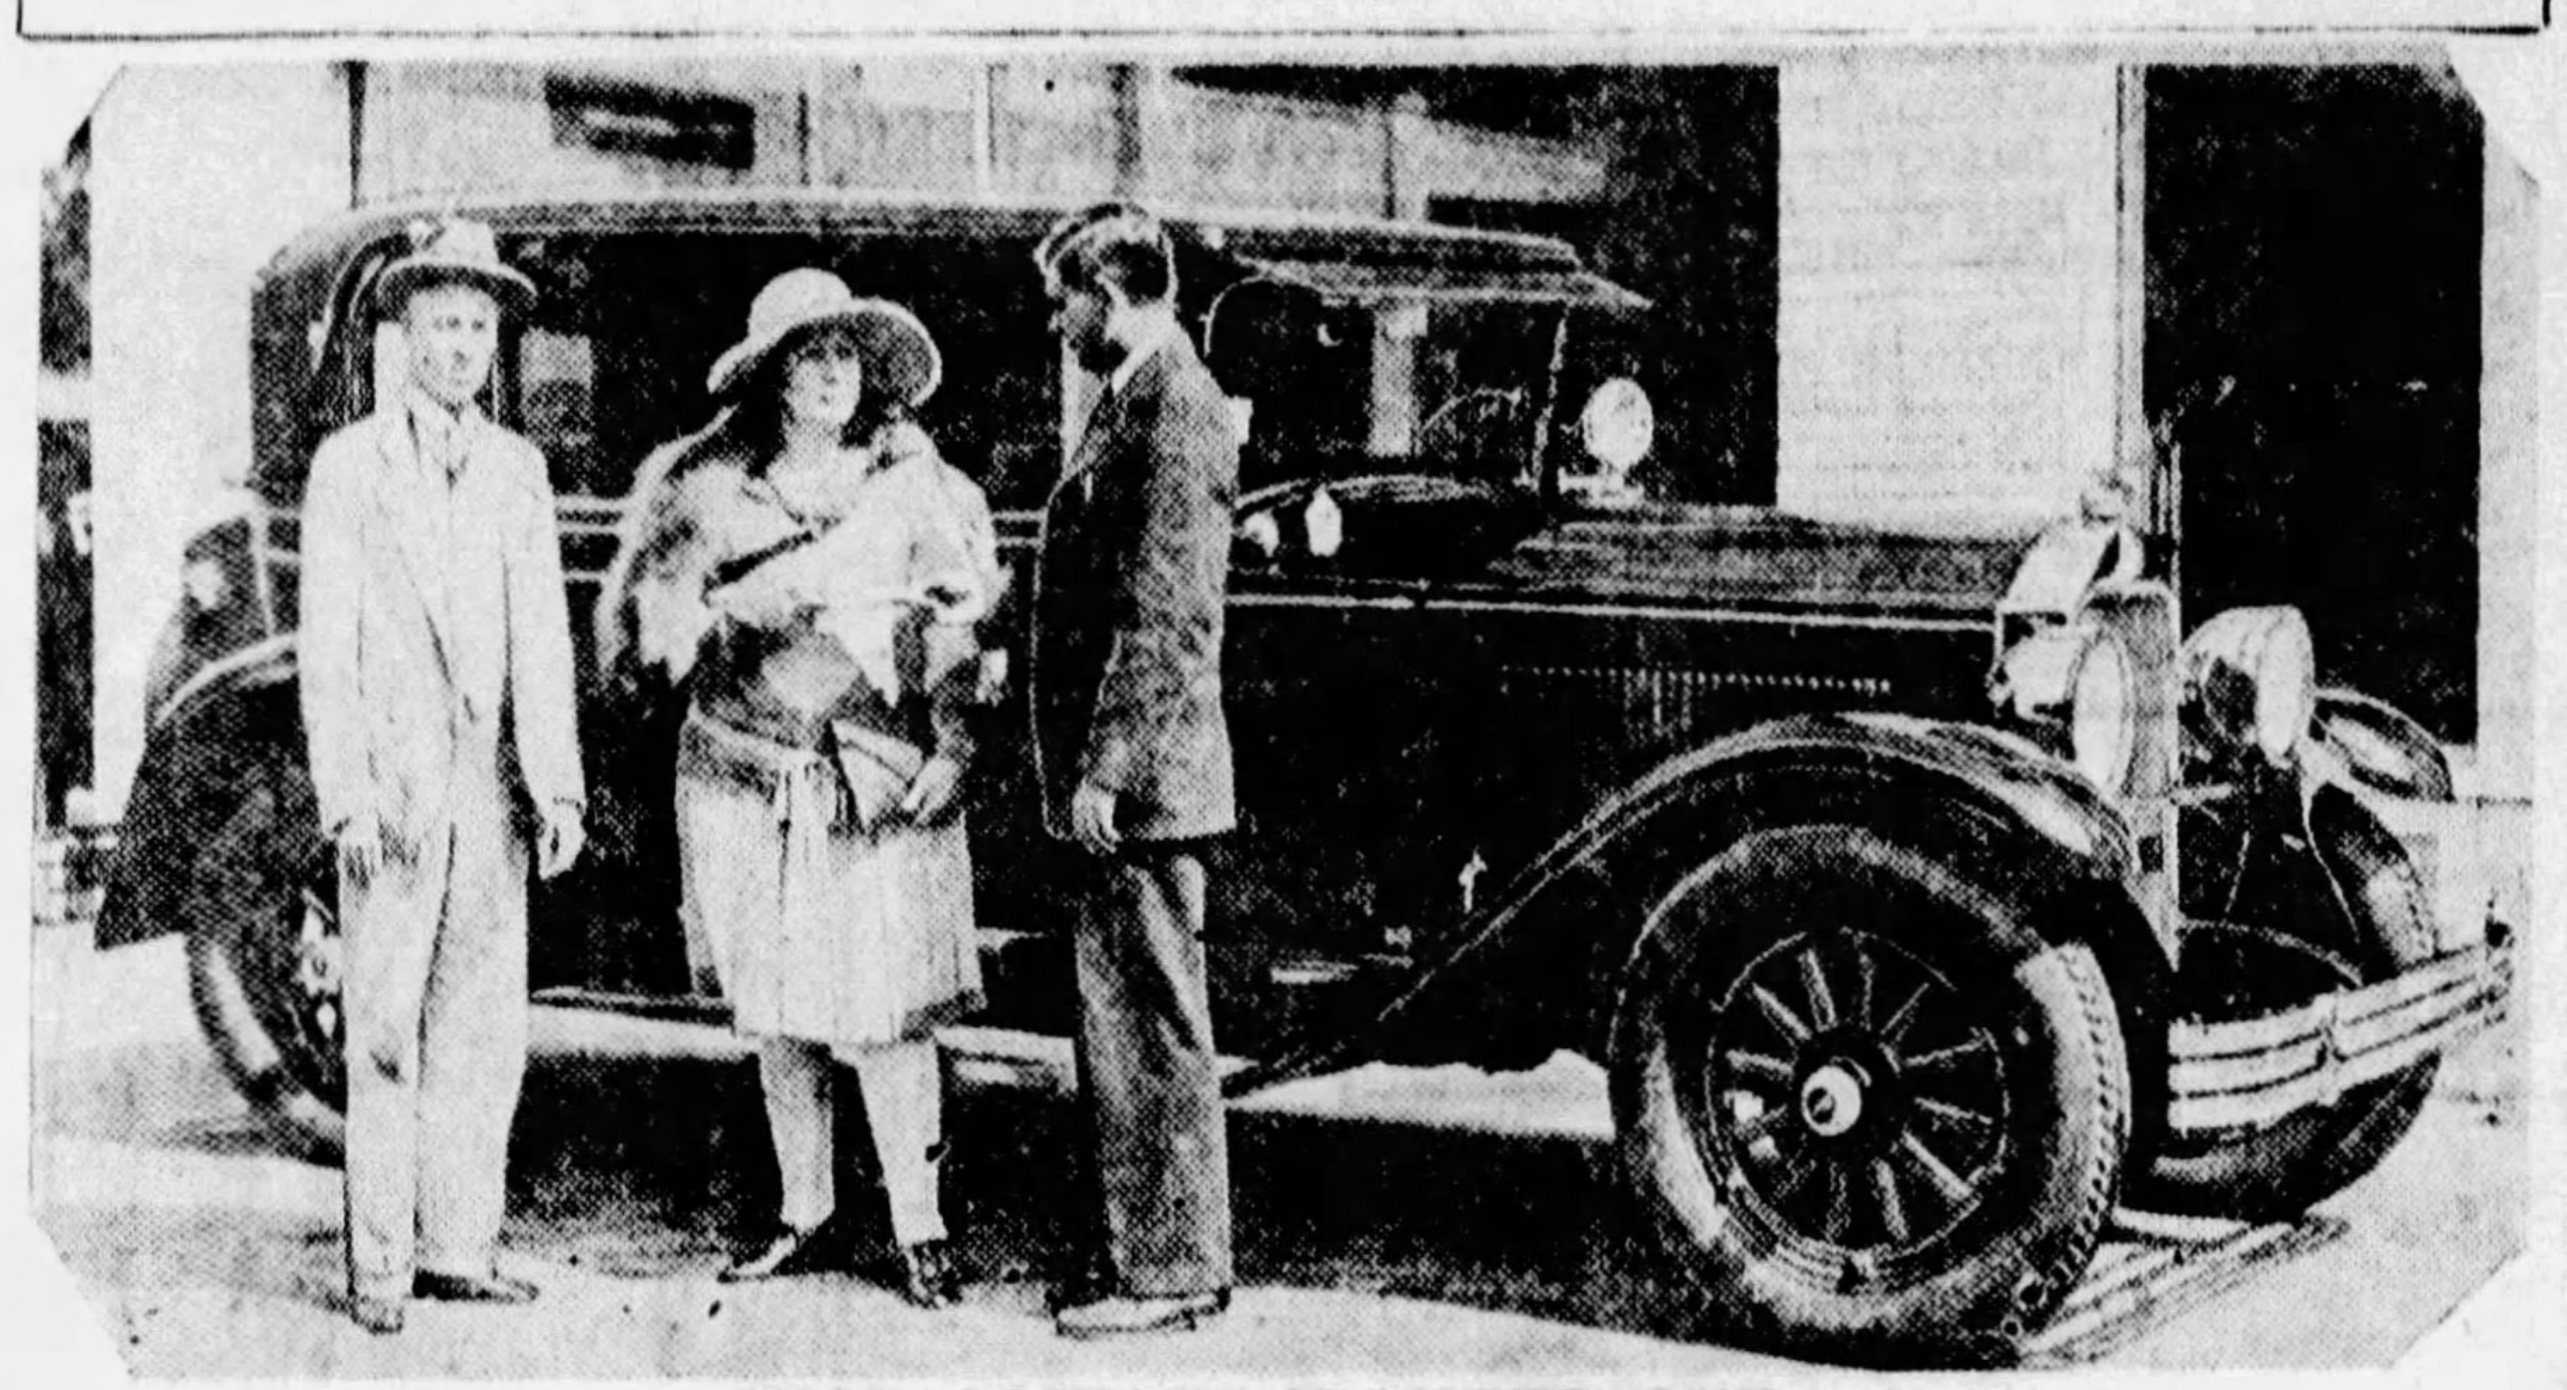
GETS MILLION AND BUYS AUTO



HAD ALWAYS WANTED ONE

When Mrs. Dorothy Smith, of Peoria, Ill., inherited $1,000,000 recently, the first purchase she made was this Buick brougham, stating that she had always wanted to be a Buick owner. Her husband is at the left and the man who sold her the car at the right.

AUTO PICNICKERS

W. E. McClelland, of Erie, who was master of ceremonies during the Oldsmobile-Pittsburgh Company outing at Conneaut Lake Saturday and Sunday.

ALONG AUTO ROW

Several hundred persons, including Oldsmobile dealers from all points in Western Pennsylvania with their families, attended a picnic at Conneaut Lake last Saturday and Sunday as guests of the Oldsmobile Pittsburgh Company. Approximately 20 Oldsmobiles loaded with dealers and members of the Oldsmobile-Pittsburgh organization left Pittsburgh Saturday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. The caravan was led by one of the first Oldsmobiles ever built, being a 1900 model and still in good running condition, despite its 28 years of service.

W. E. McClelland, the Oldsmobile dealer in Erie, who was requested by Charles Day to take charge of the dealers' entertainment, has established himself in the minds of the dealers and their families as an entertainer de luxe. Mr. McClelland kept the party in a good humor throughout their stay at the lake. A lavish entertainment arranged by Mr. McClelland for Saturday evening included a group of 12 Royal Welsh Singers, who gave a very satisfactory program. Miss Mae Martin, who represented the city of Erie as Miss Erie at the Atlantic City beauty pageant last year, also was brought to Conneaut by Mr. McClelland and entertained the dealers with her singing and dancing. Albert Kennedy Rowswell, a well-known entertainer of Pittsburgh, gave a monologue which was received with great enthusiasm.

Mr. Day plans to make the picnic an annual affair and hopes to be able to enlist the services of Mr. McClelland to take charge of the entertaining for many years to come.

George F. Reed, assistant to the president of the Moon Motor Car Company, eastern representative of that company, has moved his Pittsburgh offices to the East End Savings and Trust Building, Highland and Penn avenues, an announcement from Mr. Reed states. Mr. Reed formerly was the Moon distributor for the Pittsburgh district.

Tentative plans for the opening of the Glick Auto Supply Company's new building at 3534-42 Bigelow boulevard, are now being made by that organization. The new structure will contain 10,000 square feet of floor space and an additional 7,500 square feet of parking space. Battery and tire service departments and oiling and greasing departments, together with offices and sales rooms, will be located on the first floor. Additional offices and storage rooms will be located on the second floor. The structure is being built of steel and brick.

STAGE AND SCREEN ACTIVITIES DETAILED IN PICTURES AND GOSSIP ABOUT PLAYERS

Breezy Comment Inspired by Ramble Along Hollywood Highways Coupled With News of Our Own Theaters

DIFFERENT GIRLS -:- HAVE DIFFERENT TASTES -:- CONCERNING PETS

Renee Adoree hasn't taken Skookum Chuck from Barney Google. This kid is Escamillo, mascot of the company filming "Tide of Empire."

Lew Cody, not exactly bashful in the presence of the female of the species, is rather astonished to find himself the pet of so many of the fair creatures all at once. He found himself thus surrounded on reporting for work in "The Single Man," new Cody-Aileen Pringle picture.

Raquel Torres also finds something to play with in Bum, a little cub which appears with her in "Tide of Empire," gold rush film.

Jetta Goudal Gets New Lease To Life on Screen—Thanks to Judgment of Marion Davies

By REGINA CREWE.

(Copyright, 1928, King Features Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD July 18.

IT SEEMS that the generous courtesy and good judgment of Marion Davies has given Jetta Goudal a new lease of screen life. The talented Jetta, as you know, has run into all sorts of difficulties because of alleged "temperamentality." Jetta insists she is the least "temperamental" person in pictures. But adds with a Mona Lisa-like smile that she always fights for what she believes to be right. And, of course, supervisors and directors believe themselves paid for deciding just such questions. At any rate, Jetta and De Mille waved a good-by forever to one another after lots of battling.

It looked for a while as though Jetta was all washed up. But along came Marion Davies and insisted that the Mercurial artist be given a big role in Marion's drama, "Her Cardboard Lover." As was to be expected, Jetta gave a great performance. And now she has been signed by David Wark Griffith for his next picture. "The Love Song," which is the new title for "La Paiva." So Jetta is back on top of the heap again. And as ingratitude is not one of her sins, she renders gracious thanks to Marion Davies.

Liela Hyams, daughter of the footlights, whose parents are the old vaude team, Hyams and McIntyre, has been actually, finally and irrevocably signed up as William Haines' leading lady in "Alias, Jimmy Valentine." Half the gorgeous girls in Metro were up for the part, but after a lot of hems and an equal number of haws, Leila got the job. She is at present free-lancing, having just completed a Warner Brothers contract.

Anita Page has had her voice dissected. But she's doing quite nicely, thank you. It is all because of these "talking" pictures. Over at the University of Southern California they have an instrument called the telegraphone. It enables the college scientists to test, analyze and repair voices. And the picture people are vitally interested. Prof. W. R. MacDonald, in charge of the experiments, declares that the ladies of the screen will encounter far greater difficulties than the men. The masculine voice is naturally heavier, while feminine voice vibrations are from two to five times higher. Thus certain sounds, such as "s" or "z", "x" and "p" become either hisses or blasts in reproduction. But it is possible to remedy this by a process of "filtering' the voice in the recording apparatus, as well as by correcting methods of speech. So when they get through with little Anita she won't recognize the old voices.

Every fan has at least a bowing acquaintance with the Metro lion and the Pathe rooster who peer forth from the main titles of aPthe and Metro pictures. Soon you'll have a speaking acquaintance, too. For hereafter the Metro monarch will roar at you from the screen, while the Pathe bird will fill your favorite movie theater with his "cock-a-doodle-do." No telling where this sound stuff will take us to before they're through with it.

STAGE SHOWS OF FUTURE

"In Love With Love," next week's offering of the George Sharp Players in the Pitt, is by Vincent Lawrence. "In Love With Love" was produced originally by William Harris, Jr.

In "Nothing But the Truth," which the Nixon Players will present in the Nixon next week, with matinees Wednesday and Saturday, Harry Bannister will play the part of Bob, the role played by William Collier in New York and Louise Quinn will play the part of Bob's sweetheart.

Miss Marcia Byron, leading woman of "The Captive," now in the Gayety, who flew to Philadelphia in a plane from Rogers Field last Sunday, with Bernice Kane, also of "The Captive" cast, returned converted to the air mode of travel.

HARMAN ORCHESTRA PLAYING IN SANDERS

Dave Harman and his Greater Orchestra are playing in Sanders this week. Next week Ted Weems and his orchestra will be the Sanders' musical attraction. The Weems' unit will come direct from the Steel Pier, Atlantic City.

VETERANS' AUXILIARY REUNION TOMORROW

The first annual reunion of the Ladies' Auxiliaries, Veterans of Foreign Wars of Allegheny County, will be held tomorrow evening about the Homer Smith. It will be attended by a number of state officers of the organization, including Mrs. Monica Kinney, senior vice president; Mrs. Blanche Byron, junior vice president; Mrs. Genevieve Schaaf and Mrs. Van Zandt, color guards; Mrs. Myrtle Sutherland, state musician, and Mrs. Margaret A. Heyl, chief of staff, department of Pennsylvania. The boat will leave Wood street dock at 8:30 p. m.

Philadelphia, Pa.

Gentlemen:-

We, the undersigned, were pleased to know that Amoco Gas and Amoco Motor Oil were used in the establishment of a world's Four-Cylinder record, by a Whippet Roadster, on May 2nd, 1928, on the Atlantic City Motor Speedway, under the supervision of the American Automobile Association, Sanction #1971, and as dealers of Willys-Knight and Whippet automobiles, highly recommend to these owners, the use of Amoco Gas and Amoco Motor Oil, feeling that it is a motor fuel that possesses every point in economical Motor Car operation.

Yours very truly

HERE'S an "O.K." that is an "O.K."! Not the word of a single dealer--but the united and unanimous opinion of the members of the Philadelphia Whippet-Knight Dealers' Association.

Notice that they say that AMOCO-GAS "possesses every point in economical motor car operation" and that they "highly recommend it to their owners."

These men know! They've seen AMOCO-GAS and AMOCO Motor Oil demonstrate their worth in their own cars as well as in the test in which a Whippet Roadster made the 500-mile record for 4-cylinder cars on the Atlantic City Speedway.

And AMOCO-GAS will show the same economy, the same superior performance in any make of car that it has shown in Whippets and Willys-Knights!

The AMERICAN OIL CO.
Affiliated with Pan American Petroleum & Transport Co.
General Offices: Baltimore, Md.

On May 2, 1928, a Whippet Roadster timed by the A. A. A. set a new record for 4-cylinder cars--averaging 51.615 miles per hour for 500 miles.

AMOCO-GAS and AMOCO Motor Oil were used exclusively.

Get Flesh On Your "Skinny" Body

New, Tasteless YEAST and IRON Builds Up Weight in 3 Weeks —or Pay Nothing

"Satin-Smooth Skin"

"I have always been troubled with pimples and blemishes on my back and shoulders which were noticeable in the spotlight. After taking only two treatments of IRONIZED YEAST, my skin is smooth as satin."—Miss T. B., Fort Worth, Tex.

Don't Envy the Graceful, Well-Rounded Form Learn the Secret of How to Have One

Women and men are amazed at the magic benefits of IRONIZED YEAST. Thin, weak bodies are brought up in weight and strength. Flesh is made round and firm. Hollows filled out. Skin made satiny smooth with the glow of girlhood. How is this done?

Ironized Yeast is two tonics in one—weight-building Yeast and strengthening Iron. The yeast is the same used in making malt and which makes malt so beneficial. It is specially cultured and concentrated to give the utmost in flesh-producing value. So it is natural that after taking IRONIZED YEAST in a single course treatment you will notice an amazing improvement in your health, appearance and spirits. The skin loses its sallow, pimply, blotchy look, pounds of good flesh are taken on.

So don't have a skinny, weak body that looks as though it had never been fed enough. Don't go around with an ugly skin. Go to your druggist today, and get a generous test treatment of IRONIZED YEAST—pleasant, tasty, tablets in a handy bottle. They do not cause gas or bloating and are safe for everybody—contain no harmful drugs.

Try it on "Money-Back" Offer

Go today to any drug store and get a full size treatment. If, after this generous trial, you are not delighted with effects, ask for your money back. It will be refunded immediately. If inconvenient to buy from druggist, send $1.00 direct to the IRONIZED YEAST CO., Atlanta, Ga., Desk 319-PH.

CAUTION! While the amazing health-building value of IRONIZED YEAST tablets has been clearly and positively demonstrated in cases of lack of energy, indigestion, constipation, skin eruptions, poor complexion, and a generally weakened physical and mental condition, IRONIZED YEAST should not be used by anyone who OBJECTS to having weight increased to normal.—© I. Demonstrating Blood Cell Therapy

FROM a careful study of hundreds of cases of the most varying character it would appear that a basic healing principle of the most far reaching importance has been discovered.

A principle that takes nature into partnership, gives her the elements she needs to work with and enables her to carry to the broken down tissues of an ailing body just the elements she needs in order to restore health.

People all over Pittsburgh are telling their own story how they were rescued from Anemia, High Blood Pressure, Faulty Metabolism, Bright's Disease, Rheumatism, Hardening of the Arteries, Neuritis and the supposedly incurable diseases, all of which sounds like magic, yet these astonishing benefits have been clearly demonstrated.

The curative force and power lies within the body, and you can be made well and free from pain and disease if your Blood Cells are normal and clean.

WARREN YEGGS' LOOT $40,000

WARREN, Pa., July 18.—An honest safe cracker worked two hours yesterday to open the cash vault in a safe blown open Sunday by yeggs. Inside the vault was about $5,000 the burglars failed to get. Their total loot was $40,000 from an accessible cash drawer, officials of the Metzger-Wright Company announced after a checkup.

The yeggs blew open the safe door, but were frustrated by the inner cash vault, although they knocked off the combination and tried to blow it open.

FUND GIVEN FOR STUDY OF METROPOLITAN PLAN

Council yesterday voted to give the Commission to Study Municipal Consolidation, which is working on the plan to establish a metropolitan district in Pittsburgh, $4,500 due from its original appropriation. The sum of $13,500 was set aside by Council for the movement.

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

by HELEN ROWLAND

WOMAN'S EASIEST JOB

THE old-fashioned girl may have won men with flattery; but the feat of a modern girl's life is to avoid flattering them.

No matter what you do or say, a man, in his childlike innocence, always takes it as a compliment. He is the world's greatest optimist!

He is complimented if you tell him that you trust him—and positively thrilled if you tell him that he's "dangerous."

HELEN ROWLAND

He is frankly flattered if you say that you like to dance with him—and secretly flattered if you prefer to "sit out" the dances with him.

He is flattered if you look up to him and lean on him—and equally flattered if you baby him and mother him.

If you telephone him, you are "running after him"—and if you never telephone him, you are "just playing a waiting game."

He is flattered if you applaud him for his generosity and kindness—and more flattered if you reproach him for his "cruelty and neglect."

It always pleases him to be told that he has nice, honest eyes—and it positively delights him to be told that his eyes are wicked and inscrutable.

If nature gave him curly hair, he is grateful for the gift—but if she didn't he thanks Heaven for the escape!

NOTHING can shake his aplomb or his self-complacency!

He is flattered if you are pleasant to him—and more flattered if you quarrel with him.

If you let him kiss you, he takes it for granted that it is because you found him irresistible—and if you don't, he suspects that you are practicing great self-denial or "just putting up a bluff."

If you admire him in evening clothes, he is highly complimented—but if you tell him that you prefer him in sport clothes, he takes it as a tribute to his manly type of beauty.

A woman is constantly asking a man "WHY" he loves her; but the only time when a man asks a woman "why," is when she says that she DOESN'T love him. That is the world's only mystery, to HIM!

He can swallow your flattery straight or diluted, without blinking. Sarcasm and raillery roll right off his vanity like water off a slicker. Nothing penetrates, except the cheers and applause!

Never TRY to flatter a man. Just act perfectly natural—and leave the rest to HIM!

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

Thursday, July 19

THE sidereal operations for this day point to some perplexities and complications as well as annoyances and worries, which it will take resolution and courage to offset. There may be limitations and restraints in connection with cherished plans, but practice patience, prudence and sign papers cautiously. There may be benefits in employment and some personal satisfaction to compensate for anixieties.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of some delays and complicated affairs, but with resolution, optimism and shunning all possibilities of fraud and deception, matters may assume fair shape. Employment and domestic or social contacts may modify depression and disappointments.

A child born on this day may be inclined to the singular or mysterious, to secret societies or subtlety of conduct.

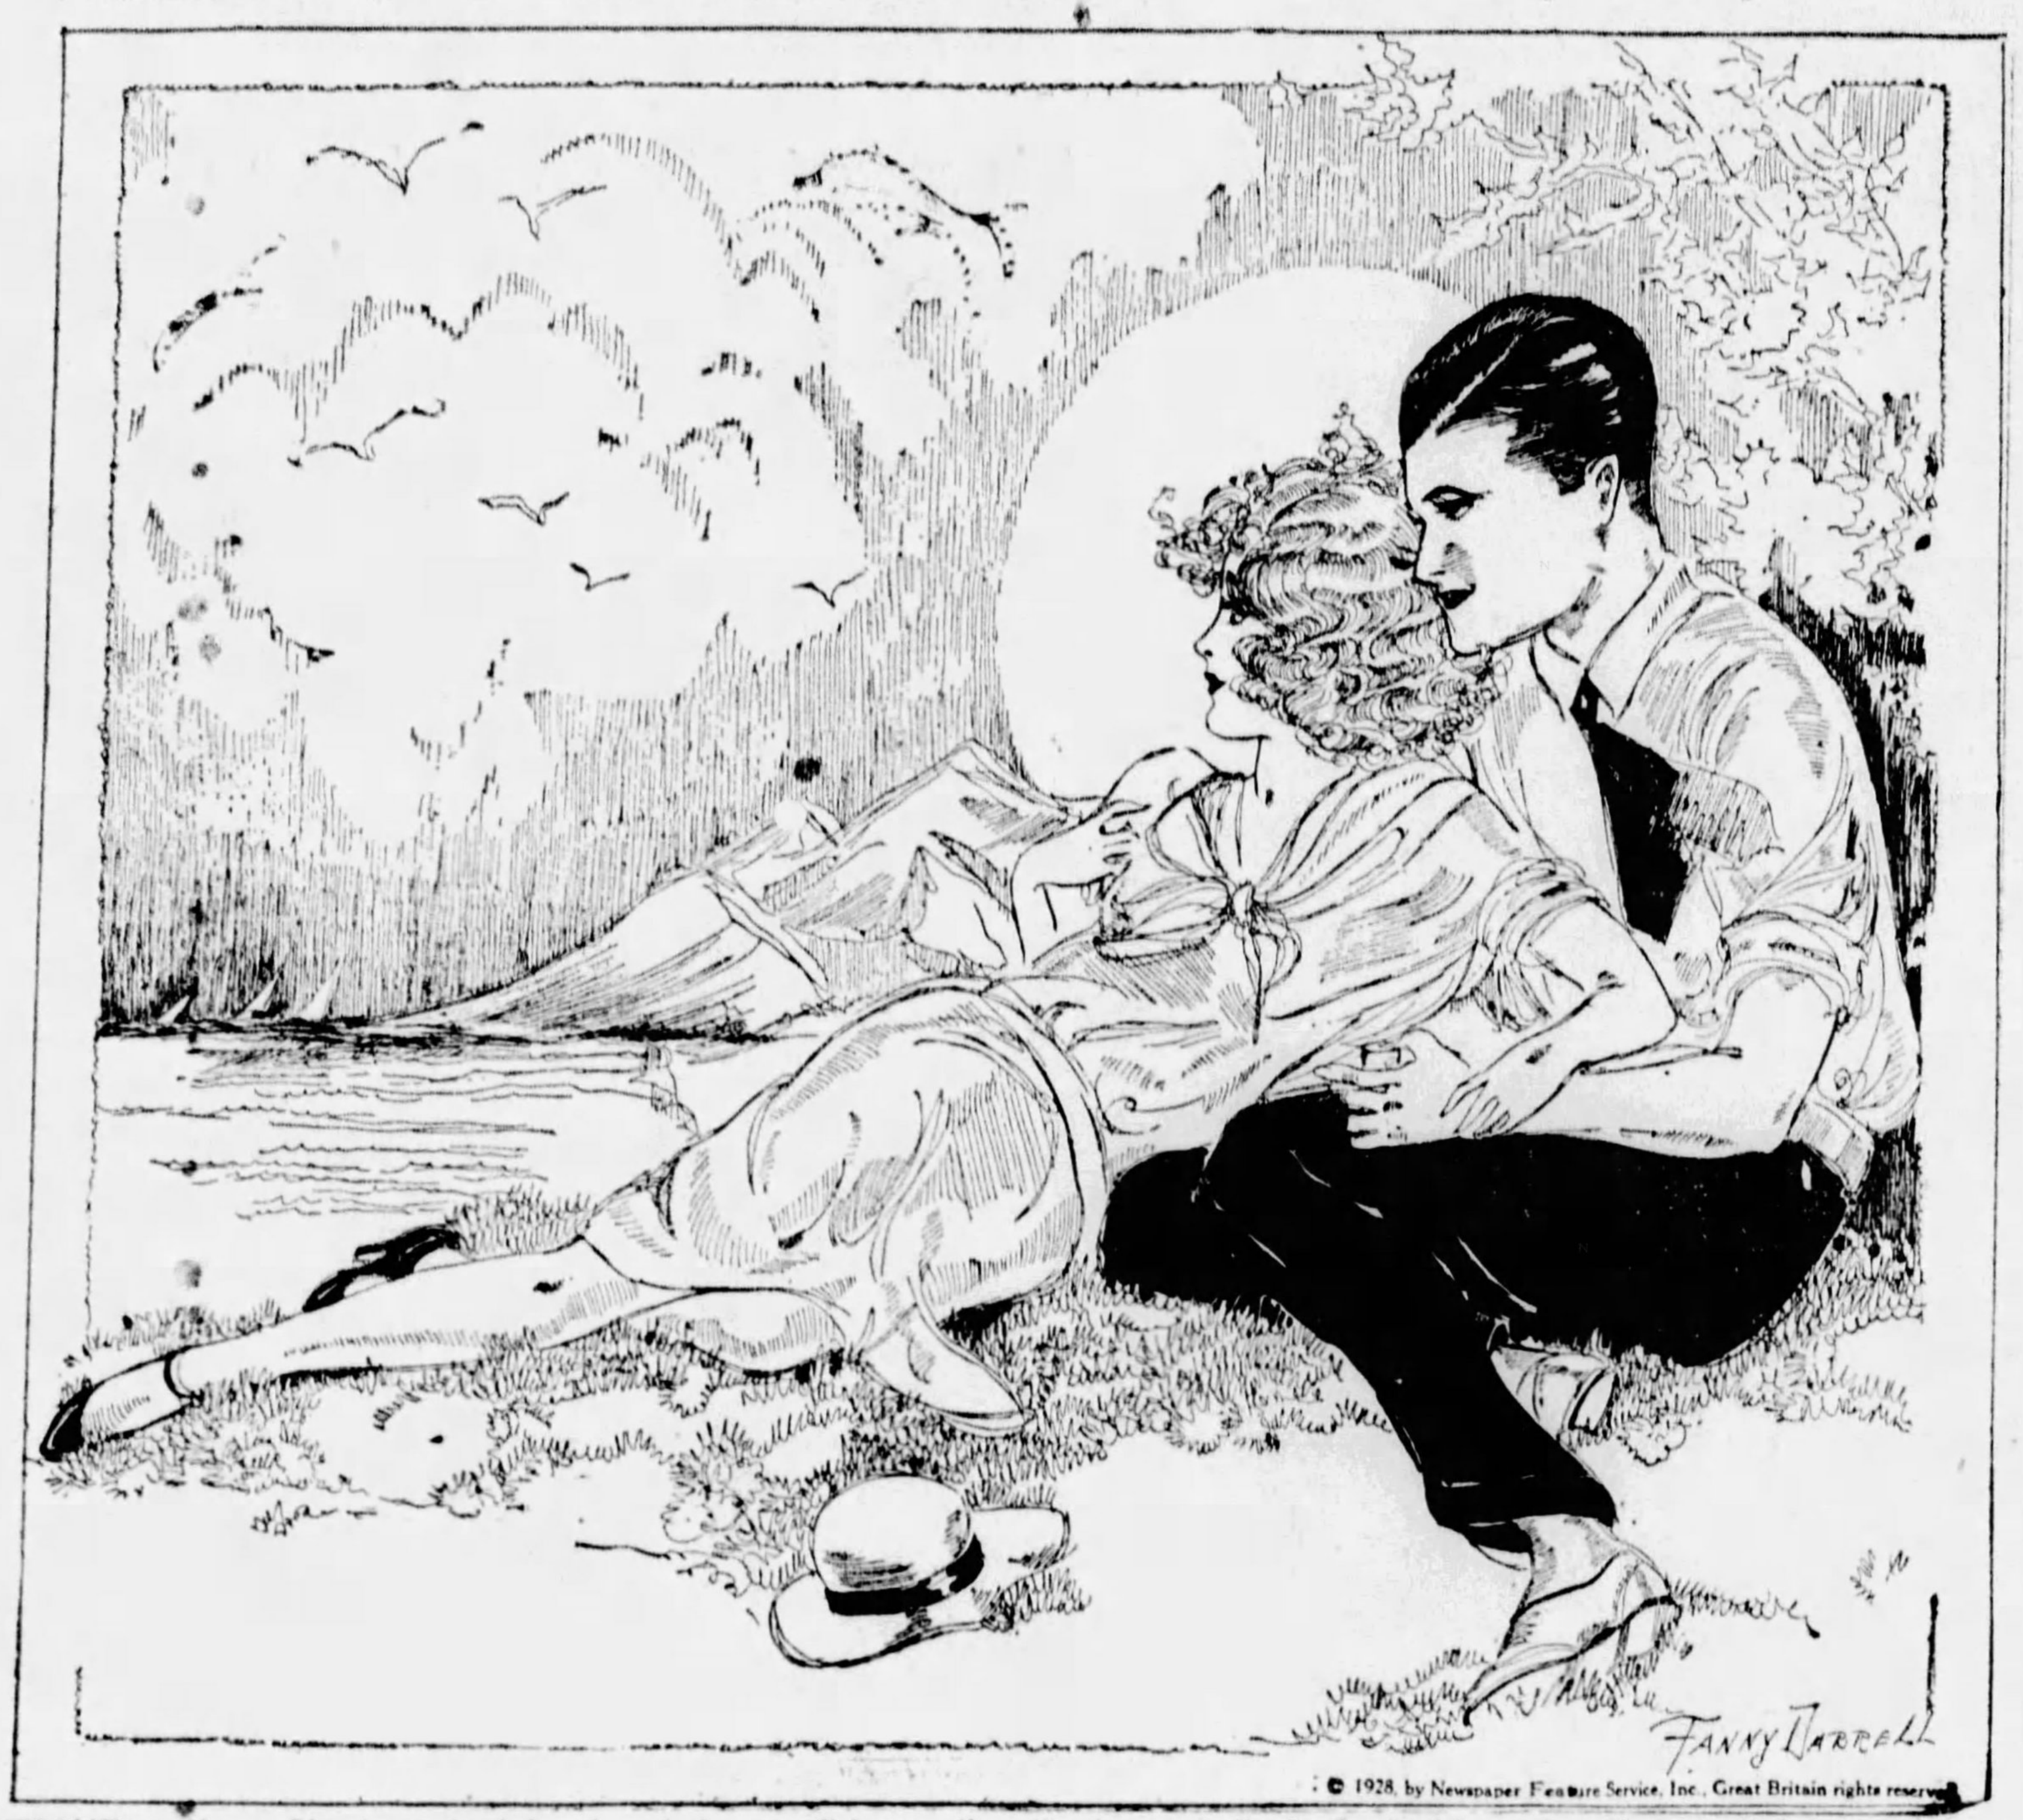
When things in our environments bother us, it is because, something in ourselves is already bothering us.—K. T. RAMISAMI.

Pure of Cucumber

One quart chicken stock, or part milk and part stock, or all milk; four tablespoons flour; four tablespoons butter or other fat; three cups pared cucumber; one slice onion, salt and pepper.

Make a white sauce of the liquid, flour and fat. Cut the cucumbers in small pieces. Parboil 10 minutes. Drain, add chopped onion, cook in the smallest possible quantity of water until tender. Rub through a sieve. Add to the white sauce. Season with salt and pepper, reheat, beat with an egg-beater, and serve.

WAITING FOR THEIR SHIP -:- By Fanny Darrell



© 1928, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc., Great Britain rights reserved.

"WAIT until our ship comes in, beloved, and then you'll have all the wonderful things in the world. Priceless jewels from the tombs of kings; the finest silks from India; the perfumes of Araby; all the riches of the world shall be poured into your little hands. Persia shall send her finest carpets for your little feet to tread upon; tapestries, paintings, beauties from every land shall be given to you that your lovely eyes may feast ever on beauty. But best of all, the load of love that the ship is bringing to you and to me, shall be ever with us to lighten and brighten our days. And even if the cargo isn't as rich as we think, still there's the love left, and who can deny that this is the greatest of all gifts, my dearest one? Your love for me, and mine for you! So what matter if there be nothing but you and me and a wee home full of love and happiness. For that's all the riches of the world in one and material things fade before the richness of its beauty."

Eleanor Is Anxious to Keep Her Secret From Veritzen

GLAD indeed was I that Dicky had chosen to talk to Lillian and me jointly about Eleanor Lincoln's wish to keep her posing secret, especially from Philip Veritzen. I was wild with curiosity, tinged vaguely with resentment, but I would have died rather than permit myself to ask Dicky a question concerning it. Lillian, however, had no hesitancy in quizzing him.

"What's the matter with the girl?" she asked wrinkling her nose at me before Dicky turned to look at her. He almost caught her grimace at that, and I smothered a smile just in time. "Weren't the poses successful?"

"Successful!" Dicky exclaimed, and the expression which came into his eyes was one I know well. It is one which marks the successful fulfilling of some artistic plan, and it transfigures him. I have seen the same look upon Lillian's face at the completion of some especially difficult piece of advertising copy. I fancy every man or woman who does creative work wears it with varying frequency.

"I don't know, of course, what I'll be able to do with them," he went on with the diffidence which often oddly accompanies his moments of triumph, "but the poses are whizzes, and the sketches are as near good as anything I've ever done."

"They'll probably get by, then," Lillian commented dryly. "How many did you make?"

He told her, and she lifted her eyebrows in patent astonishment.

"Some work you've done this week, lad," she commented. "Why the rush—to get through before Phil got back?"

Dicky nodded.

"That's the reason Miss Lincoln gave me," he said. "It took some hustling, but I'm all finished, won't have to make another sketch—if it turns out that I can't."

"Aha! leaving yourself a loophole, aren't you?" Lillian queried maliciously, and as Dicky's face reddened she laughed gleefully.

"I don't blame you," she said. "There are more tiresome jobs than sketching a pretty girl in surroundings like The Larches. But you interest me strangely. Tell me what strangle hold has Phil got on the girl to make her so anxious that the knowledge of her posing be kept from him?"

"It's very simple," he returned. "She's wild to become a stage star, and he's given her a tacit promise that she shall be one, if she walks the chalk mark he lays out for her. And one of the rules, of course, is his perennial one of no publicity. Just how he figures that those illustrations with no hint of the model's identity would bring her into publicity, I can't fathom, but that's what he told her.

"But she's the sort of young woman who likes to have her cake and eat it too. Also, she hasn't any scruples about white lies, even cream-colored ones. Therefore she told me she would pose if I could keep her doing so from Veritzen until after the book is published. I fancy that not knowing the old guy's reputation for possessing a concrete heart, she imagines she can soften his wrath. But I hadn't any notion that Jerry Ticer had seen me sketching her. I must get hold of him right away."

"Better let Madge handle him," Lillian advised. "With your usual sweet, gentle ways he'd be frightened out of the few senses he has and you'd never know how many people he's told. Madge, you'd better drive down to The Larches and see Jerry and his mother right away. Then you'll be able to nip the thing, perhaps. While you're gone I'll tell Katie that the sketches are meant for the government secret service to help trace a gang of spies. That'll hold her quiet for awhile unless she bursts. And of course, all the rest of our set will keep mum for you, Dicky-bird."

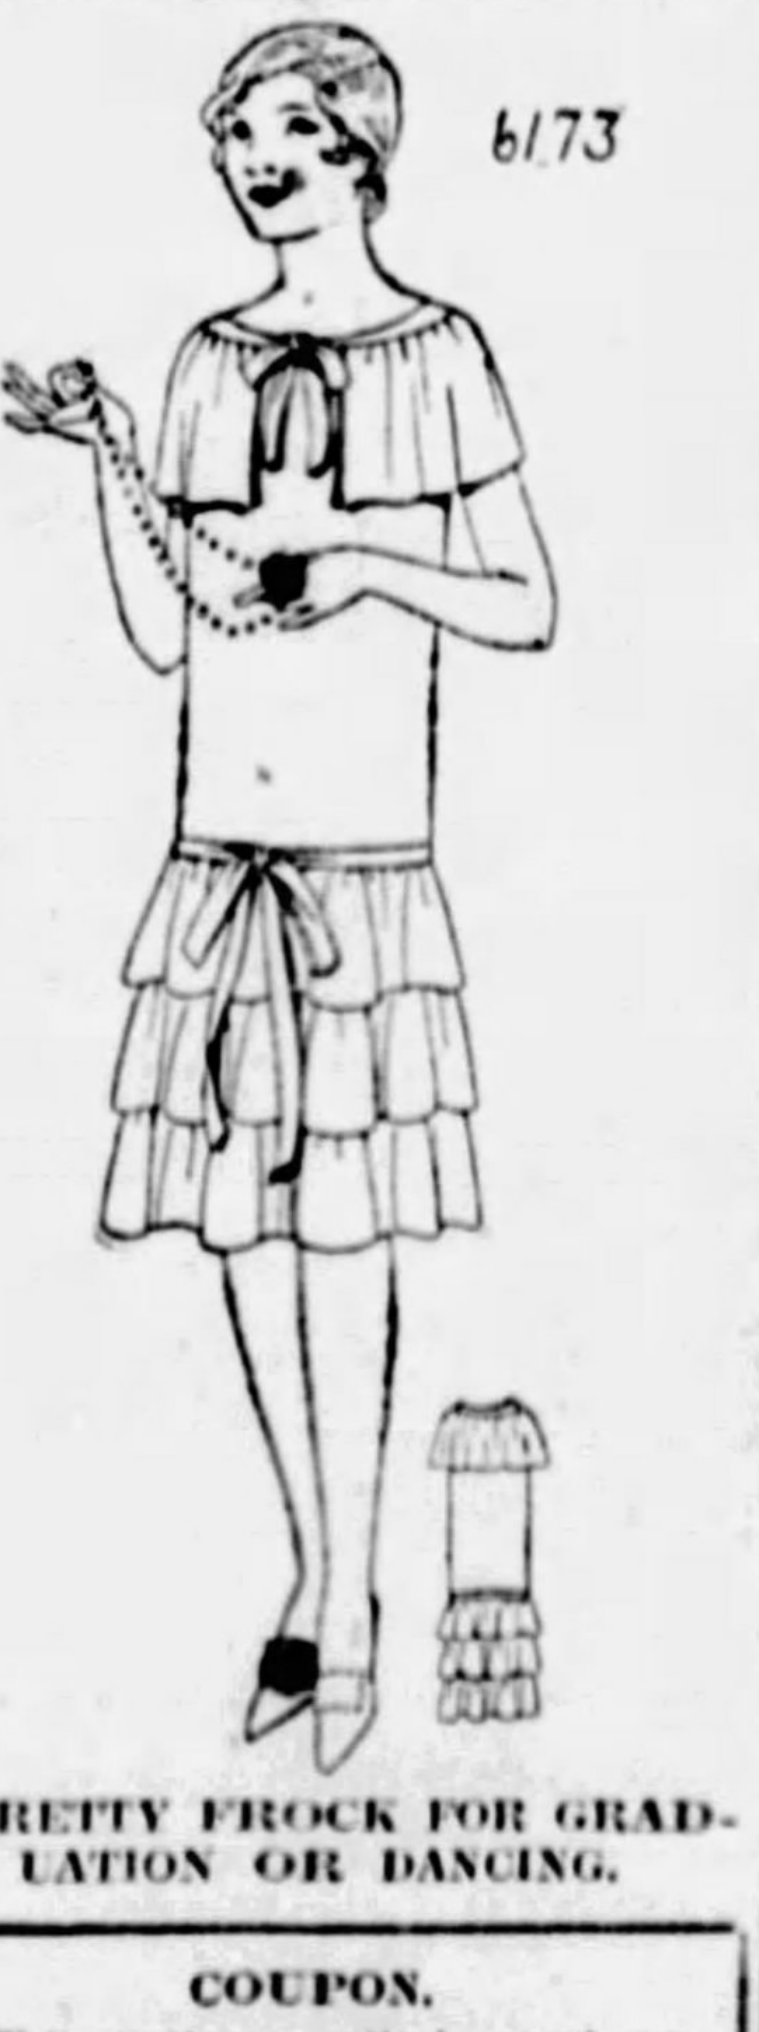
The Sun-Telegraph Fifteen Cent Pattern



A PRETTY FROCK FOR GRADUATION OR DANCING.

Chiffon, crepe, crepe de chine or taffeta, as well as tulle or voile are suitable for this pleasing model.

The pattern is cut in four sizes: 14, 16, 18 and 20 years. A 16-year size will require 4⅝ yards of 39-inch material. For a sash of narrow ribbon, as illustrated, 2⅜ yards will be required.

Cire Substitute

Stimulating a silver screen a lavendar-gray shade of cire lace so closely resembles metallic lace that one can scarcely detect the difference. For a summer dance frock this cire substitute is far more suitable than the metal lace.

COUPON.

This pattern will be sent on receipt of 15 cents (silver or 2c and 1c stamps). Make number, name, address, etc., plain. Send to Pattern Department, The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

by Royal S. Copeland M.D.

U.S. Senator from New York

Teeth Often Source of Deep Troubles

ONE of the most disagreeable of the common diseases of adult life is known as "Riggs disease" or "pyorrhoea." This is a pus infection of the gums in which the tissues become soggy and inflamed. The gums draw away from the teeth and, without their support, the teeth get loose.

DR. COPELAND

You can see that the pus poured out from the diseased tissues in this region must be swallowed. Taken into the stomach, the infection is carried to other parts of the body.

No matter what may be the location of the tissues where pus is produced, every part of the body is in danger while there is pus anywhere. Every person who has pyorrhoea is in danger of other ailments, each of which may be worse than the first trouble.

I doubt if the gums would be attacked by this disease if there were not a lowering of resistance from some cause. Nature is very generous to those who obey her rules. On the other hand, she is very resentful of disobedience.

Before considering what may be done in the treatment of pyorrhoea, you should make a survey to find out what is wrong with your habits. Find out what disturbances are involving your body and lowering your resistance to disease.

If I were to outline the rules of procedure in the conduct and control of Riggs disease, I think I should establish this order:

1. Make a thorough examination of the victim, to determine if the ears are free from discharge, if the nose and nasal sinuses are without serious catarrhal condition, if the stomach, gall bladder, liver, kidneys, generative organs and intestines are performing as they should. Find out if these organs are free from disease.

2. Careful inquiry to determine if exercise, fresh air, sunlight, good water and proper food are the habitual possessions of the victim.

3. An examination to make sure that the teeth are clean, free from tartar and other deposits, and without abscess or cavity.

4. Lastly, to select some method of cleaning and stimulating the diseased gums.

These four steps are essential to the removal of pyorrhoea. Among the agents which may be employed to supply local stimulation, I include the ultra-violet rays.

Of course this is the merest outline of what should be done in a case of the sort. But it is one thing to get at the bottom of the trouble and another thing to have it cured.

From time to time I advise you to consult your friend the doctor. Your friend the dentist is another person of almost equal importance to your well-being. He should be asked to look over your teeth at regular intervals.

To avoid disease is a million times more important than to attempt its cure. "An ounce of prevention"—you know the rest. Certainly this advice applies to pyorrhoea.

Answers to Health Queries

A. R. Q.—What causes itching of the head and scabs on the scalp?

A.—Probably seborrhea capitis. Have the scalp examined and be sure to keep both hair and scalp immaculately clean with frequent shampooing and careful rinsing.

J. C. Q.—What do you advise for cataract?

A.—While a cataract can often be removed by operation, the condition must be "ripe" before it can be operated upon. The eye specialist should be the one to determine when this procedure is advisable.

L. K. Q.—Is meat required in the daily menu in order to gain strength. 2.—I have a weak stomach and have headaches. What foods should I eat?

A.—Meat is not required daily, but it does help to build up the body. 2.—Simple foods, including cereals, fresh vegetables, fruits, broths, milks, etc., should all be suitable. Avoid sluggish bowel action.

Nine out of ten buy Vess Dry in the friendly family size

NINE out of ten people of this city who staked a nickel to make us prove that Vess Dry is as pure, delicious and refreshing as any other ginger ale, regardless of price, have rewarded our efforts to give them this fine drink, by afterwards buying it in the family-size bottle which contains four full glasses yet costs but 15 cents.

It's the common sense way to buy Vess Dry. There's not a time during the day when you or some member of your family will not appreciate a glass of this delightfully invigorating drink. And it costs so little to keep a family-size bottle always handy in the ice-box.

Why Vess Dry shouldn't be judged by price—

Fancy labels, gold foil and other frills and trimmings add greatly to the cost of beverages but cannot add to the quality. The cost of shipping water and filled bottles also must be taken into consideration. By selling Vess Dry in our own distinctive bottles and bottling it right here in town we can save this expense and pass the saving along to you in greater quality at less price.

SLEUTH'S HUNCH BARES ROBBERY

Three city detectives were strolling down town, as sleuths will stroll, yesterday. At Sixth avenue and Smithfieldd street they saw a young man whose right hand bore a sparkling diamond.

"Look at that stone," advised Detective Guy Daley. His companions did. The sleuths huddled in conference. Then Detective Daley approached the young man.

"That's some stone you have there," Detective Daley conceded. "Do you want to sell it?"

"Yes," the young man said, "for $200."

"Let's have it valued," Detective Daley suggested.

They had it valued—at $1,000. And then Detective Daley decided to arrest the young man. He did. And the young man then admitted, Daley said, that on the night of June 10 he had robbed the home of G. R. Cunningham at 1932 Beechwood boulevard, obtaining $3,500 worth of jewelry.

At the detective bureau the prisoner said he was William Cregan, 18, of 3220 Grace street, Homestead Park.

COAL LOADING RECORD MADE AT SHIRE OAKS

WASHINGTON, Pa., July 18.—What is said to be a record in coal loadings in recent years in a 24-hour period was made at the Shire Oaks yards this week, when 825 cars were checked through there. Operators in the Monongahela Valley are expecting restoration of the lake markets to a marked degree this fall.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIAL HAPPENINGS

Social Calendar Here Hard Hit as Pittsburghers Succumb to the Lure for Travel

PITTSBURGH CLUBWOMEN -:- BECOME THESPIANS -:- FOR CHAUTAUQUA PLAYS

MRS. R. A. HADDOCK, JR.

Mrs. Rollins A. Haddock, Jr., prominent clubwoman, will appear in "To the Ladies," to be presented July 23 and 24.

EVENTS for the individual ordinarily have rather set values, since they depend on character, which doesn't change much after one is really quite grown up. But events for the social world vary greatly in value. An event that might attract every member of the "400" at one time, would pass with little display of interest at another. And this attitude is not a bit surprising, for the events and activities of the social world are regulated pretty much by the weather, and what is more variable than the weather?

Just as an example of the fickle way of the social world, there are travel notes. In the autumn and long winter months, and even in the early spring, they are merely incidental. Large balls and dances almost entirely overshadow them. But in the summer the chief topic of conversation is travel. And many folks in the summer are so fascinated by their plans for trips to their usual summer habitations, or a new resort, as a change that they can't even stay over for the few weddings of much interest that are held during the warm weather.

Pittsburgh society has succumbed to the lure of travel news to such an extent that most of its members have left, and the city is nearly deserted, socially speaking.

Even such ardent Pittsburghers as Augusta Leovy are leaving town. Augusta, who usually is here during the greater part of the winter to direct the Junior League, as well as to attend all social events, is in Hyannisport with her family, I have just heard.

THE J. Dawson Callerys have just left. After stopping over in New York for a few days, they have gone on to York Harbor, Me., for the summer.

And Eleanor McCargo, daughter of the Grant McCargos, is at Greenwich, where the McCargo family has always spent the summers.

PEOPLE may come and people may go, but young men and young women are always getting married, and of course then more young people must act as wedding attendants. H. Greig Veeder, Jr., son of the H. Grieg Veeders, of Denniston avenue, has been asked to be an usher at a notable summer wedding—that of Winifred Horwill and J. Russell Clarke, Jr., who, as you know, are prominent socially in New York. Their marriage will take place Saturday.

On Friday Mrs. Alfred Cotton Bedford, Mr. Clarke's aunt, will entertain the wedding party at a dinner dance at the Piping Rock Club.

THIS matter of electing a president concerns even those at the various summer colonies. At the fancy dress and driving party given by the East Hampton Riding and Driving Club Saturday afternoon Dr. Ogden M. Edwards, Jr., appeared as Herbert Hoover. And Dr. Edwards, astride a baby elephant, led the parade, I hear.

JULY weddings may be very few in number, but those scheduled for this month are receiving much attention. And the July brides are being feted in spite of the inertia induced by hot weather.

Nearly every day something is being given for Sarah Williams, of Glen Osborne, who will marry David Anderson Challis, Jr., son of the David A. Challises, of Sewickley, on July 24.

Mrs. William Bradford Lawton, Jr., gave a bridge supper, I hear, for Sarah on Monday night. Tomorrow Grace Morrison and Helen Shields will give a bridge tea and on Friday there will be another bridge tea with Ruth Emmanuel, of the East End, as hostess.

Mrs. John Patton will give a bridge tea on Monday in the Dorian Club, Sewickley. The rehearsal dinner will be given Monday night by Mr. Challis' parents. And it will be at the Pines.

MISS MARGARET LANG, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Stewart Lang, of Kendallville, Ind., is the guest of Dr. and Mrs. G. E. Curry, of Denniston avenue. Mrs. Curry gave a dinner dance Monday night for her guest and on Sunday afternoon Miss Evelyn Riddle, of Chestnut street, Edgeworth, entertained informally at tea for her.

MISS NELL M'KERNY entertained with a bridge party and dinner last night in the Woman's City Club in honor of Miss Marie Thorne, of Schenley Farms terrace, whose engagement to Dr. Frederick L. Bishop has just been announced.

ANNOUNCEMENT is made of the marriage of Miss Marcella Edith Frey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Frey, of Berwin avenue, Brookline, and Eugene Yenz Coward, of Albert street, Mt. Washington, which was solemnized Saturday night at 6:30 o'clock in the Brookline Methodist Episcopal Church by the Rev. Alexander Steele. Mrs. Agnes C. Frey was her sister's maid of honor and William J. Krauth was best man. A dinner for the families followed.

PRECEDING the trip to Gettysburg planned for this weekend for the summer session students of the University of Pittsburgh, Dr. Alfred P. James, professor of history, will give a talk on the historic Forbes road and the battle of Gettysburg Friday afternoon in the Heinz House. E. Willis Whited, of the engineering faculty, has planned the trip. The party will leave at 8:30 o'clock Saturday morning, having luncheon at Bedford, and arrive in Gettysburg in the afternoon. There will be a dinner and entertainment at the Gettysburg Hotel that night and the next day Dr. James and a Gettysburg guide will conduct a tour of the battlefield. After dinner, the party will start back for Pittsburgh.. Miss Isabel Anderson, social director, will accompany the party.

MISS NANCY HUME JAMES, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick C. Baird, of Fifth avenue, has just returned home after spending the past six months in New York.

ALUMNAE INVITES DELTA PI MEMBERS

ALL Alpha Delta Pi members in the Pittsburgh district have been invited to attend the July meeting of Alpha Iota alumnae of Alpha Delta Pi, which is set for Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Mrs. J. L. Brown, of Richmond avenue, will be hostess for the meeting at her home in Regent square. The Alpha Delta Pi fraternity is the oldest woman's secret society in the United States, having been founded in 1851 at Randolph-Macon College. One of its founders, Mrs. Eugenia Fitzgerald, of Fort Worth, Tex., 94 years of age, is still living.

A BRIEF report of the proceedings of Zeta Tau Alpha convention held at Bigwin, Ontario, July 1-5, will be given at the annual picnic of the fraternity to be held at the Pines, Perrysville road, on Saturday. Luncheon will be served at 1 o'clock and will be followed by a short program and bridge. All Zeta Tau Alphas in this district have been invited to attend the picnic.

PI LAMBDA THETA, national honorary education fraternity, is entertaining all women of the summer session of the University of Pittsburgh at a tea from 2 to 5 this afternoon in Heinz House. Miss Louise Wright is chairman of the committee in charge. Miss Louise Blessing, president of the local chapter, and Miss Kathryn Foulke, a former officer, are the speakers.

THE Presidents' Association, Ladies of the G. A. R. of Western Pennsylvania, will hold a basket picnic at Westinghouse Park tomorrow afternoon.

THE annual summer outing of alumnae and members of Chi chapter of Zeta Alpha fraternity will be held at the Pines on Saturday. All members of the fraternity who are in the city are invited to attend and are asked to call Miss Louise Wright, Harriet street, for their reservations.

THE Rev. W. J. Marshfield, of the California Avenue Episcopal Church, will conduct the community vesper service under auspices of the Women's Community Association of the Twenty-seventh Ward next Sunday evening on the lawn of the Brighton Road Presbyterian Church. A song service under the leadership of Miss Nancy Bricker and Miss Marie Saul will be held Sunday, August 5.

INVALID IS CARRIED OUT AS FIRE MENACES HOME

Mrs. Margaret Lore, 35, of 925 Federal street, was carried from her bed to the street by police and firemen late yesterday when the roof of the Thubron Tire and Supply Company Building, 11 West Montgomery avenue, caught fire. Mrs. Lore, whose home adjoins the tire shop, had been in bed for several weeks suffering from a nervous breakdown. She was taken to the Presbyterian Hospital and an hour later returned to her home. Firemen extinguished the blaze with a loss of $150.

DRY AGENTS CONTINUE RAIDS IN BOROUGHS

Prohibition agents last night reported conducting raids in Homestead, Braddock, Blawnox and Millvale, as well as in Pittsburgh. The biggest seizure was made in a Homestead residence, where 40 gallons of moonshine were confiscated. Six homes in Braddock yielded small stills, a small quantity of moonshine and mash. At several saloons the agents said they obtained samples of beer for tests of alcoholic content.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Matrimonial Harness

By Mabel Burns McKinley

GORDON BRANT shook his head. "No, I never intend to marry. After my brother's experience—jilted and thrown down cold for a wealthier chap—I am wise. No one will have a chance to make a fool of me. I'll tell you." Gordon's very good-looking face darkened, when his benedict friend, Dick Henley, remarked sagely, "I've known men to talk like that before and they have succumbed like the rest of us." Gordon reiterated his statement, adding determinedly, "Not even if the Queen of Sheba were to come along."

"You're safe enough as far as the Queen of Sheba is concerned," laughed Dick, "but I bet you that before the year is out you'll be saying somewhat quite different. There are a lot of attractive girls here in Ridgeville. You haven't met them yet, but you will soon. There! That's the doorbell now. Wonder if some of the young people aren't dropping in."

"Don't want to meet them," muttered Gordon, edging toward the door. But before he could make an exit a laughing company of young men and women entered.

"We came to welcome your guest—a stranger to our town," said one of the young men, approaching Gordon with great cordiality.

In spite of himself the ice of Gordon's manner thawed. No one could withstand the wholeheartedness of the young people's advance. Presently he was smiling into a pair of the merriest blue eyes he had ever seen—their owner, introduced as Beth Murray, smiled in return, giving him a saucy little nod of greeting.

The evening passed quickly and pleasantly and Gordon almost forgot his resolve to steer clear of the feminine portion of the population. He might have entirely forgotten it if Dick had not teased him after the party had dispersed.

"You'll fall for one of them, Gordon! Mark my words! The girls have spotted you for their prey—I could see that. Oh, boy, you'll be wearing the matrimonial harness some of these days, sure as guns!"

"Well, I won't!" Gordon's sunny face clouded. "None of it for me!"

During the next few months Gordon was much in demand at the social gatherings of the town, and the young ladies were specially kind to him—all except Beth Murray. Dick had repeated Gordon's remarks to his wife and his wife had mentioned them to Beth, so the latter did her best to ignore Gordon. This she found difficult to do for the chap had a most engaging personality.

"I could easily care for him," Beth said to herself, "but I will not allow my feelings to get the better of me. I will keep away from him and not bother him any more than I can help."

True to her purpose Beth managed to avoid Gordon much of the time. But as she went with the crowd of young people there were necessarily many festivities at which they were thrown together.

Gradually it dawned on the potential bachelor that here was one girl—the prettiest of the bunch too—who was not at all taken with him. He had become so used to the adulation of the young women that he felt somewhat piqued.

"Not that it matters" he thought, "I'm not interested in any girl. Still, what is there about me that she does not like?"

On the night of the firemen's garden party the young people grouped under the trees and Gordon found himself near Beth.

"Ice cream of course, Miss Murray?" he said.

"Oh, yes," Beth answered gaily. Then turning, and seeing who had spoken, added hastily. "Oh, no—I mean, I don't want any, thank you!"

Gordon stiffened and was about to move off. The next instant his jaw set in determined lines. He just would not be treated in this fashion. To Beth's great astonishment he grasped her arm firmly, and led her, too amazed to protest, to the nearest booth.

"But I said I didn't want any, and here I am with a dish half eaten," Beth's eyes twinkled. "You are a very masterful man, Mr. Brant."

Gordon's chest expanded. Of course he was a masterful person. Now, if his brother had only been like that he would not have had the trouble he did. It paid to be masterful—he would be even more dominating—and would keep this blue-eyed maiden under his care the rest of the evening. She should not be allowed to treat him the way she had done!

It was the beginning of the end! Before the year was out Dick Renley had won his bet, and Gordon was, as the former had prophesied," wearing the matrimonial harness!"

Weather Conditions.

The eastern high is now centered over South Carolina and Georgia, with somewhat diminished intensity, and another weak high appears over Minnesota and Manitoba. Separating these two high pressure areas is a broad belt of low pressure stretching from Quebec southwestward to the southern Rocky Mountain states.

Light scattered showers occurred over the Gulf states and Tennessee, the Central Plains states, and over all the Rocky Mountain states. The rainfall was moderately heavy at Concordia and at Charles City.

The temperatures continue slightly above normal.

River Conditions.

The rivers are falling slowly everywhere in the Pittsburgh district. Stage at Pittsburgh is 12.1 feet; Dam No. 2, 7.5; Dam No. 6, 8.7 feet; the Ohio River dams are up.

BOGGS & BUHL

friday—day after tomorrow

remnant day

"the greatest thing of its kind in America"

All in Readiness at the stroke of Nine Friday Morning

A Boggs & Buhl Institution---an event known (and heeded) by thousands of people who come from three states to profit by these celebrated occasions. The very mention of the words and the date brings a response, an out-turning of the entire shopping community. Inaugurated at this store, Boggs & Buhl Remnant Day has ever gained increasing prestige---sales have mounted as more and more people have come to recognize this as the great and outstanding occasion to buy odd and broken lots of merchandise of every sort at prices that have but one purpose---immediate sale!

Your every need provided---Ready to Wear, Underwear, Accessories, House Furnishings---it's all included in this clearance of surplus and overstocks, odds and ends, incomplete lines, soiled or handled merchandise.

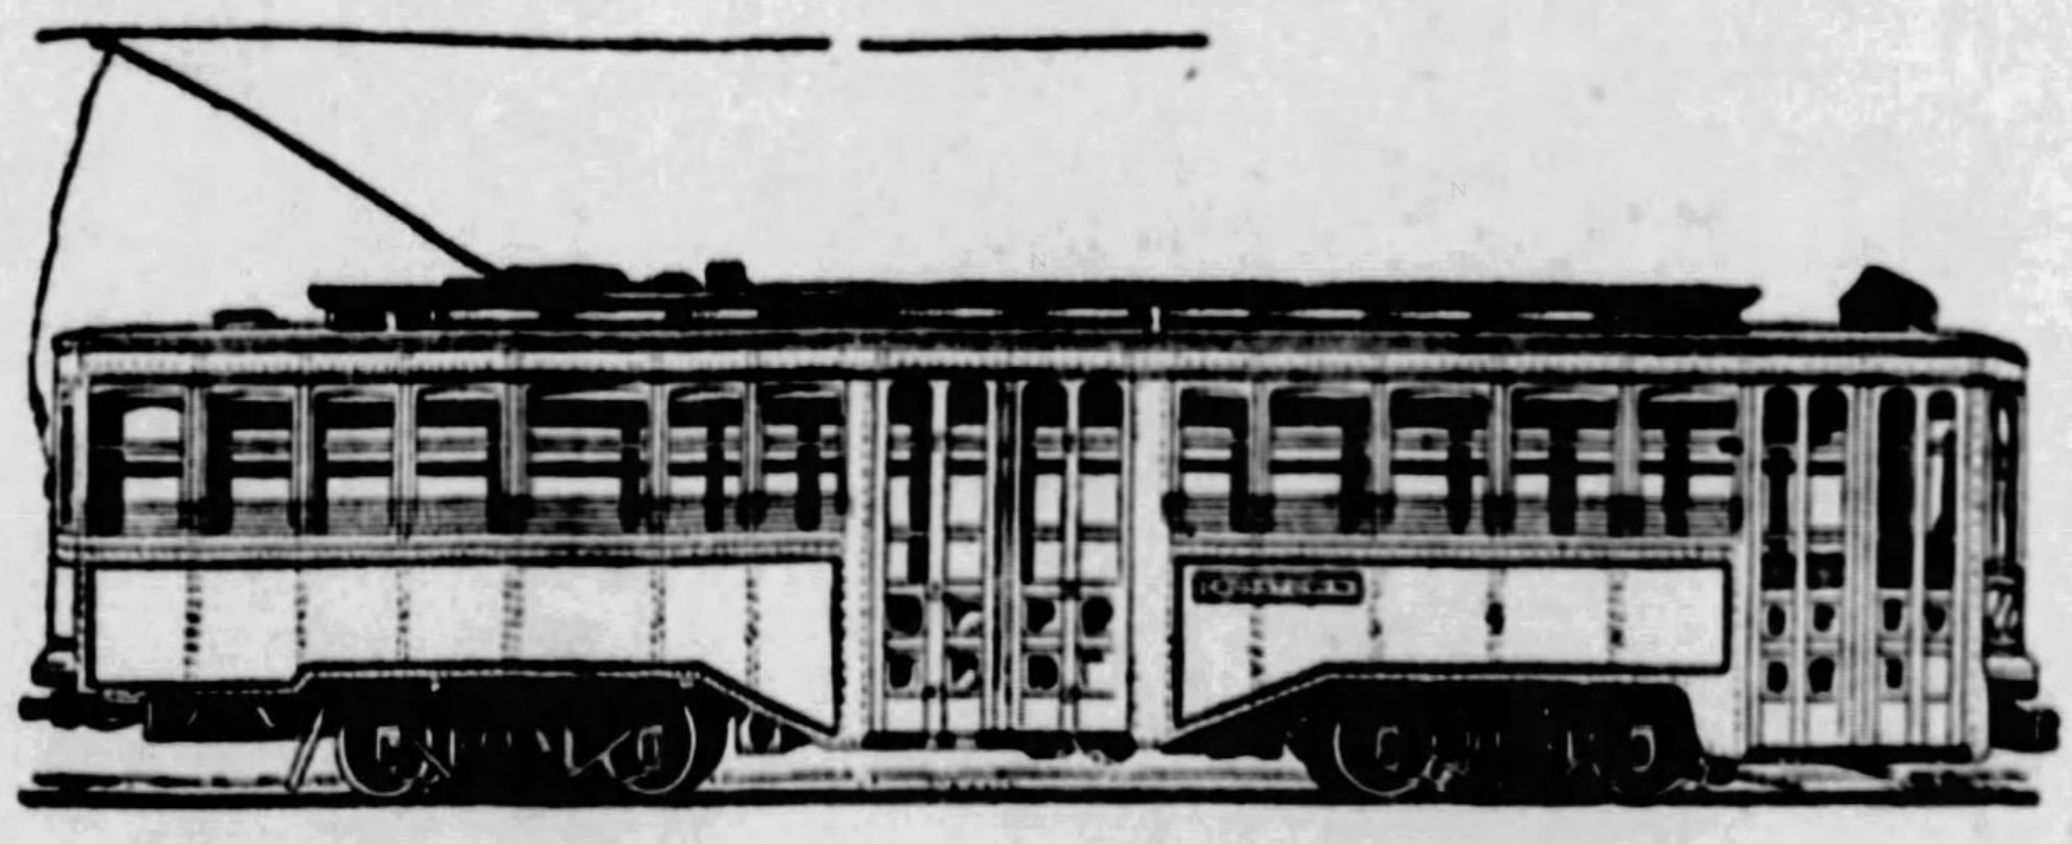
From 9 A. M. to store closing, values that are practically unheard of will greet you. Remnant Day Red Ink prices that mean just one thing---the utmost in value-giving---prices drastically slashed.

Thousands of folks will come from scores of miles around---prepared to make a day of it---reap the benefit of a sale where Goods and Prices tell a story of dollars saved.

Come prepared to buy for every home and personal need for months ahead---if you know Boggs & Buhl Remnant Day at all, you know you will not be disappointed.

accessible by train, motor or trolley to every point in western pennsylvania—and beyond

SPECIAL STREET CAR SERVICE ALL DAY



To give still easier access to the store (already served by cars every half minute from down town and points this side of the river) special extra trolley service will be maintained all day on Crosstown Lines and Pennsylvania Station Route—your transfer good on any of the eight lines passing the store.

In addition—splendid parking facilities for the motorist on the Diamond Street side of the store. If you cannot find space immediately available, the door man on request will see that your car is taken care of as long as you wish.

SALE OF CANDY AIDS ICE FUND

With the addition of a gift of $15.50 The Sun-Telegraph Milk and Ice Fund has grown today to $628.51. The lone gift of the day represents the proceeds of a sale of chocolate conducted by friends of the fund, who modestly neglected to attach their names.

The gift is gratefully acknowledged herewith and satisfaction is to be found for the donor in the fact that this amount will purchase milk for one baby for 10 weeks, or, by the same reasoning, for 10 babies for one week.

All the little ones who are under the care of the Milk and Ice Association are doing well despite the heat and the difficulties which it places in their path to health. The charts show increase in weight for nearly every one of the 300 or more who pay their fortnightly visits to the clinics in association headquarters. That the mothers bring their babies regularly to these helpful and important meetings is one of the requirements that cannot be refused if the little ones are to be kept on the association's books.

HOME FLOODED, CITY SUED

Bursting of city water tanks May 8 in Rising Main street, North Side, was made the basis of a $15,000 damage suit against the city by George B. Lighthill in Common Pleas Court yesterday. The Lighthill house, near the tanks was flooded and furniture was damaged by mud and water.

Mrs. Lighthill, working to clear up the mess and sleeping in the damp house, the husband says, contracted a cold which developed so that she had to undergo an operation. Her health has been shattered, all due to the flood, he maintains. He asserts city officials were aware that the tanks were likely to burst.

People Who Were Too Late

Their applications for $98,895,693, in 1927, were unfortunately declined; and probably 60,000 women and children were deprived of protection which they needed.

No doubt many of these applicants had been insurable but waited too long. Every day some of us, and eventually all of us, will cross the invisible line between insurability and uninsurability.

Let us help you while we can.

12 GOVERNMENTS O. K. KELLOGG'S PLAN

LONDON, July 18.—(AP.)—Sir Austen Chamberlain announced in the House of Commons today that British acceptance of the Kellogg proposals for the outlawry of war has been delivered to the American charge d'affaires.

Replying to a question, the Foreign Secretary said:

"I handed this morning to the United States charge d'affaires the reply of the governments of Great Britain, the Commonwealth of Australia, New Zealand and the Union of South Africa and the reply of the government of India accepting the proposals of the United States Government for a multi-lateral treaty for the renunciation of war.

"As regards the signature of the treaty, his majesty's government will be happy to sign it at such time and place as may be agreeable to the United States Government."

The announcement was greeted with cheers.

POLAND ACCEPTS

WARSAW, July 18. — (AP.)—A note accepting the text of the Kellogg treaty for the outlawry of war has been delivered by the Polish government to John B. Stetson, Jr., American minister to Poland.

BELGIUM TO SIGN

WASHINGTON, July 18.—(AP.)—Belgium, the fifth of the 14 nations invited by the United States to participate in the conclusion of a multilateral treaty for the renunciation of war has informed Secretary Kellogg that the treaty text as submitted meets its "full approbation."

CANADA IN LINE

OTTAWA, July 18.—(AP.)—The Canadian note accepting the revised proposals of the United States for a multi-lateral treaty to outlaw war is in the hands of the United States minister here, the prime minister's office announced today. The note is to be made public at the same time as the British reply Friday.

RESERVE OFFICERS ORDERED TO CAMP

Reserve officers of this district have received orders to proceed to Fort Howard, Md., for a period of Army officer training from August 12 to 25. Among those ordered to report are two Pittsburgh attorneys, Lieuts. J. E. Sugden, Jr., and H. P. Eberharter. Others summoned are: Capts. G. P. Jung, A. J. McClusky, Lieuts. Lawrence C. Woods, Jr., W. A. Price, Edmund W. Malczewski, William Marsch, William B. Macleod and Frederich B. Westervelt.

Hill Top Folk Join In Fetes

Mt. Washington roadway was thrown open to the public yesterday with special dedicatory services that included an automobile parade over the new thoroughfare, speechmaking and a banquet last night attended by residents of the community and city and county officials.

The hillside boulevard makes it possible for residents of Washington Heights to be at their places of business downtown a few minutes after leaving home.

The automobile parade passed over the principal streets of the Hilltop, through the Liberty tubes and across the Liberty Bridge to the downtown district and then returned over the bridge and up the new million dollar roadway.

At Grandview avenue and Merrimac street, the roadway terminus, Betty Keefer, 9, and P. J. McArdle, Jr., 10, son of Councilman McArdle, cut the ribbon and opened the roadway to traffic. Several addresses were made by city and county officials and Washington Heights residents.

At the banquet last night, which was held in Maennerchor Hall, addresses were made by President of Council James F. Malone, County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, Councilman McArdle, Henry Fox, president of the Washington Heights Board of Trade; John G. Reiss of the Business Men's Association of Mt. Washington and City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt.

FRIEND OF YOURS?

When the "traffic cop" at your corner smiles at you in the morning, afternoon and evening, can you call him by name? Few can but would like to do so. The Sun-Telegraph each day publishes the picture of one of the city's traffic officers and his name on the following day. Do you know this man above?

YESTERDAY'S "TRAFFIC COP" WAS THOMAS W. BEGGS, MARRIED, 912 BAYRIDGE STREET, BROOKLINE, WHO HAS SPENT EIGHT YEARS OF HIS 21 YEARS IN THE SERVICE AS A "TRAFFIC COP."

SKYWARD

by Commander Richard E. Byrd

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Commander Byrd first trained for a seafaring profession, but later became interested in aviation. He has described the dangers of pioneer flying and the crash of the America. During the war he was assigned to establish an air unit at Halifax, N. S. He described the adventurous flights of the first aviators to cross the Atlantic Ocean. He advocated the creation of Bureau of Aeronautics in the Navy Department. He told of Gen. Mitchell's defeat for the Bureau of Air. Due to missing a train, he failed to make the fatal test flight on the ZR-2.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Byrd Returns From Greenland

CHAPTER XVII.

I BELIEVE that we have a new story to tell of the grandeur of Ellesmere Island. It was evident that the greater part of the land we saw had been inaccessable to the foot traveler, who, keeping largely to the water routes, with the view cut off by the fjords' great perpendicular cliffs, could not have realized the colossal and multifold character of the glacier-cut mountains.

But there was no time to enjoy the view. Since any slight engine trouble might require a landing, I naturally looked about for some suitable place in which to put a plane down if necessary. With our load the landing would have to be made flying at 50 or 60 miles an hour.

I searched carefully and did not see a single place on the land or on the water where a landing would not have meant disaster. The land was everywhere too irregular and the water was too filled with ice, either broken up into drifting pieces or in large, unbroken areas.

At that moment I realized we were confronted with an even more difficult and hazardous undertaking than we had anticipated. I knew, too, that no matter what judgment we exercised we should have to have a little luck to comply with Secretary Wilbur's last admonition to me to bring the personnel back safely.

Magnetic Compass Used

We had confidently believed that the fiords would be free of ice. That they were not was due probably to the fact that we were having no use of the sun compass, because the sun was obscured. So we continued steering east by the magnetic compass.

By sighting astern on known points I was delighted to find that we were almost exactly on our course. A little later, however, the wind-drift meter indicated a strong wind from the north and we had to change course about 10 degrees to allow for it.

No idea of the extremely irregular and rugged character of Ellesmere Island can be gathered from the maps and charts. In fact, many of the mountains we saw were uncharted. The higher mountains were largely snow-covered and their glaciers extended down to the sea.

We continued on to Knud Peninsula (the tongue of land lying between Hayes and Flagler Fiords), flying at an altitude of 4,000 feet. Low-lying clouds hung over the peninsula, with many rugged peaks appearing above them.

Ahead we saw very high snow and cloud-covered mountains which appeared to be impassable. We kept on, hoping to find some way through. However, we soon realized that the clouds were so high that no aircraft loaded as our was could possibly get over them. The weather astern had begun to thicken and the clouds covered most of the landmarks.

Weather Hazardous

Weather conditions change very rapidly in the Arctic, a fact which is of great concern to the aviator who cannot fly through fog and clouds over the land as he can over the sea. There is, too, great danger of running into a mountain or cliff. Neither can he land and wait for the weather to clear, if he has no landing place. Nor can he keep on flying around, for the good reason that his gas eventually gives out.

We decided to turn back, fly over the clouds and take a chance on finding Etah. Without a landmark, it was necessary to steer a compass course.

Upon our return, Aerographer Francis handed me a report that a gale of great intensity was rushing toward Etah from the south. A driving snowstorm soon set in. The next morning a piece of iceberg weighing perhaps 500 tons was driven by the gale between the Peary and the planes, barely missing the latter.

A few hours later I called the Naval unit together and told them that I would never again order any of them to fly over Ellesmere Island.

Yet when the time came my men were ready and eager to volunteer for any flying that was to be done.

That afternoon it was decided that we should try to get beyond the high, snow-covered mountains by going through a gap at the south of our course, even though this was roundabout way to reach our proposed Polar Sea base on Axel Heiberg Island.

The weather cleared toward Ellesmere Island the next morning, August 11, so all three planes prepared to leave immediately for Bay Fiord to attempt to put down a base of fuel, food and ammunition on its shore.

We got away at 10:40 a. m. in all three planes. Schur piloted the NA-2, Reber the NA-3 and Bennett and I the NA-1. Our mission was to locate a landing place suitable for a base between Etah and the Polar Sea, a non-stop flight would be too far to go with the cruising radius of our planes.

At 11:15 a. m. we passed over the north end of Cape Sabine. We reached the eastern end of the Flagler Fiord at 11:45, flying at an altitude of 4,000 to 7,000 feet. At the latter altitude temperature was several degrees below zero, which felt bitterly cold in the sharp wind.

Hundreds of mountain peaks, dazzling white with snow, ranged along our northern horizon. As clouds rested on their summits we could not see beyond in the direction of Greely Fiord. Below us was a chaotic landscape of glacier, fiord and showy highlands, the latter cut by sharp black ravines.

At 12:45 we were across the land, reaching the eastern end of Bay Fiord. The crossing of the glacier had taken us a few minutes. This was a curious contrast to the crossing Fitzhugh Green made in 1914 when he struggled up over the steep ice slopes and crevasses for days in temperatures down to 60 degrees below zero. Surely the plane has altered polar work.

Here the clouds increased and visibility northward was ruined by a heavy mist that hung over Eureka Sound. Below us the fiord was covered with ice. Soon the NA-2 disappeared entirely in the clouds. As the NA-3 was having trouble getting altitude she turned back toward Etah. I took the NA-1 on down toward Eureka Sound and finally found one suitable landing place on the north shore of Bay Fiord, a temporary opening where the wind had blown the drifting ice to one side.

My joy was unbounded when we got back to base and found, safely anchored in the harbor, the NA-2 and NA-3. They arrived at 2:30 p. m. and we about an hour and a half later.

On our return that afternoon I noted that Beistadt Fiord was comparatively free of ice and clouds. This meant I could leave a cache in it, even though it was slightly south of the line we hoped ultimately to travel towards the Polar Sea.

Though tired from the day's flight, my men did not demur at preparing at once for another. We hopped off at 9:30 p. m. with all three planes and the same pilots. But when we reached Biestadt Fiord a heavy crosswind prevented us from landing. Probably its high cliffs, 2,000 vertical feet I judge, create a suction from the glaciers above just as New York skyscrapers do.

We turned back and recrossed the inland ice-cap. At the western end of Hayes Sound we found enough open water for a landing. We came down and taxied toward shore. But the high wind made it impossible for us to reach the beach without wrecking the plane. So, cold and wet from the spray of the high sea, we took off again and reached the ship about midnight. On the way we saw still another spot where a landing would be possible: the inner end of Flagler Fiord.

Interesting Phenomenon

At last we had been able to land in the interior of Ellesmere Island, but the water had been dangerously rough. We noted on this occasion a very interesting thing. The wind rushed down the glacier, but changed its direction several miles from its foot. We afterward found that no matter what the direction of the wind elsewhere it generally flowed down the glacier and then subdued or changed its direction some miles beyond the foot.

Another interesting phenomenon experienced in the Far North was the difficulty of judging distances—something at which the aviator must be expert. This difficulty was occasioned by the great size of the cliffs, and the clearness of the atmosphere—when it is not misty. When we landed in Hayes Fiord we thought we were landing a few hundred feet from the ice fringe on the shore line at the foot of the 2,000-foot cliffs, whereas to our great surprise we found ourselves more than a half mile away.

Now came a period of very cold winds. After being buffeted by a gale on the morning of the 13th, the NA-2 began to sink. When the engine was half covered with water, the members of the expedition by prompt and heroic effort, saved the plane. We later hoisted it on the deck of the Peary to change the water-soaked motor; but it was never able to fly again.

Having seen open water at the mouth of Flagler Fiord, we decided to attempt to put down a base there. At 11:45 on the morning of the 14th of August the NA-3 and NA-1 left Etah for this spot. After an hour and a half we came down at our destination and got the planes within 50 feet of the shore. We waded in the icy water to the beach, carrying 200 pounds of food and 100 gallons of gas. In addition we left 5 gallons of oil, primus stove, camping outfit, smoke bombs, rifle and ammunition, and matches. An iceberg drifted into our plane and we had a great tussle keeping it from being smashed. We were much relieved when we got the NA-1 off for Etah.

In order to take advantage of the fair weather that had blessed us,

SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH

By HAVEY J. BOYLE

COUNTY CONTROLLER BOB WOODSIDE recently returned from the annual convention of sheriffs of the state which was held at Conneaut Lake. The former sheriff of Allegheny county is the organizer of this sheriffs' association. He was its first president. Accompanying the controller, was Bob Braun, the present sheriff of the county. What steps were taken to preserve the law and order of the commonwealth's many counties were not discussed at the short session we attended.

Tom Sterrett, sheriff of Erie county, newspaper columnist on the Erie Times, famed public speaker, and former metropolitan publicity agent, was on hand to greet the visiting sheriffs. Tom had just returned from the Houston convention. He had a difficult job at the sheriffs' convention as he was loaded with Al Smith buttons and it so happens that most of the sheriffs in Pennsylvania have a Republican delivery.

ARTHUR BURGOYNE, former Pittsburgh city editor, who now dispenses publicity on behalf of Conneaut Lake, when he is not wearing the official robes of justice peculiar to the office of a justice of the peace, mixed with the Western Pennsylvania delegation of sheriffs and recounted stirring times, of which Mr. Burgoyne has seen divers and sundry. Unless his plans change in the meantime, Mr. Burgoyne may be back in his native haunts ere the snow flies. The bench will lose a student of jurisprudence if Mr. Burgoyne decides to hand in his portfolio and doff the ermine.

Al Derryman, who used to in the pre-arid days supply the North Side citizenry with various brands of brew, is now operating a hotel in Meadville, Pa., being associated with the Leff boys of Pittsburgh background, who are the Statlers of many a Western Pennsylvania town.

TONY HUCKENSTEIN, a state official in the Department of Labor, reports that among the things he caught on a week-end fishing trip at Conneaut Lake, were: (a) group of weeds; (b) a sunfish; (c) a mosquito bite.

Among other Pittsburghers we ran across in the vicinity of Conneaut Lake were Clem Burkle, P. A. Erny, Buck Baird, Col. James Costello, Tom Scully and a few others we ran across when we didn't have our notebook.

WE ALMOST forgot Jack McCann, the Crafton youth, and Curly Wolk. Curly deserves a special note. He hasn't missed a year at Conneaut Lake in 20 years. He walks around the lake, a walk of two hours and a half, every second day, and on the day he doesn't walk around the lake, he swims its width.

The only trouble with Curly is that he can't sleep very well. He called on us at our villa at 9 o'clock one morning. He has been bothered with insomnia for quite awhile.

FIRE INDUSTRY HIT HARD BLOW

50 VOTES CAST AGAINST FLAMES

It will be harder than ever now for fires to succeed in Pittsburgh. This picture shows why. It is of Public Safety Director James M. Clark (very left) administering the oath to 50 young men as firemen. They swore to put out all fires as quickly and thoroughly as is humanely possible, if not quicker.

TWO STOLEN IDOLS

MYSTERY! THRILLS! ADVENTURE! LOVE!!!

by FRANK L PACKARD

Mindar Singh Appears To Bob Promising Help and Rescue

AND Java Dick at Chen-shu's side rocked with drunken laughter; and the rest of the crew shrieked applause. And Mindar Singh plied the oars, and the lashes fell, and Mindar Singh screamed piteously.

"Faster, Mindar Singh!" Chen-shu urged. 'How is it that we do not seem to move, when he who is possessed of such overpowering determination to reach what awaits him on the shore is he to whom we have confided the guidance of the ship? Faster, Mindar Singh, faster, lest we come to fear our faith in your gratitude for this effort to fulfill your desires has been misplaced!"

Bob Kingsley, with a sickness upon him that was near to nausea, turned away his head. He could shut out the sight of Mindar Singh striving at his cruel and impossible task, swaying weakly in his seat, the lashes falling fast and mercilessly upon face and neck and back and chest; but he could not shut out the sounds of the agonized screams that came up from under the schooner's bows, or the hideous swishing of the whips, or the jeers and laughter that somehow was the most demoniacal sound of all. Anger he knew, and a fury that was all possessing; but he was impotent, securely tethered to the rail, and he could only stand there white-faced and powerless to interfere.

When he looked again, after what seemed an endless period of time, the screams of Mindar Singh and the swishing of the whips had ceased, and the four Chinamen were crawling aboard from the bowsprit. There was no amusement in torturing the inanimate! Mindar Singh lay a crumpled, inert heap in the bottom of the boat.

The boat drifted back and bumped against the schooner's bow. Java Dick and Chen-shu were passing by on their way aft.

"What are you going to do with him now?" demanded Java Dick.

"If he is not already dead, he will die shortly," replied Chen-shu with a smooth smile; "and if a wind come and thought must be given to the boat, we will empty the unmentionable remains into sea. I have grown weary of seeing him upon the deck."

An hour had passed. The heat had lessened, but there was no evening breeze with the setting of the sun—and for Bob Kingsley neither food nor water as had hitherto been the custom at that hour. His lips twisted in a mirthless smile. Java Dick had succumbed and gone below into the cabin. Chen-shu had also gone below, and so had most of the crew. Food was the last thing in their minds. Their hunger was of a different sort; and their thirst, though apparently unquenchable, was not for water! Why, then, when they had no thought of these things for themselves, should they remember them? He was forgotten—except in one particular. As the sun went down and darkness began to fall, the man with the crutch had come to him. The man with the crutch would not forget! It was the man's task each evening to tie his, Bob Kingsley's hands—probably a self-sought task; certainly one out of which the other derived a bestial joy—as though the man, being privileged to sip at the cup of revenge and finding it rich in flavor, smacked his lips in anticipation of the moment when he should drain it to its dregs. Tonight the crutch was sorely needed—and not because of any wound. The man was drunk—and perhaps for that reason the more vicious. Bob Kingsley's hands were lashed together now more tightly than they had ever been before. They hurt him brutally. One turn of the lashings had cut through the flesh of his wrist.

The darkness deepened into blackness. There was no moon, and few stars, and still no breeze. The last sounds of brawling had died away. There was no other sound except the creaking of the schooner's booms as the vessel rolled lazily on the smooth swells; but that sound persisting out of the silence was eerie and uncanny—like some one moaning fretfully in distress.

There were no lights upon the deck—no binnacle light. But there was a man at the wheel—the single evidence of seamanship remaining, even though that duty at the moment was a sinecure—the only figure in sight upon its feet on deck. And the man appeared to be steering. It was like some grotesque, shadowy pantomine. As the man swayed the wheel swayed—it was the wheel that kept the man upon his feet.

Bob Kingsley twisted at his wrist lashings, striving to ease the pain, somewhere under the schooner's bow was the boat. If there were only some way in which he could reach it! Once he had sawed his wrists free with a piece of broken plate. There was no broken plate here! He couldn't see the boat. He hadn't been able to see it after it had drifted under the bow; but no sound had come from it since Mindar Singh had crumpled up there in the bottom, and the whips had ceased their work because the man could feel no more. Mindar Singh was probably dead.

How long had the night endured? An hour? Two? Or was it only a few minutes since darkness had fallen? His mind seemed to be stumbling. How long until—tomorrow?

His eyes strained aft along the deck—and suddenly he gave a low cry of relief. There was Verna at last! Why hadn't she showed herself before? He had begun to fear that—that she never would—that out of the ugliness of the day something had happened to her. He couldn't see her face, even her figure was indistinct—just a white form standing far back by the taffrail. But she was there.

If it were not for that sole sentinel at the wheel! There wasn't apparently any one else tonight to keep them apart. But she could not pass the man without being seen, and——

He whirled suddenly around. A voice was whispering his name. And then he stared like a man distraught. A dark form was crawling aboard the schooner over there on the other side of the bow just opposite to where he stood.

"Sahib," the voice whispered, have patience—but made no sound! I know what has befallen. Presently I will send the Miss Sahib to you."

Involuntarily Bob Kingsley drew back against the rail. Mindar Singh! Or the ghost of Mindar Singh! Or was he himself merely mad—his reason gone at last? Mindar Singh should be lying dead down there in the boat under the schooner's prow. No! The man was real enough, actual enough. As silently as he had boarded the schooner, Mindar Singh was crawling aft now, keeping close beside the rail where the shadows were blackest—and now the man had disappeared.

The blood was whipping fiercely now through Bob Kingsley's veins. Patience! How could he have patience? What had the man meant by that? If Mindar Singh's sudden appearance meant hope, meant life to Verna and himself, why hadn't the man come over and set him free? How was Mindar Singh going to send the "Miss Sahib," when that man was there at the wheel? What was it that Mindar Singh was up to? Perhaps the man's brain was crazed. It would be strange if it were not, when it was little less than a miracle that he was even alive, and even more than a miracle that he had the strength left to climb back aboard the schooner!

Unconsciously Bob Kingsley was straining forward at the end of his six feet of rope. He tried to pierce the blackness, tried to catch a glimpse again of Mindar Singh. But he could see nothing—nothing but Verna's white form, misty, filmy, against the darkness far back there at the taffrail: and, nearer, the shadowy form of the Chinaman who swayed so grotesquely with the swaying of the wheel.

CHAPTER LV.

THE minutes passed—like ages in duration. Perhaps three, perhaps four—perhaps five of them. And then it seemed to Bob Kingsley that for a space he had ceased to breathe, for suddenly there was a second shadow there that moved from behind upon the shadow of the wheel—and the arms of the second shadow were lifted high above his head, and in its hands was clutched what might have been a capstan bar.

The creak of the spars and booms as they swung lazily with the schooner's roll was the only sound. The arms of the second shadow descended swiftly and the shadow of the wheel seemed to dissolve and melt into the deck and become no longer visible.

The second shadow moved again. It went to Vera at the taffrail—and suddenly the tension snapped, and Bob Kingsley drew in a deep, gasping breath. He understood now what Mindar Singh had meant! Verna was coming swiftly, silently toward him along the deck. And the second shadow, which was Mindar Singh, he no longer saw, for he had eyes now only for the white, hurrying figure whose name he was whispering over and over again in eagerness, in joy, in thankfulness.

"Verna! Verna! Verna!"

She was beside him now, half-sobbing, working frantically at the knots that fettered him.

And now for a moment Bob Kingsley could find no words; but all that was in his heart, the yearning and the love for her, the gratitude at what now seemed their sure deliverance, was in the pressure of his fingers as they sought her hands, and held them there behind his back as she struggled to untie his bonds.

She pushed his fingers gently away.

"The knots are already very hard to undo," she said tremulously, "and—and—

Over his shoulder he was conscious that she had bent her head quickly—and now he felt her lips touch his hands, and felt a teardrop fall upon them.

"Verna!" The soul of the man was suddenly afire. His voice trembled. "It's true, then! You care! What I thought I read in your eyes at Java Dick's that night is true. You care—you care!"

Since halitosis never announces itself to the victim, you simply cannot know when you have it.

It may get you fired!

Employers reject those with halitosis

What kind of people do employers like to have around them? Certainly not people with halitosis (unpleasant breath). You can't blame a man for firing an employee with halitosis to hire one without it.

Don't fool yourself that you never have halitosis. It's impossible for you to know when you are a victim. Don't take the chance. Keep yourself continually on the safe and polite side by daily rinsing the mouth with Listerine, the safe antiseptic.

Being a powerful deodorant, it ends halitosis—instantly. If you doubt its deodorizing power, rub a little onion on your hand, then apply Listerine clear. Immediately the odor is gone.

Thousands who used to be unwelcome because of halitosis are now acceptable anywhere.

"A delicate subject —but these girls must be told"
—a dean of women says

Unfortunately this delicate subject is seldom discussed. Now, a new, patented process deodorizes this scientific sanitary pad completely

EVEN among girls who are very frank with each other, there is a question of daintiness, of fastidious personal care that is unfortunately seldom mentioned. Yet many women are unconsciously guilty. At certain times they are seriously offensive to others. With realization comes constant fear and worry.

Today these fears are ended. Science has discovered a way to counteract this offense.

Kotex now completely deodorizes*

Kotex has brought a new idea of feminine hygiene to women all over the world. In the past ten years they have learned new comfort, new ease of mind through this sanitary protection. Now, after years of work, a process has been perfected that completely, amazingly ends all odors. In Kotex laboratories the one remaining problem in connection with sanitary pads is solved.

Shaped to fit, too

Because corners of the pad are rounded and tapered, it may be worn without evidence under the most clinging gown. There is none of that conspicuous bulkiness so often associated with old-fashioned methods. And you can adjust the filler, make it thinner, thicker, narrower—to suit your own special needs. It is easily disposed of, no laundering is necessary. A new process makes it softer than ever before.

Buy a box today . . . 45c for a box of twelve. On sale at all drug, dry goods and department stores; also, through vending cabinets in rest-rooms.

*Kotex is the only sanitary pad that deodorizes by patented process. (Patent No. 1,670,587, granted May 22, 1928.)

Deodorizes . . . and 4 other important features:

1—Softer gauze ends chafing; pliable filler absorbs as no other substance can;
2—Corners are rounded and tapered; no evidence of sanitary protection under any gown;
3—Deodorizes—safely, thoroughly, by a new and exclusive patented process;
4—Adjust it to your needs; filler may be made thinner, thicker, narrower as required;
and
5—It is easily disposed of; no unpleasant laundry

Marty Prepares a Speech For Kittens to Say to the Jury; Emily Objects

CHAPTER XLVII.

BUT Emily's faith wavered after she talked with Marty Nolan.

He came up the hill to see Kitten, rather elegant with his ruddy hair slicked smooth and a certain authority of manner.

He had discarded the signet ring with the little diamond setting that once had ornamented his hand and no jewel flashed in his scarf. It struck her that he was growing fastidious; there was something about him reminiscent of Kingdon Coles.

She told her news all in a breath. "I saw Kent Rossiter today. He doesn't thing she did it, Marty."

His brows came down; a chill crossed his eyes. "He told you so?"

"He said the law believes everyone innocent until proved guilty." But that lost force, some way, before his sneer.

He laughed. "Have you thought just what that means? Nothing. It's his job to prove murder. Of course he didn't mention that."

"But he asked if we'd work with him. He seemed sincere."

The Nolan leaned forward, a shadow of the old truculence going over him. "I used to think you had sense, Em. What I want to know is are you for us or against us? If you're going to join with your sister's enemy you'd better let us know."

She shrank as from a blow. "Her enemy, Marty? But I can't believe—what do you want me to do?" She asked this dully, all confusion.

"Do nothing unless I tell you. What did Rossiter say?"

"That we must find the woman who came to the Inn."

"Oh, the woman!" He stirred impatiently.

He didn't believe the story about the woman. And Coroner Gade didn't believe it. Only Kent did. She couldn't give up that thought.

Had there been such a person? A beautiful woman going alone to Deep Valley Inn late at night? Had Kitten left such a one drinking with Nicky while she fled?

For the first time a doubt which Emily beat back with all her strength claimed a place in her mind. This woman had to be; there was a woman and they must find her!

Marty went on: "It doesn't look any too good for the kid. Circumstantial evidence but . . . You'll have to talk her into being reasonable."

"Of course I will. She's willing to do anything."

"Sure? How do you feel about it?"

"You don't need to ask."

"Very well. Let's see her."

Emily called Kitten and the three went up to the sunroom. Marty sat a long time without speaking, elbows on his knees, head bent in thought. He got up and walked about after a time; finally moved his chair near Kitten and gave her a long look.

"You're 19, Kitten? Listen now to the story I'm going to tell:

"There was a 19-year-old girl who met a married man. Only she didn't know he was married. So when he invited her out she accepted. It was all in fun at first but he knew how to make a girl love him. That's what he did to her; he made her fall desperately in love before she knew it.

"And one night he gave her too much to drink and took advantage of her trust. . . .

"He promised to marry her, so she kept meeting him. By this time she had lost sight of everything but him.

Then another night he told her it was all over; that he had a wife and never intended to marry her.

"She threw herself into his arms and he struck her. He told her to get out. She knew he carried a gun; she had seen it. Maybe she shot him; she never knew because everything went blank."

He paused, studying the elfin face.

"Can you cry, Kitten?"

"I suppose so."

"Without looking red and ugly?" Emily asked, "What do you mean, Marty? What do you want her to do?"

"I want her to cry while she repeats the story I've just told. She may have to tell it on the witness stand."

"No." That cut through the room like a sword. "Kitten—Marty. She can't do that! Never! A lie! You'd have her lie!"

Marty asked, impersonally enough, "How do you know it's a lie? She hasn't said it is."

In a panic of tears, hands outstretched before her, Emily groped toward her sister, put her face down on the bright head. "Kitten, it's not true? Little Kitten—"

"It's not true," Kitten gulped, shaken out of her calm for once.

Marty was coldly aloof. "Well. You said she'd do anything and that you'd have her. I tell you it looks bad for her What's the use of all that fuss, Em? Better save it for the jury. What I'm trying to do is keep her from going up the river."

"Marty"— But the scene was over. Emily fainted quietly there on the moss green rug.

When she opened her eyes Marty had gone and Agnes was bathing her head.

"No need to be anxious, Emmy lamb. There, now, feel better? Nothing to fear with such a fine friend as Marty. A splendid lad; a great-hearted one, that Marty!"

ENDED 20 YEARS OF SUFFERING

Lady Tells What Wonderful Relief Ten Herbs Gave Husband; Feels Fine Now

Many instances where the great natural medicine, Ten Herbs, has given amazing relief, are being reported to the Ten Herbs Man, who is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily demonstrating this successful herbal medicine to crowds of men and women. In some cases there had been long suffering and many medicines were tried in vain.

MRS. REUBEN WEBB

"My husband, Mr. Reuben Webb, had stomach trouble the last 20 years, but Ten Herbs has given him complete relief," was the statement of Mrs. Reuben Webb, 431 Noblestown Road, East Carnegie, Pa., (near Pittsburgh), to the Ten Herbs Man. "Before using your medicine he had to be very careful what he ate, as almost every kind of food distressed him." Mrs. Webb continued. "Once he lived on a malted milk diet for three weeks. Nearly everything would ferment in his stomach and form gas. He was always tired, and at times could not work. He did not rest well at night, and sometimes was very nervous.

"I read about Ten Herbs in the papers, and we decided that he should give your medicine a fair trial. The third bottle certainly made a great change for the better in him. His stomach has been benefited so much that he can eat anything without being distressed. He is no longer troubled with gas. His appetite is very good, and he is gaining weight. He is not a bit nervous and rests well at night. He works every day, and does not have that tired feeling any more. In fact, my husband feels fine in every respect. We do not hesitate to recommend Ten Herbs to our friends and the public."

Ten Herbs is Nature's own medicine for stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and has a cleansing, soothing, correcting effect on the entire system.

The Ten Herbs Man is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily meeting the public and explaining the merits of this medicine.

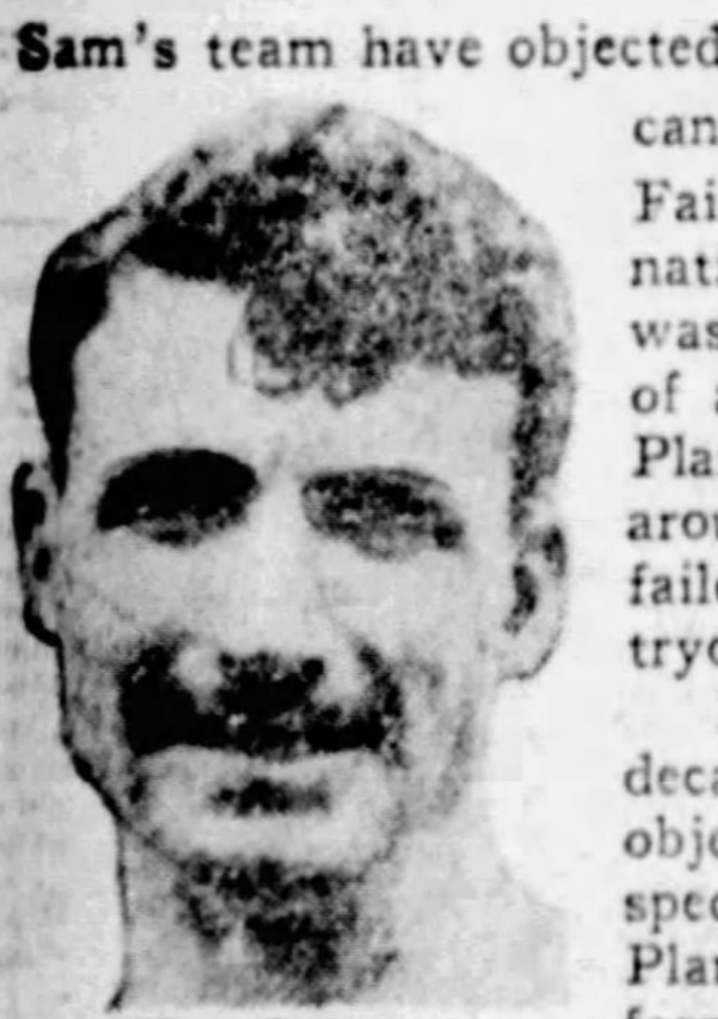
SPORT COMMENT

by JAMES J. LONG

Ken Doherty Trains Five Years for the Decathlon in Olympic Games—Carroll Example for College Pitchers—Pirates' Eighth Win Puts Them at .500 for First Time Since May 22.

CRITICS of the American Olympic Committee who have found fault with some of the selections made for Uncle Sam's team have objected mainly to the turning down of two candidates for the decathlon. One is Fait (Chief) Elkins, who won the 1927 national decathlon championship, but was left off the Olympic team because of an injury, and the other is Tony Plansky, who captured the big all-around event at the Penn relays but who failed to qualify in the Olympic final tryouts.



Ken Doherty

But among the men selected for the decathlon there is one against whom no objection can be raised, with all due respect to the ability of Elkins and Planksy. He is John Kenneth Doherty, formerly of Detroit City College, who won a place on the team as a member of the Cadillac Athletic Club. A few things that have been learned about Doherty since the final tryouts have made his selection one of the most popular of the entire lot.

FROM a note book and diary that Doherty left in Detroit when he came East for the tryouts it has been discovered that his success in qualifying for the decathlon spells the realization of an ambition after an effort that is probably without a parallel.

THE diary shows that Ken, as he is best known in athletics, has been training and working for this event through a period of five years. When he entered Detroit City College five years ago at the age of 18, he developed an ambition to break the world's decathlon record some time in the distant future. He determined in cold figures the marks he would be required to make in running, jumping, vaulting and throwing to become the decathlon champion of the Olympic games. Six

WINNERS TO GET PRIZES

BY VERNON A. SWARTSFAGER.

TONIGHT'S the night! The Sun-Telegraph's first annual West Penn amateur junior championship will officially be brought to a close in the Fort Pitt Hotel tonight when the prize winners, County Commissioner E. V. Babcock, John Jay Burke, U. S. G. A. public links official, members of the staff at the Schenley Park municipal links and members of The Sun-Telegraph's sports department gather for a dinner at 8 o'clock, following which the awards will be made the boys.

The William Randolph Hearst trophy, emblematic of the tourney championship, will be presented the winner, Joe Curto, who scored a brilliant 68 to lead the field last Thursday. [illegible] also will get a gold medal and a golf club.

Steve Slivka, who won first honors in the sub-junior class, will be awarded a gold medal and a golf [illegible]. Tom McDonough, winner of second honors in this division in the playoffs Monday will be presented a gold medal and a golf club. James Scajbarretti will get a silver [illegible] and a club for winning third honors in the division. Mike Bakos gets a silver medal for taking fourth place and Hull Wilson, who scored a 234, wins a consolation prize, a silver medal.

Playing over the Schenley course this morning with the writer, in a delayed playoff of his tie with two other entrants at 70 for second place in the junior division, Mike Gula, of the North Side, was eliminated from the prize class by one stroke when he scored a 91. He was off in his putting and dropped many strokes due to this lapse. His card:

HIGH UP ON THE GIRDERS

THEY'RE UP A BIT IN THE WORLD

If you don't believe it, observe how high some of the girders are the next time you go up the runways at the Stadium. Capt.-elect Alex Fox and his teammates hope to go as high in the football realm this fall as Capt. Gibby Welch and his co-players did last season, when they went undefeated and annexed the eastern collegiate championship, bowing only in a post-season contest with Pop Warner's Leland Stanford crew at the Tournament of Roses fete in California. In Parkinson and Getto here, we have a novelty act—two gridders on a girder.

RED SOX STARS DRAW BAN FOR RUMPUS

BOSTON, July 18.—(INS.)—Heine Wagner and Charlie Berry, coach and catcher, respectively, of the Red Sox, have received notice from President E. S. Barnard, of the American League, that they have been suspended for three days, because of their action Monday at the Chisox-Redsox double header.

Wagner was put out of the game, together with Fred Hofmann and Manager Bill Carrigan, when they argued about a decision made by Umpire Bill Guthrie. Berry was put out of the same game by Umpire Hildebrandt for talking back.

SPEAKING OF SPORTS

by HARRY KECK SPORTS EDITOR

AGAIN Tommy Loughran defends his light-heavyweight championship of the world, in a return bout with Pete Latzo. No champion in years has proved such a worthy titleholder as Loughran, who meets 'em all not once but as often as there is a demand for bouts.

Loughran has the right idea, as the late Harry Greb, of this man's town, had the right idea. The safety-first champions are foolish. They make no money by remaining idle, and incur the enmity of the fans when they engage in non-titular matches and surround themselves with safeguards in other ways.

THE goal of all boxers is to become champions in their respective classes. They deny themselves much to make the grade. Yet, most of them, after they scale the heights, are confident to rest on their laurels and see the challengers get the money. The worst thing that can happen to the average boxer is to win a title. Before that calamity befalls him he is active at his profession. When a championship descends upon him it is as if he had taken unto himself a great burden. He fears nothing so much at the day when he may be dethroned.

What good is a title if it cannot be capitalized? A number of championship bouts, such as those in which Loughran is engaging, are the best insurance a real champion could ask. They keep him from going stale and the wealth accumulated from a number of such bouts in the end will prove greater than the income from one or two battles at long separated intervals.

JAMES (RED) MASON, who managed Greb when the latter was champion, often was criticized by so-called "smart" managers because he accepted many offers for bouts in large and small towns. But both he and Greb knew what they were doing. Greb was fighting at his best when he was fighting frequently and he was piling up a for-

BACK to a 50-50 basis as the result of eight unbroken victories, the realistic Pirates today were able to glance about and take stock of their assets and liabilities. One of the first things noted by the Freebooters was the fact that they are only three games removed from the first division and a money berth. They are close on the heels of the Dodgers who are due here tomorrow to begin a four-game series in Oakland Orchard.

The Bushwhackers scored a hairline decision over the Braves yesterday in the third game of the series. The Tribe was very dangerous in the ninth when it had the tying and winning runs on the sacks, but Fred Fussell turned a dandy relief trick. The score was 7 to 6.

The last clash of the series will be put on this afternoon. From the Pirate standpoint it will be featured by the appearance on Fogarty Knoll of Burleigh Grimes, who seeks his fifteenth triumph of the season. The ace of the Pittsburgh sharpshooters downed the Braves Saturday, but he has had three days of rest and is ready for the route once more. Eddie Brandt, clever young lefthander who opposed Grimes in the opening game of the series, may try it again today.

HILL HURLS WELL

Carmen Hill almost got a full contest as the Buccos downed the Braves for the third straight time in the series. The Corry giant was in excellent form in the first part of the game. Poor support figured in some of the runs made by the Tribe, and Carmen had a bit of misfortune in the ninth on Burrus' pinch hit.

Hill carried a one-run advantage into the final round. Burrus batted for Kent Greenfield and hit a high bounder on the infield. The hopper went for a single and brought the top of the batting order up. Fussell was warmed up at the time and

CARDS LOSE FRISCH

ST. LOUIS, July 18.—(AP.)—Frank Frisch, star second baseman of the St. Louis Cardinals, who tore a muscle in his left leg in Monday's game here, has been removed to a hospital for treatment. He will be out of the game for a week or 10 days.

Gene, Tom Try New Stuff

SPECULATOR, N. Y., July 18.—(INS.) — Gene Tunney is socking his sparring partners with damaging left hooks to the head instead of jabbing them, as of yore. He massaged them until it hurt yesterday and caused his manager, Billy Gibson, to go into ecstacies of delight.

"See him hook!" chortled Billy during his last workout. "I have been trying to get him to use that punch for three years. It's the blow that started Dempsey on the road to ruin, but never could I get Gene to use it in training until now."

TOM WEAVES AND BOBS

FAIRHAVEN, N. J., July 18.—(INS.)—Tom Heeney is trying some new stunts in his workouts here for his bout with Gene Tunney Thursday night of next week. He is developing a slight weaving motion, bobbing with his head to get in close and cutting loose with left hook counters to the body and head and using his right almost exclusively to the body in form of hooks and uppercuts.

FIGHT RESULTS

At Troy, N. Y.—George Levine defeated Irish Fagan, 12 rounds.

At Cleveland—Sergeant Sammy Baker defeated Gorilla Jones, 10 rounds; Eddie Ruttman knocked out Steve McDonald, 1 round; Jock McKenna won by technical knockout over Stubby Noble, 3 rounds.

At Indianapolis—Red Uhlan defeated Bill Atkinson, 10 rounds; Tracey Cox knocked out Willie Yat, 2 rounds; Otto Atterson defeated Paul Dare, 6 rounds.

At Los Angeles—Fidel LaBarba dfeated Huerta Evans, 10 rounds; Pete August defeated Gene Cline, 10 rounds.

At New York—Phil (K. O.) Kaplan defeated Jack McVey, 10 rounds; Johnny Haystack defeated Harry Ebbets, 10 rounds; Al Mello knocked out Joe Schlocker, 9 rounds; Joe Jeannette and Pat Perkins drew, 4 rounds.

At Jersey City—Jackie Pilkington defeated Johnny Reno, 12 rounds.

At San Antonio, Tex.—Diego Acuna defeated Jimmy Wayne, 10 rounds; Kid Carmona defeated Benny Perez, 10 rounds.

CASTING MEET SATURDAY

The Pittsburgh Casting Club of the Izaak Walton League will hold its mid-summer tournament at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon at Carnegie Lake, Highland Park. Bait and fly casting events for both accuracy and distance are open to all who wish to compete. Winners will represent the club in the national tourney at Columbus, O., in August. In addition to the casting, two unique contests will be staged. President E. F. Lowry of the casting club will undertake to land a woman swimmer with a fly rod and J. H. Parry will try the same with a steel rod on a husky man swimmer.

HAZELTON SHOWS CLASS

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 18.—Hazelton, the champion 4-year-old race trotter of 1927, is virtually certain to give New Jersey its first place in the two-minute hall of fame. The horse, which is owned by Barton Pardee, of this city, showed such sensational speed with so little effort at the Cleveland Grand Circuit meeting last week that it appears only a mishap will keep him from beating even time.

Star Field Seeks Title

By VERNON A. SWARTSFAGER.

THE annual junior golf championship of the Western Pennsylvania Golf Association got under way this morning at the Shannopin Country Club, in Ben Avon Heights. A ssmall, but strong field was competing in the medal play qualifying round. Fred Brand, Jr., of the Hannastown Country Club, formerly of the Sewickley Y. M. C. A., started the defense of his championship with superb golf at the outset. It is believed he will have little trouble, however strong his fellow competitors, in retaining the honor this year.

Tomorrow the match play rounds will get under way, with a first round of 18 holes in the morning and a second round over the same distance in the afternoon. Friday morning the semi-final round will be run off with the final rounds in all flights in the afternoon.

Play started at 9 o'clock this morning, and the last pair left the first tee shortly after 11 o'clock.

The Shannopin Country Club links are in splendid condition, and the boys are finding their round an enjoyable one. Some good scores are likely to result.

MISS HUNTER VICTOR

In a one-day tourney at the Westmoreland Country Club, where the Women's Golf Association of Western Pennsylvania staged its annual event, Mis Anjeanette Hunter, with an 88-6—82, took away the honors in the first division. Mrs. R. L. McConnell was second with 103-20—83, and Mrs. F. E. Campbell third with 95-9—84.

In the second division Mrs. George Blackmore shot a 99-29 for a low net of 70. Mrs. John Cohen was second with 107-26—81.

More than 130 women competed in the day's play.

Cornell defeated Penn in the annual match at the Edgewood Country Club yesterday.

STARTING TIMES TO BE GIVEN

Arrangements are almost complete for the annual mixed foursome invitation tournament at the Stanton Heights Golf Club, to be held Friday afternoon. A large field is expected to participate, inasmuch as it is one of the most popular tournaments of the season.

Starting times will be given, it has been announced, all day tomorrow by calling Hiland 9239.

PIRATES

as there were a couple of good southpaw hitters ready to swing. Fred was rushed to the scene. Eddie Moore ran for Burrus.

Fussell made Lance Rischbourg hoist a fly to Hargreaves and the fans breathed a sigh of relief. Outfielder Clark, promising recruit, came up and smacked a double to left that put the tying run on third and the winning marker on second. Things were gloomy, indeed, with Sisler and Hornsby due to bat.

FUSSELL FOOLS STARS

The Pirate left-hander was the master of both hitters, however. He made Sisler hit to Adams, who cut Moore down with a fine throw to Hargreaves. Hornsby appeared to be fooled by one of Fussell's curves when he hit a weak hopper to Grantham to end the game.

Bob Smith opposed Hill at the start of the contest, but Bob was not up to his customary form apparently. He was relieved by Johnny Cooney in the third when the Pirates were hitting hard. At the end of the round the home team was sporting a lead of four runs.

The Braves picked up two in the sixth, but the Pirates matched these in their half. In the seventh the visitors put on a splurge that netted them three runs and caused much consetrnation in the Pittsburgh bullpen, but Hill prevented a deadlock, and then "stuck around" until the ninth.

GEORGE STALLINGS' CONDITION IMPROVED

MACON, Ga., July 18.—(AP.)—The condition of George Stallings, owner of the Montreal International League baseball club and "Miracle Man" of the 1914 Braves, who has been critically ill in a hospital here for a week, was declared to be slightly improved today.

Hospital attendants pointed out, however, that the nature of his illness, a heart ailment, prevented accurate appraisal of his condition.

NOTES of the BOXERS

TERRY LINGO of the North Side boxes Johnny Mellow of Detroit in the 10-round main bout at Louisville next Monday night and the following Monday probably will fight either Kid Cangie or Freddie Fitzgerald in the main event at the Jolly Bowl, New Castle.

Tod Morgan and Cannonball Martin will make another effort to get their much postponed bout for the junior lightweight championship of the world out of the way at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, tonight.

Tommy Crowley, local junior lightweight, and Jack Duffy of Toledo, who has boxed Champions Sammy Mandell and Tod Morgan, among others, mix at Cincinnati tonight.

Young Nanci and Jackie Rodgers, local flyweights, will box at the Elks' convention at Cedar Point, O., next month. Nanci now is making his home in Cincinnati.

Rudy Ceder and Jack Katkish, local welterweight rivals, likely will appear on the same card, but not against each other, at an early show in Cleveland. Mickey Hart may box on the same program.

John Toth and Charley Sable will meet in the main bout of the Elks' Conneaut Lake Club show in the Elks' clubrooms Friday night. This is a return bout, Sable having knocked out Toth recently in the same ring. Max Carey, former captain of the Pirates, now with the Brooklyn club, will be a guest of honor at the show.

Bushy Graham and Johnny Vacca are tentatively matched for a 10-round bout in the Olympic auditorium, Los Angeles, July 31.

The Leo Lomski-George Smith bout at Dexter Park, New York, postponed last Monday because of a sprained wrist suffered by Lomski, has been rescheduled for next Monday night.

As a result of his decisive victory over Huerta Evans in his comeback bout last night as a bantamweight, Fidel LaBarba, resigned flyweight champion, has been signed to box Bud Taylor, bantamweight title claimant, at Los Angeles, August 7.

Andy Tomosky, Wilmerding bantamweight, is back home from the East for a stay of several weeks and is in condition to box while here. He would like to hear from the New Castle, Washington, Pa., and other promoters, who may reach him by calling Valley 1599. Andy came direct from Tom Heeney's training camp at Fair Haven, N. J., and reports the big challenger in fine condition, but figures Tunney to beat him on his superior skill.

second prize for Norman Gaylord, of Erie, who duplicated his 70 of the tournament in the playoff Monday; third prize for John Slocum, of Squirrel Hill, who had an 81 in the playoff, and fourth prize for Mike Baysura, of Greenfield, who scored 90 in the playoff.

A special award of a gold medal will be given Arthur Weltner, who scored the only hole in one of the tournament.

Howard Bruback will be given the junior consolation award, a silver medal.

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

months ago he wrote in his diary: "Home. Bed at 10 p. m. Broke the world's record in decathlon—on paper." There followed figures showing what he had succeeded in doing in each of the 10 events.

Max Carey

HERE are the point scores that Doherty expects to make in the grueling all-around test in which 1,000 points are awarded in each event: High jump, 856; broad jump, 783; pole vault, 757; high hurdles, 908; 100-meters dash, 800; 400 meters, 850; 1,500 meters, 680; shot put, 747; javelin throw, 875; discus throw, 789; total, 8,045.

In the final decathlon tryouts, Doherty scored 7,600.52 points, less than 11 points removed from the record of 7,710.775 that Harold Osborne set at the Olympic games in Paris four years ago.

Now Doherty is to get his long awaited chance to make his dream a reality, and all America will be pulling hard for him to accomplish the feat for which he has been training for half a decade.

DISCUSSING the number of bats broken in a season by the various players on the Brooklyn club, Dan Comerford, trainer of the Robins, expressed the opinion that Max Carey, former Pirate, breaks fewer than any other batter in the National League. "No one ever knew Max Carey to break a bat," he is quoted. "The answer is in the weight of the clubs he swings. Carey's bats are around 44 or 45 ounces and built to last forever. That weight, I understand, is about the same as Babe Ruth swings. Carey ordered three bats from me this year and had three old ones left over from previous seasons. And if Max is still in the big leagues 10 years from now, he ought to be using those same bats. He may lose 'em, but he'll never wear them out."

EVEN if young Ed Walsh, who won his first victory for the White Sox a few days ago, is unable to keep up a winning gait through the remainder of the season, or if Bruce Caldwell or any other college recruit fails to make good in the big show right off the bat, they need not despair. They need think of Owen Carroll's case to see plenty of hope for success later.

Carroll was a star pitcher at Holy Cross, but when he started in the big show with Detroit he was a bust. He had to be sent to Toronto. But look at him now. He ranks with the best right-handers in the American League. He has won 10 games and lost only six for the tailend Tigers, a winning percentage of .625 against his club's percentage of .407. Carroll has won practically one-third of his club's victories and is charged with only one-eight of its defeats.

Owen Carroll

ADD one more to the Pirates' lengthening string of victories. They made it eight in a row when Fussell stopped the Braves before the latter could tie the score in the ninth inning yesterday. That just doubles the longest previous winning streak of the Bucs this season.

True the Bushmen's latest victory was scored by the narrow margin of one run, after they had held a much longer lead, but it was a victory just the same, and it must not be forgotten that the Rovers themselves have been nosed out by a lone tally oftener than they have won by that shade.

PITTSBURGH'S eighth straight win lifted the Pirates to the .500 mark, and put another prop under the hopes of the fans that the club is swinging into its true stride at last and may be depended upon for a strong finish. The winning streak counts for more than appears in the percentage table, as each succeeding victory raises the morale of the team and gives it increased steadiness and confidence. Incidentally, this is the first time the Bucs have been at the .500 mark since May 22.

CHARLEY HARVEY, manager of Tom Heeney, raises a new point in support of his prediction that his man will beat Gene Tunney. He says that for the first time since he began to loom as a championship possibility in 1925 the Marine is going to meet a man who is in his prime. "Tunney defeated Carpentier in 1924 and Gibbons in 1925 to put himself in line for a crack at the title," remarks Harvey. "His victory over Dempsey in 1926 gave him the title and he retained it last year by beating the same man. Carpentier, Gibbons and Dempsey all were well on their way down hill when Tunney faced them. Gene picked them when they were right for plucking. But it is going to be different at the Yankee Stadium on July 26. This time the shoe is going to be on the other foot, as they say. Heeney is just reaching his crest. Tunney, I believe, has passed his peak and is going down hill. Tunney is going to find my man a different sort of foeman. Tom will not crack under the strain. If any one cracks it will be Tunney himself."

ALL-STAR LINKS LINEUP SET

Pairings for the all-star exhibition matches for the purpose of providing funds for sending the Pittsburgh public links team to the national public links championship in Philadelphia the latter part of this month, which are to be held on the Schenley Park municipal course tomorrow, were announced today by Al McBride, pro at Schenley, and John Jay Burke, executive committeeman of the public links section, U. S. G. A.

It is expected a large gallery will be on hand to see the all-star private links team play the all-star muny linksmen. The visiting team will be captained by the veteran Stanton Heights golfer, Richard C. Long. The matches will get under way at 3 o'clock. The pairings follow:

Richard C. Long, Stanton Heights, and Robert Graham; William C. Fownes, Jr., Oakmont, and M. Galido.

Allison R. Maxwell, Oakmont, and M. H. Boschert; Raymond L. Babcock, Oakmont, and Bernie McFarland.

Joseph I. Crawford, Oakmont, and Carl F. Kauffmann; Greer McIlvain, Oakmont, and C. J. Lunden.

George A. Ormiston, Oakmont, and W. J. Platt; J. Scott Burke, Fox Chapel, and S. Walter Phillips.

Henry C. Fownes II, Oakmont, and Sam Graham; James T. Lappan, Pittsburgh Field Club and Joe Curto.

Fred B. Weppner, Stanton Heights, and Francis Lally; John Graham, South Hills, and T. M. Barr.

James A. Fownes, Oakmont, and J. M. Slater; J. Bernd Rose, Allegheny, and Thomas Dunn.

FORD BUYS PACER

DETROIT, July 18.—Edsel Ford has become the owner of the pacer Hal McKinney, 2:09. He purchased the horse from Ed Lytle, Fredericksburg, O., at a reported price of $4,000, after personally driving the animal at Wooster, O.

SPEAKING of SPORTS by HARRY KECK SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS EDITOR

tune while other less far-sighted champions were dissipating their savings waiting for "big shots," which seldom materialized.

Loughran is the true sportsman's idea of a real fighting champion. He will go down in history as such, and before he is through he may force his way into a match for the heavyweight championship and the rich emolument that goes with it.

SPEAKING of Mason, or, rather, writing about him, brings to mind the fact that he is picking Gene Tunney to win handily over Tom Heeney in their battle next week. Writing from Cape May, N. J., where he is spending a vacation, the veteran local manager of boxers, says:

"Since coming down here I have run across several fellows who have seen Heeney train and they think rather well of his chances. I can't see the bout that way, though. I know Tunney well through his bouts with Harry Greb, and am a great admirer of his ability. At that, I think Heeney is a better man than he is generally credited with being. I would pick him to stop Jack Dempsey in the latter's present condition.

"Tunney will beat Heeney because he takes no chances, but steps out to make every round a winning one and forces the other fellow to fight to suit him. He does not try to outslug his opponents, and that is why he is not all beaten up, seldom has been hurt in a bout and is such a consistent winner. He is my style of boxer, not the type that gets punched goofy in a few years."

GRATTAN BARS DERBY VICTOR

KALAMAZOO, Mich., July 18. — (AP.) — Grattan Bars, fleet bay pacer owned by Fred Thrower, of Kerwood, Ont., and masterfully driven by the veteran Vic Fleming yesterday won the $25,000 American Derby. In winning the feature event of the Grand Circuit program the son of Grattan Royal twice lowered the record for the race. He took the first heat in 2:00¾ and came back to win the second in 1:59½. The old mark was 2:02¼.

Winnipeg was second, Highland Scott third and Berry the Great fourth.

ANOTHER FOR OWENS

In defeating the Boston (Pa.) Club last evening, Oscar Owens, veteran pitcher of the Homestead Grays, turned in his eighteenth consecutive victory of the season. The score was victory of the season. The score was 9 to 3. The Grays have made 92 home runs so far, Beckwith leading the sluggers with 37. Washington has 14 and Harris 11.

WHAT'S ON THE AIR

THERE will be three opera presentations on the air tonight. Gilbert and Sullivan's "The Mikado," a comic opera, will be broadcast by the National Light Opera Company over WCAE and other NBC stations at 10:30 o'clock. At 9 o'clock Victor Herbert's comic opera, "The Idol's Eye," will be heard over the NBC system, including KDKA, as the feature of the Philco hour. The United Opera Company, over the Columbia system, including WJAS, will broadcast Gilbert and Sullivan's "The Yeoman of the Guard" at 10 o'clock. This Kolster hour feature was originally scheduled for last Wednesday.

The Sylvania Foresters, a male quartet, will offer a program of summer songs at 8:30 o'clock. KDKA will be in the hookup. Among the numbers will be "That Old Gang of Mine," "It Was Only a Tiny Garden," "In the Good Old Summer Time" and "Goodnight." A specialty instrumental duo also will be heard.

The Ipana Troubadours are following in the footsteps of the original troubadours of the eleventh century, who went from balcony to balcony serenading the various lovely women of that age. Tonight at 9 o'clock, over WCAE and other NBC stations, the radio troubadours will address their music to some dozen reigning belles of today, including "Charmaine" and "Rose Marie."

Another NBC presentation over WCAE will be a vocal and instrumental program by the National Mixed Quartet and the string quintet from the National Symphony Orchestra. It is scheduled for 8 o'clock.

The Power period over KDKA at 10:30 o'clock will include these vocal selections: "The Viking Song," "Hiawatha's Wedding Feast" and "A Son of the Sea."

A reading of "The Highwayman" will be included in the Maytag Ramblers' presentation over KDKA at 10 o'clock. Among the vocal solos will be "In the Dawn With You" and "Sleepy Hollow Tune."

ROUND TABLE of BUSINESS

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

"ALL of the industries which consume our products are doing a normally good business with the exception of the railroad car builders, and their orders are improving," said the sales manager of a leading manufacturer of steel sheets, in commenting on present conditions.

"For several weeks our sales have been better than we expected for this time of the year. June, July and August are usually dull months, but we cannot complain with production at 75 per cent of capacity.

"PRICES are no better and no worse than they have been recently," he continued. "They are too low for us to show a satisfactory profit. With such a volume as we have at present and the demand we may expect for the rest of the year, prices could easily be advanced if the people in this business would take a firm stand.

"THE automobile manufacturers are busy getting into production on their new models. They are taking big tonnages from us. Most of our orders are for rush shipment."

THERE is one motor car maker whose production is lagging far behind expectations, judging from his purchases of steel in the district.

The Ford Motor Company was scheduled to make 5,000 cars a day this month. Actually production has reached only half of this figure. Slow deliveries have lost Ford some business to makers of other low-priced cars, but he has shown a remarkable ability to hold on to his orders.

FORD is having most of his present production difficulties, not with assembly or with the making of bodies, motors and other large parts, but with a few small mechanical devices.

An unusual degree of accuracy has been specified for these. In some cases the minimum variation in size allowable is one-thousandth of an inch. Mass production of parts with such microscopic accuracy is a problem which is stumping even the great Ford organization. But Mr. Ford has consented to no deviation from the original standards.

THE large steel producing companies hold great hopes for a vast improvement in earnings during the last half of this year. Profits in the last quarter of 1927 were meager, due to low prices. They were slightly greater in the first three months of this year.

Reports have not been published for the second quarter of 1928, but they are expected to be better than in the previous period. With growing tonnages and higher returns on sales, the third quarter gives promise of further increase.

UNLESS some unforeseen situation should arise, the improvement which is becoming apparent now should continue well toward the end of the year. Yesterday Carnegie Steel Company announced an advance of $2 a ton in the quotations of bars, plates and shapes for fourth-quarter delivery.

Even if this increase should not be fully established, it will keep quotations strong. It also may be expected to insure the fact that deliveries in the latter part of the year will be at higher prices than at present.

THE contention that the trouble with the steel industry this year has been in prices, not in volume, is borne out by the fact that production of steel ingots in the first six months of the year established a new high record.

Output, according to the American Iron and Steel Institute, was 24,792,853 tons, which was greater than the previous high record of 24,153,809 tons in the first half of 1926.

ONE local company which reports a steady, although not sensational, increase in earnings is the Harbison-Walker Refractories Company. Estimated net profit in the second quarter of this year was equivalent to $2.77 a share on the common stock. This was greater than in either the preceding quarter or the corresponding quarter of last year.

FEW industrial companies in this district are expected to report greater earnings for the first half of this year than were shown in the first half of 1927, but Harbison-Walker is an exception.

Net profit for the six months was equivalent to $5.48 a share, compared with $5.28 in the corresponding period a year ago. The company has an extensive modernization and expansion program under way.

The 360,000 shares of common stock will be split on a four-for-one basis soon.

Office of
The Union Trust Company of Pittsburgh, Trustee for First Mortgage, dated February 2, 1925, of Pittsburgh Steel Products Company
Pittsburgh, Pa., July 3, 1928.

To the holders of First Mortgage Six Per Cent. Sinking Fund Gold Bonds, dated February 2, 1925, of Pittsburgh Steel Products Company:

Notice is hereby given to the holders of First Mortgage Six Per Cent. Sinking Fund Gold Bonds issued under the First Mortgage made by Pittsburgh Steel Products Company to The Union Trust Company of Pittsburgh, Trustee, dated February 2, 1925, that said Pittsburgh Steel Products Company, pursuant to the authority and power vested in it by the provisions of Article Four of said First Mortgage, has elected to redeem and pay on August 1, 1928, all of said bonds then outstanding. Pittsburgh Steel Products Company will pay therefor on August 1, 1928, at the office of The Union Trust Company of Pittsburgh, Union Trust Building, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, the face amount of each of said bonds with accrued interest thereon to August 1, 1928, together with a premium of 2½% of the face amount thereof, as provided for by the terms of said Article Four of said First Mortgage.

Holders of said bonds above mentioned are required to present and surrender the same to said The Union Trust Company of Pittsburgh on August 1, 1928, and receive payment therefor, as above described.

Bonds presented for payment must carry the interest coupons due August 1, 1928, and all subsequent maturing coupons thereto belonging, and be accompanied by such certificates of ownership as may be required by the Revenue Act then in force.

Interest on all of said bonds will cease on August 1, 1928.

The Union Trust Company of Pittsburgh, Trustee.

MARKET QUITS FLOUNDERING, TURNS UP

NEW YORK, July 18.—(AP.)—The stock market, which has been floundering around within a narrow trading area for the last week, turned briskly upward today on a resumption of broad scale buying operations. Prices of active issues rallied 1 to 5 points, while a number of specialties were marked up 6 to nearly 15 points.

Lowering of the call money rate from 6 to 5½ per cent, the optimistic tenor of the weekly steel trade reviews, publication of several favorable earnings statements and special dividend declarations all helped to revive bullish enthusiasm. The advance in prices was stimulated on the theory that a further tightening of money rates was in prospect.

Burroughs Adding Machine, directors of which declared a stock dividend of 25 per cent, ran up 11 points to a new high record at 175. Texas and Pacific soared 10 points to 170. McCrory Stores A, American Express, Midland Steel Products preferred, R. H. Macy, Radio and National Tea sold 5 to 12 points higher.

General Motors was again in heavy demand on buying influenced by expectations of a substantial extra dividend at the August meeting of directors, running up more than 3 points to around 190. Chrysler also advanced 3 points in reflection of the stockholders' approval of a stock increase paving the way for the merger with Dodge Brothers. Wright, Curtiss, Montgomery-Ward, Houston Oil, Greene Cananea Copper, Johns Manville, Allied Chemical and a number of other industrial favorites climbed 3 points or more.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, July 18.—Wheat prices eased downward today after upturns at the start. Initial firmness was ascribed to steadiness of Liverpool wheat quotations, but selling pressure here resulted from continued favorable crop condition northwest and from liberal arrivals southwest. Opening at ⅛c off to ⅜c up, Chicago wheat later showed some setback all around. Corn developed strength, starting ⅛c to ⅞c higher and subsequently scoring additional gains. Oats were easy. Provisions showed an advance.

At noon wheat was 1½ to 1⅞c net lower and corn varying from ⅝c decline to ⅜c gain.

Leading crop authorities reported today that wheat in part of the American Northwest is 10 days ahead of the showing a year ago. One Chicago expert telegraphing from Minot, N. D., said the wheat crop all through that section is giving the best promise since 1915. Black rust is just starting on head stems, and cool weather is wanted from now on.

A comprehensive summary of the wheat crop outlook today from a different source said the eyes of the trade will be on the weather chart and persistent rains would doubtless cause a price trend upward. On the other hand, dry weather which would hold down rust damage would have the opposite market effect, for Canada in particular just now has prospects of a record breaking yield of good wheat.

STEEL OUTLOOK BRIGHTER

NEW YORK, July 18.—The Iron Age in its weekly summary of the iron and steel trade says:

Steel business developing in the last week promises to make the month the best July in years. The expansion in an ordinarily dull month, coming after production in the preceding half year had made a record, is broadly surprising. As buyers today still are taking only what they expect to use, the high rate of output so far this year proves there has been continued high consumption, and accumulations from first-half shipments are negligible. Producers have reappraised the outlook and, counting on a better volume than seemed likely a few weeks ago, depend on increasing tonnage to help in price betterment.

Operations for the industry as a whole are close to 75 per cent. Shipments are equal to bookings and in some cases higher.

Building construction continues highly active, with many of the fabricating shops almost fully scheduled for the rest of the year. The railroads, still silent on cars and locomotives, have made fresh purchases of 65,000 tons of rails.

Opinions are mixed that the automobile builders can keep up the present output after August 1, but for the present their taking of alloy steel bars and cold finished steel is heavy and stamping and forge shops are well filled with automobile work. The oil industry is responsible for the large additions to pipe mill order books, with a number of long pipe lines yet to be placed. The agricultural implement makers report the best business in 10 years.

While The Iron Age pig iron composite price remains for a second week at its low of $17.09 a ton, that for finished steel is now 2.319 cents a pound, against 2.326 cents last week.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

Radio's Profits Slump.

Radio Corporation of America's preliminary report showing only 84 cents a share earned on the common for the June quarter was a distinct shock to the trading community, but the condition of a virtual corner in the stock prevented any untoward market demonstration. In fact, just at the time the news was announced the whole market was in the midst of a rally which had been stimulated partly by a drop in call money rates from the 6 per cent opening figure to 5½ per cent. Radio's forthcoming report for three months ended June 30 will show net income of approximately $1,300,000, equal, after preferred dividends, to around 84 cents a share on 1,155,400 common shares against $3,122,874 or $2.40 a share for the previous quarter and $425,587 or $1.07 a share on 395,597 shares of 7 per cent cumulative preferred shares of $50 par in the June quarter of 1927. This will bring the first half to approximately $4,422,874 or about $3.24 on the common against $552,366 or $1.39 a share on the preferred in the 1927 period.

Chrysler Increase Ratified.

Chrysler Corporation stockholders, at a special meeting yesterday, authorized an increase in the common stock from 3,200,000 shares to 6,000,000 shares. This increase includes all shares necessary to carry out the Chrysler-Dodge plan, in case all Dodge stockholders should deposit their stock, and puts the Chrysler Corporation in a position to go forward with the plan in case the necessary deposit of Dodge stock is received and the other conditions of the plans are complied with. All the preferred stock of the Chrysler Corporation has already been called for redemption on August 6.

Record Year for P. & G.

Net profits of Procter and Gamble Company for the year ended June 30 was $15,579,335, as compared with $15,004,975 for the previous year. Gross business for the period reached the record total of $210,615,194 against $191,776,977 the preceding year. Last year's record sales supplant the previous record of $193,392,044 reported in 1919.

Macy to Change Capital.

Stockholders of R. H. Macy & Co. will vote August 10 on an increase in capital stock from 750,000 shares to 2,500,000 shares. New stock will be issued to holders of record August 30 on the basis of two shares for each one held, at $10 a share. The annual dividend on the new shares is expected to be $2 a share, equal to $6 on the present stock which now pays $5. Wall Street regards the Macy action as a real "melon." At present there are outstanding 367,000 shares. The increase to 2,500,000 shares means that present stockholders have the right to subscribe for two new shares, at $10 for each new share. The resultant rights have a value of approximately $230 a share. The cash dividend rate on the new stock will be $2 annually and in addition the management purposes to continue the 5 per cent annual stock dividend.

National Cash Register.

National Cash Register Company and subsidiaries report June quarter net income of $2,151,284 after depreciation and income tax, equal to $1.43 a share, on the A and B stock, against $1,487,059, or 99 cents a share, in the previous quarter and $1,947,717, or $1.30 a share, in the June, 1927, quarter. Six months net was $3,638,343, or $2.42 a share, against $3,302,166, or $2.20 a share.

National Cash Register has shown a tendency to resist selling during recent sessions, and the action of the stock has been considered favorable by interests identified with the market for the issue recently. A rumor has been widely circulated that there is a possibility of a merger of the company with one of the other business machine concerns. The 25 per cent stock dividend announced by Burroughs Adding Machine Company today was regarded as significant in view of these rumors.

Dull Market Spikes Fakers.

Registered stockholders of legitimate enterprises, business men and others whose names and addresses have come into the possession of the blue sky security fakers may have wondered recently why they are receiving so few "tip" letters and other matter through the mails. They need look no further than the current dull stock exchange sessions for the answer. The recent letdown in speculative activity has not only served to relieve the strain on the clerical forces of legitimate Wall street brokers, but has also discouraged numerous security fakers from continuing operations. There is always a force which survives only during surging bull markets. The newest outlet for the energies of security charlatans until recently has been the sale of securities in the unlisted market, aided and abetted by spurious tipsters, or advisory publications. H. J. Kenner, general manager of the Better Business Bureau of New York City, states that within the last two or three weeks several of the largest operators in this illegitimate field have notified the bureau of an intention to cease operations.

Commonwealth Power.

June earnings of Commonwealth Power Corporation, which will be released shortly, are expected to bring the showing for first six months to about $3 a share, or equal to the full year's dividend requirement on the common stock. In the first five months balance applicable to common after all charges, including depreciation, was $2.59 a share. In the full year 1927, earnings available for the common were equal to $4.36 on 1,495,503 no-par shares of common, the same amount as now outstanding.

The Money Influence.

Market is not being affected by business conditions, for all reports received in the financial district are that trade has continued favorable. The temporary unfavorable money situation is the outstanding influence which has actuated what liquidation and short selling have developed thus far. Eventually this selling will result in building a stronger technical condition in stocks, because short selling seems to be growing in favor with traders.

Favorable Factors Ignored.

Market has reached the stage where little attention is being given to favorable influences. Ordinarily the developments of the last week or 10 days would have been looked upon as important factors. These included stimulation to trade in certain lines because of the warmer weather, private reports of bumper crop prospects in the Middle West, improvement in the electrical business, continued heavy consumption of structural steel, yesterday's advance in heavy steel prices, increase in orders of the Steel Corporation outlook for at least better than average motor car business in the future and a slight increase in employment in June over May, the first time in five years that June has not reported a falling off.

Penn-Dixie Cement.

Net profit of Pennsylvania-Dixie Cement Corporation for the half year declined to $318,431 from $924,859 a year ago. Net profit for the year ended June 30 was $1,360,933.

COTTON MARKET

Buying became more active after the publication of the weekly weather report, which evidently was less favorable than expected by recent sellers and caused a spurt of covering. October sold up to 21.56c and January to 21.24c, making net advances of 35 to 40 points and a recovery of about half a cent from yesterday's low prices. This attracted realizing and there were reactions of a few points, but the market was quiet and steady at midday, with the active positions ruling around 25 to 30 points net higher.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, July 18.—The raw sugar market was quiet early today with no sales reported. Both Cuban and duty free sugars were offered at 4.14c delivered, with buyers showing no interest.

The raw sugar futures opened at declines of 1 to 3 points and continued to decline until the list showed net losses of 5 to 7 points. The easier tone was due to a renewal of outside long liquidation and to selling by houses with Cuban connections prompted by the continued slow demand in the spot market. Stop-loss orders were uncovered on the decline, but after their execution there was a rally. At midday prices were a point or two above the lowest and 4 to 6 points below the previous close.

In refined prices were unchanged at 5.75c to 5.80c for fine granulated. A good withdrawal demand was reported, but new business was light, with some second-hand sugars available at 5.75c for fine granulated.

LONE STAR GAS SAGS LOWER

There were no important price changes recorded in the active issues in the early dealings on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today. Quotations held at about the levels prevailing on the close last night with business confined to small-lot dealings in most instances.

Lone Star Gas opened firm at 53, unchanged from the previous close, but only a little stock was wanted at the figure in the early market and a subsequent decline to 52⅝ was recorded. While Lone Star's primary interest is gas, it has considerable oil production and recent accumulation of the shares around current levels is partly in anticipation of later improvement in the crude oil situation. The petroleum industry on the whole is still in the depression existing for the past two years but observers profess to see signs of betterment in the offing and many of them believe the business has definitely turned the corner.

United Engineering, which had not appeared on the board since last week, opened today at a discount of more than three points from the previous price. Weakness in the issue was attributed to patent controversies although informal opinion is that these matters will be ironed out satisfactorily.

Consolidated Ice sold again at 27, equal to the price at which the stock changed hands last week.

The newly listed McKinney Manufacturing Company common appeared on the board for the first time at 13¼, a block of 50 shares changing hands at that price. Last previous sale on the curb was at 13, about two weeks ago. The company's 309,874 shares of common stock and $600,000 of 6 per cent gold bonds were admitted to the list this morning.

Peoples Savings and Trust shares were strong, reflecting the scarcity of the stock at recently prevailing levels. A sale of 13 shares at 665 today represented a gain of 7 points over the last previous price.

DODGE BROTHERS, INC.
Committee under Plan and Agreement dated June 1, 1928

Preference Stock
Common Stock Class A Common Stock Class B

Deposits under the Plan as of the close of business July 12, 1928, as reported to the Committee, were 705,258 shares, (constituting 84.2%) of the outstanding Preference Stock, and 1,402,042 shares, (constituting 76.6%) of the Class A Stock, and 484,500 shares (constituting 96.9%) of the Class B Stock.

Such deposits not being equal to 90% of each class of stock, the Committee has obtained from Chrysler Corporation and Dodge Brothers, Inc. assent to a brief extension, so that the Committee may determine if the desired amount of stock can be obtained.

As a large majority of the stockholders of Dodge Brothers, Inc. have approved the Plan, the Committee has instructed the depositaries to receive further deposits to and including July 23, 1928, in the hope that 90% of each class of stock may be deposited by said date.

Subsequent to the letter of the Committee of June 14, 1928, enclosing an opinion of its counsel and stating its views with respect to the rights of non-assenting Preference stockholders, certain non-assenting Preference stockholders started litigation attacking the Plan and applied for an injunction against carrying it out, claiming greater rights for the Preference stock than accorded by the Plan or as stated in the Committee's letter and in the opinion. The injunction against carrying out the Plan was denied, and as the court required, a bond has been filed to protect rights of Preference stockholders as may be judicially determined in the manner provided in the bond. The Committee calls attention to the fact that a court may determine the rights of the Preference stockholders to be different from those stated in the Committee's letter of June 14, 1928, and the counsel's opinion enclosed therewith, and the Committee, in the exercise of its powers under the Plan and Agreement, may with respect to non-assenting Preference stockholders take action other than indicated in said letter and opinion, or may carry out the Plan by making provisions whereby non-assenting stockholders of Dodge Brothers, Inc. retain their present holdings, leaving in Dodge Brothers, Inc. Chrysler Common Stock which such non-assenting stockholders would have received if they had assented to the Plan, or the Committee may carry out the plan in any other manner whatsoever as the Committee may determine. In view of the above, any depositor or holder of a Certificate of Deposit may, by surrendering his Certificate of Deposit in negotiable form to any depositary before the close of business on Monday, July 23, 1928, withdraw the deposited Dodge stock represented thereby. Delivery of such stock against surrendered Certificates of Deposit will be made as soon as reasonably practicable. The Committee points out, however, that any reduction of the amount of deposits by withdrawal will certainly jeopardize the Plan.

The Committee reiterates its conviction that the carrying out of the Plan is in the best interests of all classes of Dodge stockholders and strongly urges all stockholders who have not yet deposited their stock to make such deposit immediately with the depositary named below, which will thereupon issue transferable Certificates of Deposit.

The Certificates of Deposit are listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

Stock may be deposited at The Philadelphia National Bank, Philadelphia, or The National City Bank of New York.

A natural investment question and the answer

WHEN making an investment you are concerned not only with yield, but with many other factors, such as tax provisions, maturity, diversification, purpose of investment and various personal circumstances. Between any two investors conditions differ. A bond suitable for one is poorly adapted to another.

We regard all First National bond offerings as sound, but their details differ. A full understanding of your individual circumstances and requirements would govern our recommendations. That's our sound investment practice.

Every Year Gum Chewers Chew More

WASHINGTON, July 18.—(AP.)—The American people are spending approximately $2,000,000 more annually for chewing gum as each year goes by.

Back in 1925 they spent only $54,117,121, a report issued today by the Department of Commerce said, but in 1927 this figure had mounted to $58,018,271.

SYNOPSIS—Having picked up a lady's glove at the Dragoons' Ball, Sir Harry Doncaster reads an announcement in the Southdown Reporter and Devil's Gate Express requesting that gent who found lady's glove at Dragoons' Ball be at the Zoological Gardens at half after two on Sunday next.

WALKING briskly, Sir Harry Doncaster could not but muse over the events of the last week. Carefully folded in his kerchief pocket was the lady's glove he had carelessly picked up at the Dragoons' Ball, and folded with it was the item hastily torn from the Southdown Reporter and Devil's Gate Expres which said—

WILL GENT who picked up lady's glove at Dragoons' Ball kindly be at Zoological Gardens in London at half after two on Sunday next?

FAMOUS LAST WORDS
Can't I get a word in edgeways?

SKYWARD

momentarily, we again took off at about 5 a. m. the following morning. Surely it was a strenuous campaign. When we reached Flagler Fiord we found that during the few hours we had been away the ice had closed in and completely covered our landing place. We then cruised about for some 60 miles attempting to locate a landing place in one of the other fiords, but we were unsuccessful.

The next day we started out again. For a week Bennett had had very few hours' rest, but he insisted on going with me. He did most of the flying, while I navigated and flew from time to time when I was sure of our location, and could let the navigating go for a while.

We now headed into the northwest. The season was getting late and I wanted a look at the regions above the well-traveled route down Hayes and Flagler inlets. At midnight fog came on and we were forced to land in Sawyer Bay, a magnificent place, with its high canyon like cliffs. We ate a midnight lunch of pemmican and tea and lay down in our skin clothes to rest to wait for the clouds to clear ahead.

Finally, on taking off, the NA-3 developed such a knock that Schur preferred not to try a flight over the mountains to the north. About 8 a. m. Bennett and I in the NA-1 crossed the high, snow-covered peaks and got a look beyond.

There followed for Bennett and me one of the greatest battles of our lives. We looked down on an unexplored part of Grinnell Land into areas cut jagged by ages of ice into pinnacles and precipitous cliffs. The view was awful in its magnificence, and the air was the roughest I had ever experienced. We were tossed about like a leaf in a storm and often it looked as if we would certainly be dashed down on the irregular ice of the glaciers beneath us. Bennett showed there the stuff he was made of. Ahead of us were higher snow-covered mountain peaks that disappeared into the clouds. We made a desperate effort to get through, but there was no opening in the clouds. Most reluctantly we turned back, fighting every inch of the way.

Plane Afire

We returned to Sawyer Bay and joined the NA-3. We left a cache of gasoline, oil and food and hopped off for Etah at 7:05 a. m. When we rejoined the ship at Etah a gale was blowing.

On the 17th the gale finally subsided. At 8 p. m. some gasoline on the water around the Peary caught fire and for a few moments it looked as if the NA-3, which was tied up astern, and the whole ship would go. Sevensen used splendid head work in casting the NA-3 adrift immediately and some one procured a fire extinguisher and threw it to Nold, who was on the flaming plane.

There was one forced landing during our Arctic work, but it did not come until we were ready to leave Etah, where there was open water.

By the 20th the burned wings on the NA-3 had been replaced by new wings, and a new engine installed. But, due to Bennett, the NA-1 seemed to be in better shape than any of the other planes, so he and I loaded up to use our sub-base and fly to the limit of our cruising radius or bust. We were ready to go again. But MacMillan gave us orders not to go and we couldn't change him. That night the head of Etah Fiord froze over. This meant, MacMillan declared, that a forced landing in Cannon Fiord or Eureka Sound would certainly result in a freezing-in of at least one of the ships that could not desert us.

Forced Landing

Bennett and I were greatly depressed that we could not go on with our work.

However, there was another great adventure ahead of us—the flight over the Greenland ice-cap. We spent several days making photographic flights, and on the 22nd the NA-1 and NA-3 left Etah for Igloodahouny, 50 miles south of us. Reber piloted the NA-3, with Gayer as photographer and Nold as mechanic; Bennett, Francis and I were in the NA-1.

Half a mile from Etah the engine of the NA-3 threw her connecting rod and stopped dead. Reber was forced to land and had to be towed back. The NA-3 was then put on the Peary alongside the NA-2. I was sorry to see Reber have that hard luck, for, due to serious illness, he had been able to make only two flights over Ellesmere Island.

After landing to see that the NA-3 had gotten down without injury, we continued in the NA-1 to Igloodahouny, an Eskimo village south of Etah, where we found a fine beach. We landed and made camp.

At 3:15 I took the NA-1 for a flight over the Greenland ice-cap. The visibility was wonderful. We climbed to an altitude of 1,000-feet and could see 100 miles in every direction. As we got farther in over the ice-cap it grew very cold, although at 7,000 feet we encountered a warmer stratum of air.

We were flying in a direction a little south of east over a part of the ice cap never before explored. Soon we saw in the direction we were going that the ice reached an altitude which appeared to be equal to that of the plane—over 10,000 feet.

Huge Ice-Cap

The Greenland ice-cap is one of the great natural wonders of the world—1,500 miles long, about 500 miles wide, with an area of 700,000 square miles of solid ice and averaging over a mile in height—the world's great iceberg factory. The glaciers near the foot are greatly crevassed, but farther up, where they join the ice-cap, they are fairly smooth and firm. The shape of the ice-cap seems to be that of the crystal of a watch, so that it would be difficult to land an airplane near its edge without dashing into a crevasse; but 50 or 60 miles inland, though a bit rolling, there seem to be flat places where a plane with skis could land.

We returned to Igloodahouny almost literally frozen stiff. But we were proud of the NA-1, for thanks to Bennett, she had flown more than 2,500 miles in the Artic in every kind of weather, and she appeared to be in just as good condition as when we started.

I was stirred with the conclusion that aviation could conquer the Arctic. Contrary to the expectation of the world, we were returning without disaster.

We had a cold and stormy passage back to New York, but reached there safely about October 1. With Bennett, I quietly talked over the possibility of reaching the North Pole by air. Our Greenland experience convinced me this feat was possible.

"My dear, I'm all-of-a-tut-TUT at this point—I ACtually AM, because WHO do you s'pose I encountered on the BEACH today, my dear, after having sucCESSfully avoided ARab all morning? That odd soul PHWHEN, no less, and my dear he HONestly looked like NOTHing HUman because he was CLASPing afFECtionately one of those VILE hot DOG effects that rePEL me VIolently, and every once and a while he'd take a treMENdous BITE out of it with such EVident UNCtion that I HONestly thought I'd SNAP my COOKies, ALL in a ROW, because it was so comPLETEly reVOLTing, do you know what I mean? But ANYways, my dear, he PROUDly inFORMED me between BITES that he was going to be a FRESHman again next year, and when I suggested that could HARDly be deemed a disTINCtion consid'ring ARab is, TOO, my dear, WHAT'd you s'pose he SAID? Well, he had the NERVE to say LOOK at the saving on the '32 JUMPer! GOSH, my dear, WOULDn't you think he'd have more PRIDE or something? I mean I HONestly think it's SIMply VILE to think of youths like him and ARab not having any more amBISH than to be PERfectly SATisfied to keep rePEATing their FRESHman YEAR inDEFinitely and I can yell you ONE thing right NOW, my dear—if they have the ridic IDEA that I'm going to rePEAT it WITH them they couldn't BE more misTAken because I mean I'm going to be proMOted to the SOPH'more class because their DANces are HEAPS more THRILLing—I mean I ACtually AM!"

Necessity

Husband (reading daily paper): "A dancer spun round on her toe thirty-eight times—of all the useless stunts!"

"Oh, I don't know. It would come in handy if she ever had to cook the dinner in a model kitchen."

One Advantage

"Mother, wouldn't it be niece if you had the toothache instead of sister?"

"Why do you think it would be nice?"

"Because you can take your teeth out and sister can't."

Big Hearted

Tramp: "Can I cut your grass for a meal, mum?"

Lady of the House: "Yes, my poor man. But you needn't bother to cut it; you may eat it right off the ground."

Saved

She: "I would box your ears if—"
He: "If what"
She: "If I could get a large enough box."

Cry Baby

"The way Mrs. Jones' baby cries is a perfect scandal."

"Yes; it's a pity they can't hush it up!"

Beck's Run Road Wreck; Bad Engineering a Cause

Council has been "declaring itself" because the engineering department has not been prompt in correcting sewer conditions in the West End, resulting in damage to private property when flooded through recent heavy rains, and also for delay of relief in the situation along Beck's Run roadway, leading from East Carson street to Carrick and Mt. Oliver.

Council also might, with good purpose, do a little kicking about the manner in which Beck's Run road was paved. It is nothing but wreckage now, but previous to recent storms it was as nice and smooth a piece of highway as could be found anywhere, brick paving on a cement base. Floods have lifted up the bricks and carried them away as if they had been chips. And small wonder! The bricks, unbelievably thin, it is charged, had been laid flat instead of on edge! Consequently there was no anchorage to speak of when torrential rains swelled the stream in that narrow defile and caused it to overflow.

We learn by experience that too great economy generally is the most expensive procedure. We do not know the history of the Beck's Run paving, but it would seem that engineering that would permit construction of that kind in a locality of that nature is mighty poor practice.

All Honor to Negroes Who Protest on Vice

Negroes, at a mass meeting, held to protest against vice conditions which have resulted in the killing of two members of their race recently, stressed the importance of Negroes "helping themselves" rather than depending upon other agencies. The meeting was attended by about 200 citizens, including clergymen, doctors and lawyers.

It is a commendable spirit of citizenship that is evident in a body willing to help itself. That is the end and aim of citizenship. In no way can our Negro friends and neighbors help themselves better than by calling public attention to the vicious conditions of which they complain. These are good people—the evildoers do not hold meetings of this kind. Their protest is backed by the laudable purpose of a better community for all as well as for themselves, and it should receive the attention its importance warrants.

It was voted to co-operate with the Afro-American Brotherhood of the World, the aims of which were stated to be the "civic, economic and intellectual betterment of the Negro people, that we may live in peace in a clean and wholesome community." If that isn't a most worthy declaration of high American aspirations, how would you go about to better it?

Watch Tom Heeney

If Boxing Interests You, He Will Interest and May SURPRISE You.

TOM HEENEY EXERCISING ON SHIPBOARD.

Gene Tunney, champion of the world, will soon fight Tom Heeney, the blacksmith from New Zealand.

When Tunney fights, the United States public is inclined to take it for granted that the other man is beaten before the fight starts.

But as Tunney himself says: "You will do well to look over this Tom Heeney person and study him for yourself, not merely as another 'champion contender.'"

This picture shows Mr. Heeney from the far Antipodes keeping in condition on shipboard while coming to America. You notice that his chest, arms, legs and neck are not the kind with which you would gaily seek a quarrel.

And you can't help liking his breezy style in motion.

You will hear a good deal about this Australian blacksmith in the next few days. Many will bet their money against him if there is any betting to be had.

Our British friends and cousins are deeply interested in the coming Tunney-Heeney fight, and much delighted that a "British heavyweight boxer has been chosen to meet the world's champion, something that no one would have dreamt of a year ago."

The British have lacked good heavyweights for a long time. Their Jem Smith of the days of John L. Sullivan was only a heavyweight joke. They haven't had ANY heavyweights worth talking about since the days of Fitzsimmons. Pound for pound he was as good as any man. He came from Australia, and, like Tom Heeney, he was a blacksmith.

Fitzsimmons eliminated a good many American champions, including Corbett. You could learn from this picture that Heeney seems to have the Antipodean fighting quality.

There are ways of using strength and intelligence much better than prizefighting, which does nobody any good, and develops brutality.

But fighting is the quickest road to wealth for a strong young man to get rich these days, and you can hardly blame the fighters in these get-rich-quick days.

Tunney will earn more than $500,000 in this next fight, and earn it in 45 minutes or less.

He could not earn that by lecturing on Shakespeare for 100 years.

Garrett P. Serviss Says:

The Inconstant Sun

HOW merely incidental we all are! Incidents of the sunshine; flowers, grass, trees, insects, animals, man—every one completely dependent upon the radiations of a neighboring star. The sun shines and all live and rejoice in its glow; it withdraws its rays and all go to sleep, or languish, or die.

It is not only the diurnal terms of sunlight and warmth, alternating with darkness and cold, that we have to go through, but there are longer and more variable periods, of vital influence over every living thing. There is, for instance, the inaptly named "sunspot period"—inapt because the sunspots themselves are only incidental effects, and not causes. We do not even know for certain how they are produced, or exactly what they are. We only know that their appearance coincides more or less with certain electrical and other cognate phenomena on the earth, which are evidently the reflection of something, still mysterious to our science, that occurs periodically in the sun.

About all that we can say with confidence is that we are dependent creatures endowed with self-consciousness, attached to a little globe, itself an attendant upon a (relatively) little star, which star is a variable source of the energies that nourish and maintain our life, together with all the activities amidst which we live.

The American Association of Variable Star Observers, consisting mostly of amateur astronomers, keeps nightly watch and record of thousands of stars that vary in their radiations. You can find in certain astronomical periodicals the monthly reports of these watchers, which you might mistake for a bookkeeper's columns of figures. To those who have learned to read them these figures tell the story of the multitude of unsteady suns that light and heat the universe. Our sun, then, is not exceptional in its variability. It follows the stellar fashion. It does not allow itself to be hampered in this respect by the fact that it is the father of an interesting planetary family, whose living inhabitants, crawling or strutting their brief lives away in its rays, find some of its fidgets extremely uncomfortable at the best.

But if we look at the worst cases of stellar variability we may heartily congratulate ourselves that our star is so moderate in its vacillations. There are others that leap and flame and flutter and fade like a conflagration in battle with the firemen. Woe to any world that should find itself an attache to such a sun as that! There are some which alter the amount of their light and heat to a notable degree every few days, or every few weeks. Many undergo variations perhaps not greater than those of our sun, and in long periods of years. In our case the period is, on the average, about 11 years. Some stars have longer periods than that; but the long periods are often associated with great fluctuations in the degree of variability. There are stars whose radiation is increased ten thousand fold at times, only to sink back again to the former level. Mira, "The Wonderful," is an example.

• • •

Is there a progression in the degree of stellar variability? Is it like a fatal disease, growing slowly worse with time? Is our star, for instance, only in an early stage of this trouble, and may it sometime come to resemble Mira itself in that respect? There are some significant resemblances between the spectra of the spots that form on the sun and the spectrum of Mira, which might be taken to indicate a lineage of that kind. But these are questions not yet answerable. And as far as they concern the future of the human race they may not appear of much importance to the universe at large.

Gracious

A GRACIOUS act of courtesy was that of the Congress of Bolivia in making July 4 a holiday "out of respect to the United States."

The action is, however, more than a courteous gesture. Guessing on what might have been is about as hazardous as guessing on the future. Yet it seems probable that if the experiment of democratic self-government had failed in North America it would not have been tried in the southern portion of our hemisphere.

In neither continent has it yet reached the full measure of its possible success. It has always to be guarded. That guardianship is helped when sister republics seek better mutual understanding and esteem.

The Bluffer

YOU say you don't like the person who tries to "highhat" you.

It makes you uncomfortable and you can't cope with it.

There are two ways to handle such persons.

Either don't give evidence of your discomfiture or assume as lofty an air.

The latter plan is the more difficult, possibly.

Ridicule will often squelch the person who displays the superior air.

It goes without saying that the really superior person never tries to create such an impression.

It is the one who is lacking in some particular who tries to make up for it by practicing deception.

The person of unusual ability seldom gives a thought to it.

He is too busy qualifying.

It is only the little fellow who tries to appear a person of power and strength and superior wisdom.

If you bear this in mind you won't fear his tactics.

Efforts to appear of superior clay become something to laugh at in the person who is putting up a bluff.

Haunted Houses

HERE stands a haunted house, and here, and here,
Long row on row down all the city's maze:
A haunted house is mirrored in the mere
And haunted houses wait down quiet ways.
Dim ghosts of vanished joys and sorrows glide
Along old rooms when dusk has stolen in,
They linger by the lonely chimney-side,
They wander where a baby's toys have been.
And within little houses almost new,
Still brave and gay in all their fresh array,
The ghosts are gathering, as yet but few,
Some grave, some glad, on silent feet they stray.
Each house where men have ever lived and loved
With passing years, a haunted house is proved.

Isn't It So?

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

A LOT of parents will be glad to know that kids about the same age generally fight, even if they are brothers and sisters. Almost every mother thinks her own two are the only ones that fight that way, and she's terrible sad about it.

Mary, anyhow, started bawling and roaring an hour after she and her brother John had been put to bed in the same room.

When the mother came running, Mary said, "He hit me right in the eye!"

Mamma said, "Johnnie, what did you do that for?"

"Well, you won't let us turn on the light after we're put to bed, and how am I a-going to tell where I'm hitting her?"

"There's Many a Slip—"

MISS MARDEN had served the firm faithfully for 20 years, and the nervous staff manager was asked to propose her health at the annual dinner.

"Ladies and gentlemen," he began rather haltingly, "even in these modern days people are apt to sneer at women in business, and say that their faces are their fortunes." He paused to beam at his audience, for things were going better than he thought. "You will all agree," he continued, "that no such charge could be leveled against Miss Marden—er—er—"

Infinite silence followed.

A Bad Guess

AN EAST END alien and his girl were barred at the door of a West End night club. The attendant explained that he couldn't enter because he was not in evening clothes. But the other failed to understand.

Pointing to a sign on the door which read: "Only Those in Evening Dress Admitted," the attendant thundered: "Can't you read?"

"Certinkly," replied the East Ender, indignantly; "who's smoking?"

Excusable

THE smaller children of a church dignitary had come to see their big brother play for his college, but, as every player was flannelled, they could not at first distinguish him.

As it happened, he was batting, and stood at ease with the umpire at his elbow.

At last one sharp pair of eyes detected him.

"There he is, Betty," cried a small brother.

"Where? I can't see him."

"Why, there! Standing beside the clergyman."

Speaking of Cards

MASTER (to servant): "You have the visiting list and the cards?"

Servant: "Yes, sir."

Master: "At every house that I don't stop, you will leave a card."

Servant: "Very good, sir."

Master (after many visits): "Have you any cards left?"

"Servant: "Only the ace of spades and the joker."

Man of His Word

JUDGE: "You broke into the shop of Mr. Smith, the jeweler?"

Accused: "Yes, I did not want to die without keeping my promise to my grandfather."

Judge: "What was that?"

Accused: "That I would open a jeweler's shop."

"Say It With Cacti"

NO ONE less penetrating than a psychoanalyst can explain why florist shops have suddenly taken the delicate delphinium and the vibrant gladiolus from their windows and put innumerable pots of cacti there.

What's it all about? Florist shops everywhere have suddenly changed from bowers of loveliness to dens of perdition. The rattlesnake of the vegetable kingdom is being exploited. Does the wistful swain now go armed with the spiny plant to protect himself against the flapper? Or is it a symbol of prohibition, this plant of the great dry wastes? It means something, but Heaven alone knows what.

New York Day by Day

by O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, July 18.—The charm of Greenwich Village is pronounced on a sultry evening. It is a part of town that completely relaxes in the splendor of a dying day and manages somehow to create a mood—detached, somber and a little mellow.

There is a verdant freshness to the little triangular squares which does not come to the other open places in the city. And the aura of quiet sublimity about the Queen Anne cottages with ivy-clad lintels and the faded old red-bricked mansions impresses the stranger.

The Village has an old world manner. Worn brick pavements fill with leisurely groups and you see young folks drifting cater-cornered across the street with arms thrown over each others shoulders. Women in fresh lawn dresses occupy camp chairs in doorways. Dogs roam at random.

The doors of the coffee shops and waffle parlors are wide open and the proprietors often sit out front in shirt sleeved ease. Whole families, too, occupy the high front stoops. Children roll hoops, play hide and seek and other games in the dwindling light.

Very few Village stores open until noon but they are open all evening at which time they do their biggest business. They deal chiefly in batik gowns, hand-woven dresses, samovars, art metal work, lamp shades, sundry antiques, trick ukuleles and naughty pictures.

On a summer evening windows of the high ceiled studios are usually open, thus revealing the colorful comfort of the open fire-places, the high mantels and expansive mirrors of another generation. Blobs of light from gas jets flickering and dancing in attics also add their touch.

The Village has many back yards that have been brick-walled off into tiny gardens slit with cool gravel paths and blooming with flowers. And usually a bench protected by a gay striped umbrella. Along some of the Village streets there still remain trees with fresh moist leaves, a sort of idyllic mockery to a city that neglects its trees.

The produce district, sprawling along the southern section of West street, is another vivid contrast from the usual in New York. The buildings are of old red brick with wooden awnings spreading out over the sidewalk. Across the street are the miles of steamship piers. Out front is a panorama of mountainous piles of crated produce. All day long there are groups of boys defying death under motor trucks and horse drawn wagons to play ball. At night the sacks and boxes are dotted with seamen, longshoremen and other water front characters who prefer their uncomfortable couches to bug-ridden lodging houses.

Around the gloomy dock warehouses at night are wizened old women who carry sacks and forage for kindling, rotting fruit and other articles that drop from wagons. In the half light they are remindful of buzzards pecking at carrion.

An auto dealer tells me New York has a number of professional "samplers." They are usually men and women of good addresses and are able to supply themselves with cars almost continuously by offering themselves as prospective patrons at various auto agencies. In this way they secure trial cars to attend theater, shop and even go on short touring trips.

And large jewelry houses are frequently the victims of those estimables who secure jewels over night on approval, wearing them to the play or opera, and returning them in the morning.

* * *

The only way I was ever able to get anything free—outside of the customary air from magazine editors—has been on Pullman cars, but that is ended. They have stopped putting little black combs in the washrooms.

And add similies: As useless as those little green hammocks they hang between Pullman berth windows.

Jealousy

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Sometimes I have heard it said that strong jealousy is an indication of true love. If one does not care enough to be jealous, then he cannot love much.

Careful reflection upon this matter, however, rather leads to the conclusion that jealousy hasn't anything to do with love. It is a form of egotism. A man is jealous because his ego is offended on account of his rights or privileges being invaded.

His love is not hurt because the beloved one may fancy someone else. That is no offense to him; but his vanity is extremely wounded.

Pure and unselfish love simply seeks the welfare of the beloved, but a great deal that is called love is a search for gratification or for something that can please us.

Perhaps it is too much to ask of poor human nature that we should be devoted so sincerely to the welfare of one we love that we are willing to sacrifice all of our interests for the beloved's sake; yet that is a very romantic and ideal state of perfection which few of us reach.

Why be jealous? Jealousy means that in some way we feel our rights have been infringed upon. Wherever one establishes a right over another person, there is sure to be trouble. If all we claimed over another were the privilege of serving that other, there would not be any jealousy.

It is hard to believe that so good and perfect a thing as love can anywise beget jealousy, for that way madness lies.

Jealousy works as a poison in the blood and leads to all sorts of vicious actions, from the crime of Othello down to petty wickedness.

It would seem that for one's own sake, for the sake of one's own self-respect and integrity, it would be much better to turn away from all thoughts of jealousy than to give way to angry and vicious imaginings.

Unfortunately some men can only love according to their traditions. It must be a proprietary kind of love. The beloved object must have no thought, no interest, except for them, and the slightest sign of independence is looked upon as treachery.

This is the idea of property right gone mad. No person can have such claims upon another, and our love for that other will be more secure if it is accompanied by a disposition to grant the beloved one reasonable freedom.

OH, THESE WOMEN!

By LEOLA ALLARD

A VISCOUNT, visiting America, says that American women are perfectly delightful savages. He adores them, and wouldn't THINK of having any other kind in his home.

"Savages, indeed," said I, indignantly, and picked up another morning paper and read that:

A woman in Los Angeles was divorced because her husband said she wouldn't keep house for him, made him cook his own meals, and then eat them on the kitchen sink. When he mildly protested, she threw pots and pans at his head.

The judge was old-fashioned. He didn't like savages and he gave the husband a divorce.

A man should never, ALMOST never, strike a woman. But sometimes one wonders if a sock on the jaw isn't better than 365 meals on the sink amid flying pots and pans!

The Miriam Noel Wright, who has done other things more or less like that, went to California and called at the home of her estranged husband. He was out, so she broke up all the furniture, tore the lace curtains and left other evidences of her affection.

She claims he is in love with another woman. How could he be! Anyway, she said if she had had more time she would have leveled the place. The police got there too soon for Miriam.

The Viscount probably got a great many of his ideas reading about women in newspapers. It's the savages that make the front pages.

Speaking of savages, a man on the West Coast went to a party and was having a wretched time, so he took a shot at the host. Anything to liven things up. He really belonged out on Chicago's West Side, where they would have understood his whimsical sense of humor.

A lady in Richmond, Cal., has 19 children, the last arrivals being twins. She says she would rather have children than furniture. In a big family like that you don't need so much furniture. They are always sitting on each other anyway.

Think of a woman with a heart so big that she hopes after the nineteenth child that she will have MORE. Yet she is fully aware that if they are to have canteloupe for breakfast she must buy a crate of them. That with 21 at table, one pie would look silly. And whenever they need five feather pillows, they have one chicken dinner.

The father is a barber. How many shaves to buy a Sunday dinner for 21 people?

And the 21 eat three times a day, 365 days a year!

If you think you have problems, read this over again. That is 63 meals a day or 22,985 meals a year.
